"FLABBERGASTED" BY $15,628 BILL AT GAMBLING CLUB

E. R. Handlan, Being Sued on Note, Says He Cannot Recall Asking Limit on Credit Be Lifted.

HAD SYSTEM TO CURTAIL LOSSES

Signed Obligation Because He Knew He Had Been "Gypped," Thought That Was Way Out, He Avers.

E. R. Handlan, vice president of Handlan-Buck Manufacturing Co., had a system of playing roulette which tended to limit the possibilities of winning or losing to $30 or $40 a night, he testified in a deposition taken by attorneys seeking to collect $15,628 he is alleged to have lost in one night at Club Forest, a New Orleans gambling resort.

He has repudiated the debt as a gambling transaction and Louis B. Goldsmith, the club's greeter and mixer, who says he bought Handlan's note from the manager of the club innocent of the fact that it represented settlement of a gambling debt, has sued to collect.

Handlan testified he had an understanding with Manassee Karger, manager of the club, that under no circumstances was he to receive credit of more than $300, and that he has no recollection of requesting that the limit be raised, as Karger says.

Does Not Recall Lifting Limit.

"I don't see how I could have said that," he testified. "I had plenty of drinks, but couldn't for the life of me think of having lost money like that when my first word in any establishment of that sort is to limit my credit from the start." Handlan was asked if he could say definitely that he had not asked Karger to lift the limit, and replied that he could not, but that he did not recall doing so.

Examined by Ernest A. Green, attorney for Goldsmith in the presence of his own counsel, James V. Frank, Handlan testified he had visited Club Forest five times during a two weeks visit to New Orleans a year ago, never winning more than $285 or losing more than $300 until the last night, Feb. 1, 1930.

"On this last night," he testified, "I was playing just the same way I had played on previous nights. And when the time came to close up, I went to Mr. Karger." The conversation, as Handlan reported it was:

"How much do I owe you?" Karger replied, "$15,628."

"It can't be that, that's impossible. You know my limit here has not been to exceed $300. I've played with 50 cent chips every time I've been out here, because I don't gamble very big sums of money in any place."

Why He Signed Note.

"Well," said Karger, "you ordered me to take the limit off."

"I have no recollection of telling you that," Handlan replied. "I can't pay it and I haven't got it."

Karger importuned him to pay the $628 and give a note for the balance. Handlan said, but he declined to do so although he had with him $600 he had won that afternoon at the racetrack.

Green asked why he had signed the note, if there was an understanding that his credit was to be limited to $300.

"Simply because I saw there was something palpably wrong about it," Handlan testified. "I was absolutely what you might call flabbergasted by such a statement from him, and I knew there was something materially wrong about it. And the only chance to settle or find out what he was driving at was to give him a note. I knew I had been gypped somewhere. I was in their place and they were closing up and it was full of their employes."

Cash Basis at First.

On some of his visits to the Club Forest, Handlan said, he had played on a cash basis, on others he obtained his first chips on credit. "I just went up and asked for chips and they would put it down," he said. "Karger, or whoever was in charge, would say 'O. K.' and that was the end of it."

At the end of a game he would ask Karger how he stood, and Karger would figure it out. "If he owed me money he would pay it and if I owed him I would give him a check for it," Handlan testified.

The value of chips used at Club Forest and other places of the sort is not determined by their color, but the player may call for any color he prefers and designate their value as he chooses, Handlan said. Illustrating the point, he said

JAPANESE WEAR SILK HATS TO FOOL IMMIGRATION MEN

Formal Morning Attire Used to Get Farm Laborers Into the United States.

By the Associated Press.

SALINAS, Cal., Feb. 6.—A ruse whereby Japanese farm laborers slipped past Immigration inspectors by wearing frock coats, silk hats, striped morning trousers, pearl gray spats and carrying canes, was disclosed yesterday with the arrest of three men for illegal entry.

Immigration officers said many Japanese in this vicinity had entered the country through the same ruse. The well-dressed Japanese told authorities they were on their way to European universities. Once in the country, however, they discarded their finery for overalls and went to work in vegetable fields for from 25 to 40 cents an hour.

DOWNTOWN HOTEL FIRE DOES $5000 DAMAGE IN LOBBY

Guests at Warwick Call for Rescue but Are in No Danger — 20 Women Led Through Smoke.

Fire starting in a repair and storage room at the rear of the lobby caused about $5000 damage at the Warwick Hotel, Fifteenth and Locust streets, this afternoon.

The fire was discovered at 1:30 o'clock when a puff of smoke came from the repair shop. C. C. Swinney, the manager, sent in an alarm, calling apparatus from downtown fire stations. Attracted by the fire engines and smoke in corridors, excited guests threw open windows, calling to firemen to get them out. The firemen called back that there was no danger, directing the guests to remain in their rooms. Several persons hurried down stairways with their personal belongings under their arms. Later 20 or 30 women employes of the hotel and guests were led through smoke-filled corridors to the street.

The flames spread from the shop to closets in which bedding was stored on the mezzanine. The furnishings and decorations of the lobby, particularly in the south end, were seriously scorched and considerable water damage was caused. The origin of the fire was not learned.

The hotel, at the southeast corner of Fifteenth and Locust, is operated by the Warwick Operating Co., of which W. A. Meletio is president.

U. S. GRAND JURY DEMANDS INQUIRY INTO DRY FORCES

CAROL BYRD CITED WITH M. D. PADFIELD

Transfers Unfair to Communities They Go to — Bureau Here Described as "Self-Satisfied."

"A thorough and searching investigation" of the Federal prohibition enforcement officers in St. Louis is demanded by the Federal grand jury, in its report submitted to Judge Faris this afternoon.

The report declares that prohibition enforcement here is "decidedly inefficient," and that the officers are "lacking in insight and knowledge of the duties of their office." They are submitting many cases of minor importance, it is stated, when they should be obtaining evidence against the sources of supply of illicit liquor in this district.

Agents Carol Byrd and Merritt D. Padfield, who were transferred to another district recently, were censured in the report.

The report is, in form, a partial report, but the grand jury, which is that appointed for the September term, was discharged from further active duty.

Text of Recommendation.

The report was accompanied by the return of 90 true bills. The part of the report relating to prohibition enforcement matters is:

"This jury is of the opinion that a thorough and searching investigation should be made of the prohibition enforcement officers of this city, because it is the opinion of this jury that the prohibition enforcement of the government in this community is decidedly inefficient and are lacking in a keen insight and true knowledge of the duties of their office to the extent that in the opinion of this jury the prohibition department in St. Louis has gotten itself into a rut where they have reached the state of self-satisfaction on bringing in before the jury and the Court great numbers of cases, all of a minor importance, and have overlooked entirely the fact of attempting at least to obtain information against and put out of business the sources of the supply of illicit liquor in this district.

It is the opinion of this jury that five or six capable men of the type and caliber of the men working in other investigation departments of the Government could do more effective work and would do more effective work than the entire force of 30 men which they have had in this district.

Matter Laid Before Wark.

With this end in view, this jury requested Hon. George H. Wark, Prohibition Administrator of the Ninth District, to appear before them at which time they laid before him the entire matter and requested of him that he proceed immediately to a thorough investigation of the St. Louis office with the object in mind of cleaning up all unfavorable conditions existing here and establishing this department in St. Louis upon a more efficient basis with more competent men, and that furthermore, his department should make some effort to instruct these men in the duties of their office that they might understand and appreciate the duties and responsibilities placed upon them more thoroughly, and that he might educate them in a proper manner when appearing before a grand jury.

"In this connection this jury found it necessary to exclude from testifying before them Agents Byrd and Padfield, and it is the opinion of this jury that the transferring of these men from the St. Louis office to another office where they are unknown is an injustice to the community to which they have been transferred. We feel that these men being incompetent to operate in St. Louis and being disqualified to testify before a grand jury in the City of St. Louis, that to remedy matters by transferring them, does not either increase their competence or enhance their qualifications.

Inquiry Put Up to Court.

"Therefore we are leaving in your hands for your consideration the matter of the investigation of the prohibition force in St. Louis to the extent that if the Prohibition Department does not carry on this investigation in a fit manner in the interest of all parties concerned, that another department of the Government be called in to complete it, and that action upon this investigation might not die with this jury but that a full report of

HOW CLOSED BANK MADE $12,000,000 LOAN TO AFFILIATE

Officer of New York Depository Says President "Let Boys (Loan Board) Out of Room" First.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Members of the Loan Committee of the Bank of United States were ordered out of the board of directors' room when the Executive Committee discussed loans to affiliated companies of the closed bank, Michael J. Kletz, a vice president, testified today.

Kletz told a refree in bankruptcy, investigating affairs of four affiliates of the bank, that Bernard K. Marcus, president, and Saul Singer, chairman of the Executive Committee, always told "the boys" to leave the room when loans aggregating more than $12,000,000 were made to the Bankus Corporation, the Municipal Financial Corporation, the City Financial and the Delaware Bankus Corporation.

John J. Girolamo, assistant cashier of the bank and secretary of the Loan Committee, said his committee had no authority over loans to the bank's affiliate companies, but declared that during August, 1929, the names of the three affiliates came up at every weekly meeting for approval of increased loans.

Counsel for the receiver pointed out that Bankus owned City Financial and that those two owned Municipal Financial, and asked if any of the Executive Committee had questioned the legality of loaning $12,000,000 to what was in effect one affiliate of the bank. The witness said that question had not been discussed.

Max D. Steuer, in his capacity as Assistant District Attorney, went before the county grand jury, with a mass of evidence which he intimated yesterday showed that $250,000 was stolen from the bank in transactions with its subsidiaries.

LOS ANGELES LEAVES CUBA ON FLIGHT TO CANAL ZONE

Takes Off From Guantanamo After Making Trip From Lakehurst in 24 Hours.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—At noon today the navy dirigible Los Angeles was 75 miles south of Kingston, Jamaica, on the way from Guantanamo, Cuba, to Panama.

Lieutenant-Commander V. A. Clarke, in a message to the Navy Department, said the ship was making 67 miles an hour, favored by northeasterly winds. It had covered 218 miles of the 770 miles between Guantanamo and Panama.

UNITED STATES DIRIGIBLE LOS ANGELES, Feb. 6.—The naval dirigible Los Angeles took off from its mooring at Guantanamo, Cuba, naval base at 8:20 a. m. today on the final leg of its flight from Lakehurst to the Canal Zone.

The airship, which will take part in a sham battle off the Pacific side of the canal, arrived here late yesterday after a 24-hour flight from its home base at Lakehurst.

As the Los Angeles headed south only four of its engines were running at half speed in a fuel economy test. Nevertheless the airship was making 66 knots with a strong favorable northeast wind aiding its progress toward Moront Point, Jamaica.

Naval officers aboard the dirigible expected to sight Panama at sunset.

FAMILY ROW AIRED IN SUIT INVOLVING $54,000 IN STOCK

W. L. Rutkowski Testifies Against Daughter's Claim to Joint Ownership of Securities.

Walter L. Rutkowski, who has risen from mechanic to prosperous can manufacturer, resumed his testimony today in Circuit Judge Rosskopf's Court after telling yesterday how he lavished gifts on his daughter, Mrs. Florentine Stevens, who is opposing his claim to 540 shares of stock of the R-C Can Co., valued on the company's books at $54,000, but said by Mrs. Stevens to be worth $160,000.

Judge Rosskopf took the case under advisement at the conclusion of testimony today, allowing attorneys for each side 10 days for filing briefs.

The burden of Rutkowski's testimony has been, "it is all mine," of Mrs. Stevens' testimony, "it is ours together," and of that of Rutkowski's fiance, Miss Evelyn Stolte, "I don't want anything that belongs to somebody else."

Miss Stolte, 30 years old, a milliner, is only four years older than her prospective daughter-in-law. She is not a party to the suit, which was filed by the can company, of which Rutkowski is president, to determine the respective rights of father and daughter to the stock. Rutkowski had the shares transferred to himself and his daughter jointly after his wife died in 1927 but before the daughter was married in 1928 to Dr. E. G. Stevens.

Denies Giving Stock.

Rutkowski, a stocky man wearing a gray business suit and tortoise-shell spectacles, said yesterday he made the transfer to facilitate passage of the stock to his daughter in case of his death, but did not intend it as a gift. She declined to indorse the certificates in January, 1930, he said, preventing their deposit with the company under an agreement whereby the company was to insure his life for $100,000 and pay the daughter the value of the stock upon his death.

While the can manufacturer pictured himself as an indulgent father who "gave Florentine money whenever she wanted it," the daughter smiled and took notes of his testimony for use by her attorneys, Claude W. McElwee and William H. Corcoran Jr. Miss Stolte sat inconspicuously in the rear of the spectators' section.

"I furnished more than $6500 for Florentine's trousseau and wedding expenses," he related, "although I hadn't consented to the marriage. I paid the wedding bill of $393 at the Corodano Hotel—the music was extra. After their marriage I took them into my apartment at 6031 Waterman and paid $100 a month rent and $10 for a maid. All I got out of it was my board and washing.

"In 1929 I gave her a $1000 bond," he continued, "and bought it back when she said she needed money. I paid for her trips and once when she wrote me from Detroit that she couldn't return by automobile, I sent her $50 train fare. But she came back by auto, anyhow."

Clash With Daughter.

Giving his version of the incident which Mrs. Stevens had said caused her and her husband to leave Rutkowski's home, the witness said he returned from the Municipal Opera one night with his sister and Miss Stolte and found Dr. and Mrs. Stevens "drinking highballs and playing cards." "I don't think they liked it because

G. O. P. BLOCKED INDICTMENTS IN POSTOFFICE LEASE FRAUD INQUIRY

Former Assistant Postmaster-General Bartlett Tells Senators How Grand Jury Investigation at St. Paul Was Called Off.

PHONE CALL FROM COOLIDGE'S CAMP

Bartlett Testifies Prosecutor Got Message From Late J. W. Good, Who Directed Hoover's Campaign in the West.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Heavy political pressure was exerted in 1928 to save "influential Republicans" from indictment in connection with the St. Paul postoffice lease, according to evidence heard by the Senate Investigating Committee today. The witness was John H. Bartlett, who was First Assistant Postmaster-General during the time when these events took place.

At the height of the grand jury investigation of the cirmumstances surrounding the lease, Bartlett testified, the United States District Attorney at St. Paul received a telephone call from the late James W. Good, then a guest at President Coolidge's summer home at Brule, Wis. At that time Good was serving in two capacities: He was attorney for Jacob Kulp, who leased the St. Paul building to the Government, and he was managing the Western end of Herbert Hoover's campaign for the presidency.

Chairman Blaine elicited the fact that, soon after this telephone conversation took place, the grand jury investigation was "called off," and no indictments were returned, although the grand jury reported that the lease was full of fraud.

Ordered to St. Paul by New.

"As a matter of fact, weren't you sent up to St. Paul to prevent action by the grand jury?" asked Blaine. "I had no such understanding. Postmaster-General New had directed me to go there and see what should be done."

"Of course, you knew that Mr. Good was the western manager of the Republican Presidential campaign?" insisted Blaine, who is a Republican himself. "I know that," Bartlett replied.

"And, of course, you knew that if indictments were returned against some people who were prominent in the campaign it would have a bad political effect; so the grand jury investigation had to be stopped at all hazzards?" "Well, they didn't take me into their confidence on the political side of it," the witness rejoined.

Nevertheless, what followed was interesting. Citizens of St. Paul were preparing to file suit to annul the lease on the ground of fraud. Bartlett telephoned to his superior in Washington, Postmaster-General New, and received instructions to recommend condemnation proceedings, instead, thus eliminating the element of fraud. Bartlett did so.

Grand Jury Action Delayed.

Simultaneously, the District Attorney was ordered by the Assistant Attorney-General, John S. Pratt, to "delay action before the grand jury until I can confer with you." The prosecutor, who had been conducting the investigation with a view to obtaining indictments, accordingly suspended. Subsequently, arrangements were made for condemnation proceedings, and the criminal aspects of the case faded out.

Good concluded his visit at President Coolidge's summer camp, and returned to Chicago to resume his successful task of conducting Mr. Hoover's presidential campaign in the West. When Mr. Hoover became President, Good entered his Cabinet as Secretary of War, but died about a year later.

The St. Paul lease, as has been told, originally bound the Government to pay $120,775 annual rental on a building the value of which later was officially appraised at $334,000, but it contained a clause allowing the Government to cancel the lease. A few years later a new lease was made whereby the Government, in return for a reduction of $775 a year in the rent, agreed to make the lease noncancellable. Arrangements for the second lease were made between Good, representing Kulp, and Postmaster-General New.

"Didn't you learn subsequently

SCIENTIST THINKS VARYING SUN RAYS GOVERN WEATHER

Dr. C. G. Abbot Tells of Experiments Since 1924 Which Developed Theory.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The theory that changes in the intensity of the sun's rays regulate the weather and make long-range weather forecasts possible was advanced today by Dr. Charles G. Abbot, astrophysicist of the Smithsonian Institution.

Meteorologists hitherto have thought weather depended mainly on irregularities of the earth's surface and could not be predicted far in advance any more than could the passage of rough water in a stream over a rocky bed.

Dr. Abbot argued, however, "that weather, on the contrary, is caused chiefly by the frequent interventions of actual changes of the emission of radiation within the sun itself."

Dr. Abbot based his conclusions on daily measurements of the sun's rays made since 1924 at the astrophysical laboratory of the Smithsonian Institution in Chile. During this time he said there were 111 instances when the force of the sun's radiation increased continuously for five consecutive days, and 106 instances when it decreased for the same length of time. He found that the temperature and barometric pressure in Washington during these periods moved one way when the sun's radiation increased and the other way when it decreased.

This discovery was checked with similar findings at Williston, N. D., and Yuma, Ariz., he explained.

Variations of the sun's radiation averaged only 0.8 per cent, but he said they caused temperature changes averaging five degrees.

COLLEGE GIRLS DEMAND PASTOR APOLOGIZE FOR SCANDAL STORY

He Said They Wore Pajamas, Shorts and Veils at Memphis Beach Party.

By the Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 6.—The girls of Southwestern, a Presbyterian college, have demanded that the Rev. R. Girard Lowe, a young Presbyterian minister, apologize. The minister told the trustees witnesses could be produced to prove girl students had danced publicly in pajamas, "shorts that came just below the hips" and veils.

The girls asserted the garments were beach pajamas and that no boys were present at their display. Lowe said he wanted it understood he had said, "some of them wore veils over the shorts."

Mrs. M. H. Townsend, dean of women, collected 126 written denials, issued a statement reprimanding the pastor and called the girls to meet to draft a demand that he apologize publicly.

The statement said: "One of the sororities gave a beach party, at which only girls were present, and on that occasion they wore the special kind of pajamas worn publicly by American women at seaside resorts and not, as was suggested, sleeping pajamas.

BELLE LIVINGSTONE GETS 30-DAY PRISON SENTENCE

New York Night Club Proprietor Convicted of Contempt for U. S. Dry Violation.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Belle Livingstone, night club operator, was sentenced to 30 days in prison here this morning by Federal Judge Caffey. She was convicted yesterday of contempt of a Federal order prohibiting violation of the prohibition law.

The 60-year-old coiner of bon mots and conductor of the late "East Fifty-eighth Street Country Club" smiled with an effort as she was sentenced in a courtroom thronged with the curious.

Judge Caffey noted that he might, if he wished, have imposed a sentence of a year in prison and fined Miss Livingstone $500 to $1000. She will serve her sentence in the women's prison in East 121st street.

1 DROWNED, SEVERAL INJURED IN FIRE ON GLASS BOTTOM BOAT

OCALA, Fla., Feb. 6.—One man was drowned and several reported injured when a glass bottom boat caught fire from a gasoline explosion at Silver Springs, near here, today.

J. A. Perkins, 65 years old, Oak Park, Ill., met death when he jumped from another boat during the excitement, witnesses said. Occupants of the burning boat also leaped into the water but all were reported to have been rescued.

Between 15 and 20 persons were thought to have been aboard the burning boat.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 6.—Andrew J. Volstead, author of the prohibition enforcement act, was operated on for acute appendicitis last night. Dr. N. H. Scheldrup described Volstead's condition as "very favorable."

PRESIDENT DELAYS WORD ON LATEST RELIEF PLAN

Hoover Takes Time for Study of Proposal for $25,000,000 to Be Appropriated for "Farm Rehabilitation Loans."

HYDE WON OVER TO A COMPROMISE

Senators Insist Upon Clear Understanding Money Can Be Used for Food If Necessary — Lets Red Cross Out of Controversy.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—President Hoover had before him this morning, after a day of negotiation, a proposal which Administration leaders in the Senate hoped would end the long-drawn-out controversy over relief methods.

Under this formula, which went to the White House last night with the approval of Democratic and Republican leaders and of Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, $25,000,000 would be added for "farm rehabilitation loans," to the already enacted $45,000,000 bill for feed, seed and fertilizer loans.

There remained as a sticking point the interpretation of the words "farm rehabilitation." The Senate Democrats in charge of the fight for direct relief from the Treasury in the drouth areas insisted upon assurances that the words would be construed to cover loans for food and anything else needed for rehabilitation.

Secretary Hyde was understood to have accepted this construction, but the Senate Democrats wanted something more than a private oral understanding.

President Studies Plan.

President Hoover sent word to the Senators that he wanted to study the proposed compromise overnight. One of his difficulties, obviously, was with the die-hard House leaders, who have been insistent that the President stand pat against all forms of hunger relief except through voluntary subscriptions.

Hyde spent most of the day conferring with Senators and the President, and it was he who carried the laboriously drafted proposal to the White House. Until Hyde telephoned that the President wanted to consult with Attorney-General Mitchell and others, it had been hoped that the controversy would be settled and the result announced last night.

In support of their demand for an explicit public statement interpreting "rehabilitation" to mean, among other things, loans for human food, the Democratic Senators declared that Hyde had "backed water" once and they did not intend to give him a chance to do so again.

Their reference was to Hyde's statement branding the original $15,000,000 food loan item in the drouth relief bill as "dangerously close to a dole," after the Senators, as they said, had been given to understand that Hyde favored the bill as it stood.

Hyde's department would have the administration of the proposed $25,000,000 fund along with the $45,000,000 already voted. Thus the Red Cross would be let out of the controversy.

Conciliatory Attitude.

The conciliatory attitude which has marked the senatorial efforts at compromise in the past few days continues, even though the Democratic - Independent Republican coalition demonstrated firmly late yesterday that the threat to force an extra session of the next Congress unless their demands are met was far from an idle one. They registered a large majority in a vote which blocked final enactment of one of the most important of the supply bills, the appropriations for the Treasury and Postoffice Departments. The vote was 47 to 24.

A further expression of the position taken by the coalition came from Senator Borah (Rep.), Idaho, in a letter to J. S. Reitenbaugh, vice president of the S. W. Straus Co. of New York. Reitenbaugh had sent the Idahoan a recent editorial from the New York Sun opposing the stand of the Senate coalition in the controversy.

Senator Borah wrote in part: "If

GOVERNOR POINTS TO PENDING BILLS TO SHOW POLICIES

Income Tax Proposal About Only Recommendation in His Message Not Before Legislature.

ASSERTS HE WILL NOT CONDUCT LOBBY

Caulfield Says It Is Up to House and Senate to Deal With Program He Has Submitted.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 6.—Gov. Caulfield today outlined to the Post-Dispatch his views on the attitude he should maintain in dealing with the Legislature. The Governor denied vehemently and with great positiveness the truth of a story in a morning newspaper that he had no legislative program.

"My legislative program was contained in my message to the Legislature at the opening of the session," the Governor said. "Nearly all the recommendations I made to the Legislature are represented by bills now pending, and bills are being prepared to cover most of the others.

"I do not conceive it to be the province of a Governor to lobby with the Legislature, though I am always available to members of the Legislature who seek to confer with me. I have had many conferences with members of the Senate and the House and expect to have many more before the Legislature adjourns.

"In my opinion, the Governor should adhere rather strictly to the Constitution. In doing so, I gave to the Legislature my views on matters I considered of importance. The Legislature, if it agrees with those views, will pass the bills. On other matters, it will send bills to me and then I shall exercise the power vested in the Governor to approve or reject them, as in my opinion seems best.

None With "Caulfield Label."

"There will be no bills in the Legislature with the 'Caulfield label' on them, but there will be plenty of bills covering my recommendations, some of them prepared at my instance and others prepared by members of the Legislature with whom I had conferred before writing my message, and those views coincided with mine.

"I am keeping actively in touch with legislative matters and while I never shall lobby with legislators, I shall not hesitate to express my views to any member whether of the Senate or House who seeks to obtain them."

The Governor directed attention to the fact that his recommendation for legislation regulating waterpower development in the State had been covered in a bill prepared by Attorney-General Shartel and introduced in the Legislature, that a bill covering his recommendations for regulation of busses and trucks in the interest of safety on the highways had been introduced, and that other recommendations in his message, already incorporated in bills, included redistricting of the State in Congressional and Senatorial districts and for permanent registration of voters.

He said a bill for increased efficiency in handling the parole system at the penitentiary was being prepared by Dwight H. Brown, a member of the State Prison Board, and that his recommendations for increased appropriations for the Public Service Commission and for additional appropriations for the completion of the intermediate reformatory were included in the Tax Commission budget and had been presented to the House Appropriations Committee for inclusion in the appropriation bill.

"There remains a considerable portion of the legislative session, and it should not be assumed that any matter is certain to pass or certain to be killed."

About the only recommendation in the Governor's message which so far has not been put in the form of a bill and introduced in one house or the other is his recommendation for the substitution of a 2 per cent income tax for the Survey Commission's recommendation for a graduated tax reaching as high as 5½ per cent.

It is known that the Governor considered it better strategy to not have a bill introduced covering this recommendation. If sentiment supporting his ideas is sufficiently strong, the Survey Commission bill could be amended by slight amendments which could be offered in the committee, or from the floor of the House or Senate.

Survey Plan Likely to Fail

It appears now virtually certain that the survey program will pass the House, but it is by no means certain that it will pass the Senate. The indications are that in the Senate the vote will be very close, but a careful study of the Senate situation on it leads to the opinion that proponents of the plan will not be able to muster the necessary votes for it. Sentiment in the Senate appears to favor some additional taxation, and undoubtedly some Senators who oppose the huge program of the Survey Commission are willing to go as far as the Governor's recommendation.

If the Senate should stand firm against the Survey Commission, it probably could bring the House to meet it, notwithstanding the overwhelming sentiment for the larger expenditures. The Survey Commission's bill proposes to raise approximately $16,000,000 additional revenue each year. The Governor, in his plan, proposes to raise an additional $4,000,000.

There can be little doubt that the House would accept the Governor's figure rather than get nothing at all.

U. S. GRAND JURY DEMANDS INQUIRY INTO DRY FORCES

this investigation, if not ready for presentation before the discharge of this jury, that same will be carried on to a successful conclusion and presented to the next jury empaneled.

"It is the opinion of this jury that this is a very vital and necessary thing which should be carried on in the interest of our Government and our people."

Narcotic Law Enforcement.

Regarding conditions in narcotic law enforcement, the report says:

"It has come to the attention of this jury and their investigations that the Narcotic Division of the Government is seriously handicapped in the carrying on of their work due to the lack of finances and it is the opinion of this jury that every effort should be made by proper authorities to appropriate sufficient funds and place same at the disposal of the Narcotic Division to the end that these officers may clean up the terrible condition existing in this community by the peddlers of narcotics and their followers.

"We believe that we owe it to the Government and to the public at large our report on this matter that all efforts of both the Government officials and the public may be to the end of supplying sufficient finances to this department that their competent forces may be in a position to end traffic in drugs and thereby the citizens might feel greater protection to their homes and loved one."

On Letters to Grand Jury.

The grand jury, in its report, refers to the communication sent to its members by Mrs. Ford Thompson, head of the St. Louis branch of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform. Mrs. Thompson's letter urged that the grand jurors investigate the conduct of Prohibition Agent Byrd.

"We desire," the grand jury told Judge Faris, "to place in your hands the question of individuals and organizations addressing communications to members of the grand jury which might have a tendency to either influence or intimidate the jury in the carrying on of their sacred obligations. Such a communication was received by this jury and the organization which presented same and its chairman were invited to appear before the jury and lay any facts which they might have before them. The organization by invitation, which was not accepted, and the individual signing the communication sent to the jurors as chairman of the organization, was subpenaed to appear before the jury and the records of the Marshal's office will show that this individual evaded service.

"We desire to have you know," the report continues, "that every opportunity was presented and every effort made to have all individuals and organizations place any matters which they so desired before this jury and that both opportunities and efforts were wasted as they failed to take their recognition of same.

"This jury feels that it is a serious matter for individuals and organizations to address communications to every member of the jury, particularly so if communications have a bearing upon matters which are coming before the jury."

John J. Griffin, 3852 Castleman avenue, president of the International Engineering and Supply Co., was foreman of the grand jury.

Mrs. Ford W. Thompson of 4616 Pershing avenue, wife of an attorney, was told by a Post-Dispatch reporter of the reference made in the grand jury report to her letter, and the statement that a grand jury subpena was evaded by the writer.

"That is not true," she said. "I would not evade anything that is for the good of the cause. I was in Chicago several days recently, and I presume that was the time when they sought to summon me. I am delighted to hear that the grand jury condemned the records of the agents."

THREE INDICTED FOR CONSPIRACY IN INSURANCE FRAUD

Walter L. Brady, Louis L. Lussky, Lawyers, and William Jolly Accused by Federal Grand Jury.

Walter L. Brady, St. Louis attorney and adjuster for the Continental Casualty Co. of Chicago; Louis L. Lussky, a lawyer with offices in the International Life Building, and William Jolly were indicted by the Federal grand jury today for conspiracy to use the mails to defraud, growing out of a plot by which the insurance company was defrauded of several thousand dollars through claims based on fictitious accidents.

Told of Fictitious Claims.

Brady and Lussky were arrested Dec. 9 following an investigation of the alleged plot. In a signed statement Lussky, who resides at 3954A Virginia avenue, admitted a part in the scheme by which the Continental Casualty Co., was defrauded through personal injury claims based on fictitious or trivial automobile accidents.

Lussky described eight cases involving settlements of $4550, in which he says he acted as attorney for persons who said they had been injured by Hertz Drive-Yourself rented automobiles. Lussky said he effected settlements with Brady, dividing the fees with the adjuster. He entered into the scheme last June, he said, when Brady told him he "was not the only lawyer handling cases that way."

A typical case, according to Lussky, was that of two sisters, who were in an automobile which had figured in a collision with a Hertz machine. The women had no intention of claiming damages, according to Lussky, one being uninjured, and the other suffering only a slight hurt. They were persuaded to sign the necessary papers, and one claim was settled for $400 and the other for $450. The women received but $150, Lussky and Brady dividing the remainder, according to the lawyer.

Charges Against Three Men.

Brady, who is 38 years old, resides at 7042 Forsythe boulevard, and has an office in the Commercial Building, declared he was not "treated fairly" in the investigation conducted by the insurance company. He is a son of James F. Brady, former chief adjuster for the United Railways Co.

A warrant charging use of the mails to defraud was issued against Brady by the United States District Attorney before the facts were placed before the grand jury. Lussky and Jolly a claimant in one of the alleged injury cases, were charged with conspiracy to violate a law of the United States in warrants.

Senator Black Sponsers Amendment to Appropriation Bill Citing Individual Experiences.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—An amendment to the independent offices appropriation bill to prevent the Farm Board from operating on wheat or Cotton Exchanges was introduced today by Senator Black.

The Alabama Democrat, in offering the proposal, said "very few individuals can get by permanently in the wheat pit or cotton exchanges without going broke and the Government should not be allowed to do this with public money."

The appropriation bill carries a provision giving the Farm Board an additional $100,000,000.

those who are profoundly moved by the thought that it is proposed to appropriate funds from the Federal Treasury to help these people, will, instead of wasting their energy and time in an attack upon Congress, utilize that same energy and time in raising a sufficient fund to enable the Red Cross to take care of those people, I assure you, if sufficient funds are raised, the Congress of the United States will be happy to forego any appropriation. But somebody must take care of these people."

Red Cross receipts in its drouth relief campaign for $10,000,000 today totaled $6,511,971.

Arkansas Passes Loan Bill—How the Measure Works.

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 6.—The Arkansas Legislature has enacted legislation which supporters claim will make available immediately from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 in loans to drouth-stricken Arkansas farmers. Administration leaders expect the Governor to sign it.

The bill would authorize a bond issue of $1,500,000 to be used in making loans for capital stock of agricultural credit corporations. The State would loan $1,500,000 to individuals, up to $10,000 each, to be used as capital stock for the proposed credit corporations. This stock would be pledged as security to the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, supplementing the collateral that would be required from farmers' obtaining the loans.

Pending the sale of the bonds, however, the $1,500,000 would be borrowed from the State Highway Department to make the funds immediately available. The bond issue would be secured by a half-mill tax on all taxable property.

IN LINE ALL NIGHT TO BE NO. 1 ON BALLOT

Milton F. Napier Among Six Candidates to File for Board of Education.

Nominating petitions of six candidates for election to the Board of Education were filed this morning with the Board of Election Commissioners. Four are to be chosen in the municipal election April 7, and nominating petitions will be received until March 23, but could not have been filed before today.

Milton F. Napier, an attorney, was the first to file, and will have the supposed advantage that goes with having his name at the head of the ballot. He took up his post outside of the office of the election commissioners in the City Hall shortly after 11 o'clock last night to insure his position.

He was joined at 3:30 a. m. by Verne J. Bradburn, who had with him nominating petitions of Richard Murphy and Emil J. Barth, who are candidates for re-election. Barth is president of the board.

Bruno Sendlein, a merchant, 4255 North Twentieth street, arrived at 7:55 o'clock and his name will be fourth on the ballot. The first four positions are desired by candidates in the belief that some voters, ignorant of the qualifications of candidates, vote for the first four names.

Mrs. Elias Michael, another candidate for re-election, appeared shortly after 8 o'clock, accompanied by a group of women active in civic and political organizations who had been her guests at a breakfast downtown. One of them, Mrs. C. B. Faris, Democratic National Committeewoman, and wife of Federal Judge Faris, filed the petitions of John C. Tobin, an incumbent seeking re-election.

Nominating petitions bearing the names of at least 3160 qualified voters are required to place a candidate's name on the ballot. All of those who filed today had petitions with far more than the necessary names, and some did not use all of the signatures that had been obtained by their supporters.

Napier's petition had 6135 signatures; Murphy's, 21,270; Barth's, 16,764; Sendlein's, 4441; Mrs. Michael's, 5288, and Tobin's, 5175. Mrs. Michael did not use 13,000 more signatures which had been obtained by her supporters.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 6.—Gasoline tax collections for 1930 totaled $28,612,268, of which the State gets approximately $18,388,386 for hard roads, and the counties $9,194,193, G. F. Kinney, State Director of Finance announces. The counties' one-third will be allotted to them within the next few days, based on the automobile license fees each county paid.

BILL TO END CITY CONTROL OVER BUS LINES OFFERED

Measure Proposes to Put Them Under State Board—St. Louis Safe So Long as It Refuses Franchises.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 6.—A bill was introduced in the House of Representatives yesterday by two St. Louis members, designed to deprive the city of St. Louis of the control which it now exercises over bus service and fares and give that regulatory power to the State Public Service Commission.

This is another of the many efforts made by the street-car intrests of St. Louis, which also control the busses, to escape city regulation. The street car company, in two different legal proceedings, has sought a court construction of the State public service law which would put the company's busses under control of the commission. The Supreme Court ruled against the company's contentions in both cases, holding that the law clearly exempted busses operated in St. Louis from the jurisdiction of the commission.

The bill introduced yesterday would amend the State bus law.

The City's Only Chance.

However, even if the bill should pass and be approved by Gov. Caulfield and upheld by the State Supreme Court, the city would still retain power to control the busses so long as it refused to grant franchises to the operating companies. As is known, the busses have no franchises, but operate under revocable permits granted by the city's Board of Public Service. Whether the law be amended to give the State commission jurisdiction over busses or not, the city could compel obedience to any regulations as to service or fares which it laid down in its permits, because of its power to revoke those permits and to deprive the companies of the privilege of operating on the city's streets.

The bill was introduced by Representatives George W. Williams and Albert A. Huber of St. Louis. Williams declared that he had drawn the bill without request from anyone, and Huber said he simply joined Williams in introducing it. But President Meade of the Peoples Motor Bus Co., a subsidiary of J. K. Newman's holding company, City Utilities Co., which also controls the Public Service Co., operating the St. Louis street car system told the Post-Dispatch that his company had the bill drawn and turned over to Williams for introduction.

The bill provides for the addition of one article of nine sections to the State bus law. The vital section provides that all of the provisions of the Public Service Commission law applicable to street railways shall apply to motor carriers except "such as by the nature of the case cannot be applied." The effect of this section would be to give the State Commission jurisdiction over valuation, fares and operating practices of the bus lines.

Mayor and Other City Officials Oppose Bill.

Mayor Miller, when asked what he would do about the People's Motorbus Co. bill to place jurisdiction over urban busses in the hands of the State Public Service Commission, said he would instruct Harry Blodgett, the city's legislative agent at Jefferson City, to oppose it.

Members of the Board of Public Service, which issues bus permits, gave the following replies:

President Kinsey—"This is a move in a direction away from local home rule, and we've always been trying to get home rule."

Director of Public Safety Steininger—"The bill ought to be killed. I don't think the Legislature would be foolish enough to pass it, because the city is better able than the State to control busses."

OIL MAN HANGS HIMSELF

H. C. Dever of New York Associate of Coleman du Pont.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—With a noose made of bedsheets, Harvey C. Dever, vice president of an oil company in which William C. Durant, W. Cameron Forbes and T. Coleman du Pont were his associates, hanged himself in a hotel room yesterday. A telephone operator, who had rung his room several times at the request of a woman who was not identified, gave the alarm which disclosed the tragedy. Dever then had been dead about eight hours, a physician said.

Last summer Dever removed from Ardsley, a fashionable suburb, to the Pennsylvania Club and yesterday to the hotel. The Petroleum Heat & Power Co., of which he was vice president, is capitalized at $1,422,000.

Posthumous Award for Heroism.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Secretary of the Navy Adams today posthumously awarded the Navy Cross to Henry Lloyd Gustafson, radio man, second class, United States Navy. The citation said: "For extraordinary heroism in the line of his profession on the occasion of a fire which occurred in the compass house at the Farallon Islands, California, Aug. 15, 1930, in which Gustafson fought the fire and saved the compas house, but lost his life." The cross has been forwarded to the widow in Oakland, Cal.

NEW YORK BANK EMPLOYE HELD FOR $207,000 THEFT

Most of Stolen Securities Recovered; Youth Tried Gambling System in Havana.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Charles T. Pierce, a 27-year-old employe of the National City Bank, was arrested today charged with the theft of $207,000 in negotiable securities from the bank.

The District Attorney said all but $9000 of the securities had been recovered, and he expected to get back the rest. Pierce was employd in the bank's customers' securities department in Wall street. He is married and has one child. The thefts occurred early in January, it is alleged. At about that time Pierce applied for and obtained a month's leave because of ill health. The District Attorney said he went to Havana to try out a system which a friend had given him for winning money on horse races.

Pierce returned to New York three days ago and was apprehended when he tried to arrange loans on the stolen securities.

Bondsman Sentenced in Inquiry Into New York Courts.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The first prison sentence growing out of the inquiry into city magistrates' courts was imposed today when John Steiner was sent to the penitentiary for a term not exceeding three years for charging excessive bail fees.

He provided bail for Sigrid Johnson, who testified she was "framed" and convicted on a vice charge. Testimony showed he got $75 for her $500 bond. The legal rate is between $24 and $30.

than Gen. New charged you with responsibility for this lease?" Blaine asked Bartlett.

"Yes, I was charged with it then, and I have been charged with it since, although I was out of town when it was made, and knew nothing about it until I returned." Bartlett had already testified that New ordered Bartlett's name signed to the lease.

Charles F. Trotter, Bartlett's assistant, at that time placed in the official files a memorandum stating that he had signed Bartlett's name under New's orders. Bartlett declared this memorandum was in the files when he left the department. Blaine disclosed that it has disappeared.

Alluding to Raymond Brown of Indianapolis, and Kulp, the Chicago promoter, Blaine asked: "Can you tell us how these two professional bidders happened to get so many contracts for postoffice leases?" "Some of the inspectors probably were guided by what they thought was the attitude of the Postmaster-General," was the succinct reply.

DESERTED, ROBBED ON 'HONEYMOON,' HOUSEMAID SAYS

Ruth Johnson Accuses Jack Carter, With Whom She Avers She Went Through Marriage Ceremony.

DECLARES HE TIED HER TO A TRE

Then He Drove Away With Another Woman, Who She Asserts, Assisted in the Robbery.

A honeymoon which terminated when the groom turned robber binding his bride to a tree in a lonely grove near Alton Slough, St. Charles County, and driving away with another woman was described today by Ruth Johnson, 22 years old, employed as a maid in the household of Eugene J. Mudd, Bartmer avenue.

The young woman caused a warrant to be issued at St. Charles charging Jack Carter with grand larceny and robbery.

She describes Carter as a former service car driver in St. Louis.

She is trying to learn whether she is legally married. She received no certificate and the ceremony was performed Saturday night in a Morgan street hotel by a man she does not know but supposed at the time to be a Justice of the Peace.

Tells of Robbery.

On a trip to St. Charles County the next night, she related, Carter knocked her down, tied her to a tree, who to find a friend who never appeared. her wrist watch. Then they left her. She freed herself in two hours and walked to a house spent the rest of the night and next morning telephoned her employer for help.

Accompanied by a woman who gave her name as Ruth Johnson but who resembled the description later given by the maid as that of the woman who witnessed her robbery, Carter obtained a marriage license at St. Charles Saturday morning.

Ruth Johnson called up County Recorder Kansteiner Sunday morning being honeymoon trip, and inquired about a marriage license. Kansteiner advised a marriage certificate.

Says Wedding Took Place in Hotel.

The young woman said had known Carter about six years. He called for her Saturday night, she said, and where the ceremony was performed of employment, where she lived immediately afterward, she said.

"We started on what I thought was our honeymoon Sunday night," she said, "and Jack suggested stopping by a hotel and getting the other girl, whom I I met her there.

"We got her and then we drove to Alton Slough to get a friend of hers, who in the Mississippi River. Jack and the other girl were drinking, and they urged me to drink, but I did not drink.

"We finally left the car on a road and walked towards the river. We got in a grove of willows. Jack knocked me down, tied me to a tree and he took my watch and money and drove away with my suitcase."

An investigation by Sheriff Grothe of St. Charles County resulted in the discovery of pieces of rope in the grove where the maid later the superintendent by river crew reported finding the vicinity a string of beads gloves belonging to the maid.

DESERTED, ROBBED ON 'HONEYMOON,' HOUSEMAID SAYS

Ruth Johnson Accuses Jack Carter, With Whom She Avers She Went Through Marriage Ceremony.

DECLARES HE TIED HER TO A TREE

Then He Drove Away With Another Woman, Who, She Asserts, Assisted in the Robbery.

A honeymoon which terminated when the groom turned robber, binding his bride to a tree in a lonely grove near Alton Slough, St. Charles County, and driving away with another woman was described today by Ruth Johnson, 23 years old, employed as a maid in the household of Eugene J. Mudd, 5357 Bartmer avenue.

The young woman caused a warrant to be issued at St. Charles charging Jack Carter with grand larceny and robbery.

She describes Carter as a former service car driver in St. Louis, 27 years old.

She is trying to learn whether she is legally married. She received no certificate and the ceremony was performed Saturday night in a Morgan street hotel by a man she does not know but supposed at the time to be a Justice of the Peace.

Tells of Robbery.

On a trip to St. Charles County the next night, she related, Carter knocked her down, tied her to a tree, assisted by another woman who accompanied them ostensibly to find a friend who never appeared, and robbed her of $120 and her wrist watch. Then they left her. She freed herself in about two hours, made her way to a house occupied by a Negro family, spent the rest of the night there, and next morning telephoned her employer for help.

Accompanied by a woman who gave her name as Ruth Johnson, but who resembled the description later given by the maid as that of the woman who witnessed her robbery, Carter obtained a marriage license at St. Charles Saturday morning.

Ruth Johnson called up County Recorder Kansteiner Sunday morning before starting on her honeymoon trip, and inquired about the marriage license. Kansteiner advised her to make Carter produce a marriage certificate.

Says Wedding Took Place in Hotel.

The young woman said today she had known Carter about six years. He called for her Saturday night, she said, and took her to the hotel, where the ceremony was performed. She returned to her place of employment, where she lives, immediately afterward, she said.

"We started on what I thought was our honeymoon Sunday night," she said, "and Jack suggested stopping by a hotel and getting another girl, whom I knew slightly. I met her last summer.

"We got her and then we drove to Alton Slough to get a friend of hers, who, they said, was on a boat in the Mississippi River. Jack and the other girl were drinking, and they urged me to drink, but I don't drink.

"We finally left the car on a dirt road and walked towards the river. We got in a grove of willows. Jack knocked me down, tied me to a tree and the woman gagged me. Then he took my watch and money and drove away with my suitcase."

An investigation by Sheriff Grothe of St. Charles County, resulted in the discovery of some pieces of rope in the grove where the maid said she was tied and later the superintendent of a nearby river crew reported finding in the vicinity a string of beads and gloves belonging to the maid.

G. B. O'REILLY RE-ELECTED HUMANE SOCIETY PRESIDENT

Gerald B. O'Reilly was re-elected president of the Humane Society of Missouri, at the annual meeting of the organization yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Statler. Mrs. George W. Pieksen was re-elected vice president, and five new directors were named. They are: Mrs. Norman I. Bailey, John J. Dowling, Mrs. Fred Glarner, Miss Nellie Ryan and Mrs. Hulda M. Uhl. Other directors were re-elected.

The financial report covering last year's receipts and disbursements indicated the society received $23,711 and spent $28,566. A deficit of $4855 was reduced through a gift of $2000 from Miss Mary Mitchell, member of the board of directors. Lack of funds prevents the Humane Society from co-operating with the Red Cross in furnishing relief to suffering livestock in the Missouri drouth area, Robert F. Sellar, executive secretary of the society, said.

CLAWED COMEDIAN

MISS KATHLEEN KEY,

WHO fought with Buster Keaton after a dispute over money which he says she wanted from him.

BUSTER KEATON SAYS ACTRESS STARTED FIGHT OVER MONEY

Declares He Gave Kathleen Key $5000 Check, but She Demanded $20,000.

By the Associated Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 6.—Hollywood is awaiting developments in the Buster Keaton-Kathleen Key imbroglio.

Kathleen is "out of the city for a few days," according to her maid.

Miss Key, who invaded the comedian's studio dressing room Wednesday, was very effective in the clinches, according to Keaton.

The movie funny man said Kathleen made exorbitant demands for money, even asking for more than Keaton offered her—$4000 to pay off her debts and $1000 to take her "to China or some place—any place."

Miss Key wanted $20,000 or fight, Keaton complained, and when he refused to give it she lost her temper. Cliff Edwards, better known as Ukelele Ike, and Clarence Locan, publicity man, were present when Miss Key entered the room. Buster said Edwards and Locan fled when Miss Key began to fight.

"It all started," said Keaton, "when we made a bet. She bet me $500 she could reduce 20 pounds in 10 days, when I told her she was overweight for pictures. She reduced six pounds and I didn't argue over the other 14, but paid the $500 bet anyway. Then she demanded more and I gave her a check for the $5000, $1000 of which I hoped would be used solely for transportation."

we came in on them," he said, "and I was angry because they seemed pretty well lit up. Florentine went in her bedroom and acted kind of funny." Mrs. Stevens had quoted her father as saying on this occasion that he would take everything away from her and make Miss Stolte mistress of the home.

For about a month before Dr. and Mrs. Stevens moved, he said, Stevens would not speak to him. "I came home on Feb. 11, 1930," he related, and found them gone and the furniture, too. Only a bed, a dresser, and my clothes were left."

He denied under cross-examination that he had moved the furniture himself.

"But you did move some whisky?" he was asked. "I found some there but threw it in the ashpit."

"You threw it away?" echoed his daughter's lawyer as the daughter smiled. "Yes, sir, it looked bad."

Rutkowski was questioned concerning trips he made with Miss Stolte to Washington and to his farm on the Current River. The witness told of two trips he made to Washington with his fiancee, responding to a question by counsel for his daughter as to whether a third person had accompanied them, "we did not need anyone else." They spent several holidays together at the Current River farm, and also at the Meramec River, Rutkowski testified.

Ask about visits of Miss Stolte to the Waterman avenue apartment during the absence of Mrs. Stevens and her husband, Kutkowski replied, "When we felt like spending the evening there we did. It was my home."

Asked if it was not the practice of Mrs. Stevens to ring the doorbell on evenings when she came home and knew that Miss Stolte was in the apartment, instead of using a latch key, Rutkowski answered, "You will have to ask her that."

Rutkowski's Rise.

Rutkowski said his daughter had been friendly to Miss Stolte at first, inviting her to her wedding and at one time considering opening a hat shop with her. He met Miss Stolte five years ago, he said, but had not taken her out until after his daughter's marriage. Miss Stolte said she became engaged to Rutkowski in October, 1929.

Rutkowski, former mechanic, established his own business more than 10 years ago with the late William Cullen as partner. The first can machine was made at Rutkowski's home and the business was conducted in a small iron shed. The only employes were the partners and their wives. The business now has more than 100 employes. The stock in question represents a third interest in the company.

BURNED TO DEATH WHILE FIXING AUTO IN LOCKED GARAGE

John Cook Victim of Fire in Shop at 2225 Wash Street—Alone in Place at the Time.

Locked in an automobile painting shop and garage at 2225 Wash street, John Cook, proprietor of the place, was burned to death shortly after 5:30 o'clock last night, in a fire that destroyed Cook's automobile and did little other damage.

So badly burned was the body that positive identification could not be made by Cook's relatives. They are awaiting the return of Dr. Travis Kallenbach, a son-in-law, who made Cook's false teeth.

Firemen who investigated after extinguishing the flames, expressed the opinion that the fire had been started by a short circuit in Cook's automobile. The body was found in the front compartment of the burned car, a Studebaker sedan. There were tools on the seat and running board and the floorboards had been removed, indicating that Cook was at work on the car when it caught fire.

Why Door Was Locked.

Neighbors explained that Cook's employes leave the shop at 4:30 p. m., and that when Cook remained, it was his custom to keep the place locked for fear of robbers. He had operated the shop for 40 years, starting at the age of 19 to follow his father's trade, carriage making.

Cook, who lived at 5351 Bartmer avenue, is survived by his widow, Mrs. Anna Mary Cook, four daughters, Mrs. Jules Gwinner of Webster Groves; Mrs. John W. Enloe, Mrs. Brice R. Smith and Mrs. Travis Kallenbach of St. Louis; and one son, Clifford J. Cook, manager of the Continental Hotel at Washington. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Four Persons Severely Burned When Home Catches Fire.

Four persons, trapped by fire on the second floor of their home at 2901 North Spring avenue, were severely burned fighting their way through the flames last night.

They were: Edmund L. Schimmel; his wife, Esther; their son, Moril, 3, and Mrs. Schimmel's son, Philip Kantner, 18.

Mrs. Schimmel, who rose at 11:30 p. m. to give medicine to her daughter, found the house full of smoke. She screamed, awakening the other members of the family, who tried to escape down the back stairs, but found their path blocked by flames. They hastened to the front stairway and ran down through the flames there.

Schimmel suffered burns of the face and hands, Mrs. Schimmel burns on the face and right arm, Philip burns of the hands, face and neck, and the baby burns on the hands and face. A neighbor called firemen, who arrived as members of the family were being taken to City Hospital.

The fire, thought to have been started by an overheated furnace, caused estimated damage of $800 to the building and $200 to the contents.

Preceded by an explosion at 1 a. m. today, fire did damage estimated at $300 to the Enterprise Grocery and Market, 1926 North Fourteenth street. The store is owned by Mrs. Eva Rosenbloom, 5635 Cates avenue. Policemen who were nearby and heard the explosion are investigating.

"FLABBERGASTED" BY $15,628 BILL AT GAMBLING CLUB

that a blue chip on one night might be worth 50 cents and on the next night the same chip might represent $50. To enable the player to keep an account of how he stands a token is placed in a cup before him each time he obtains a new supply of chips. The token has stamped on it the cost of the chips.

"Then on a credit basis the only way of determining the amount due at any one time is by consulting the markers in the cup and the designations on them?" Green asked. Handlan replied that it was.

"On the night of Feb. 1, 1930, did you at any time check up the cup to see the exact amount of credit that had been extended to you?" "No, sir," Handlan answered. "I knew that each chip in the cup would be $20."

"On the assumption that the markers were for not more than $20 each, you would say there was not more than $300 in the cup?" "Yes, sir."

"But you didn't look to see whether they were $20 markers or $1000 markers?" "That is correct."

"And you wouldn't say that there were not a large number of $1000 markers in the cup?" "I couldn't say that there was not," Handlan answered, "because I did not look at them."

Karger, whose deposition has been taken previously, testified Handlan was using $1, $5 and $25 chips to play his system, and that when he had lost $5000, asked that his credit be extended to $10,000. It was extended again to $15,000, Karger said, and then at 3 o'clock in the morning, after seven hours at the wheel, Handlan quit and gave him the note, telling him that he did not have enough money in his checking accounts, but that he would take up the note when he returned to St. Louis, Karger testified.

Drives Four Miles a Minute For New Auto Speed Record

Capt. Malcolm Campbell, Englishman, Makes 245 Miles an Hour—Also Sets New Mark for Small Cars.

By the Associated Press.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 6. Capt. Malcolm Campbell, who yesterday established a world automobile speed record of 245.733 miles an hour, announced today he would make no further trials in his Bluebird racing car before returning to England. He may leave for home some time next week.

Campbell, who is 46 years old, said last night he was not satisfied with his newly established record and intimated he might try to raise the mark above 245 miles an hour before returning to England. Today, however, he said he had abandoned such plans.

Campbell today established a new world's speed record of 94.031 miles an hour for automobiles with a piston displacement less than 45 cubic inches. The previous record was 87.76.

Campbell is the only man now living who has attained a speed on land of more than 200 miles an hour. The rest, Ray Keech, Sir H. O. D. Segrave, Lee Bible and Frank Lockhart, have met death behind the wheel, Segrave while trying for a water speed mark in England.

It was Segrave's record of 231 miles an hour that Campbell beat yesterday. Segrave had claimed it from Keech. Bible and Lockhart died on Daytona sands, while Keech lost his life racing at Altoona.

Campbell shrugs his shoulders when danger is mentioned. His runs yesterday gave him a great thrill, he said. The best sensation came when he shifted from second into high gear.

"That feeling was wonderful," he said. "A most wonderful sensation—as the car carried me away with it in that tremendous burst of speed. Really words cannot describe that wonderful sensation."

On the first run Campbell flashed through the measured mile at a speed of 246.575 miles an hour. He returned and was clocked at 244.897 miles an hour. Two runs are necessary for an official record, the mark being the average of the two speeds.

Despite soft places in the sand left by a receding tide, the car held the course like a bullet. Campbell said a big thrill came on the south run when the car took a bad swing as he swerved to miss a soft spot. He couldn't afford to take his foot off the accelerator because he would lose speed, so he held it down and the machine straightened out neatly.

So great was the speed of the machine that photographers sighting a mile away, barely had time to take focus and snap their films before it flashed by.

Campbell dared another hazard in order to be certain he would make his runs within the required time. At all other speed attempts, the tires, subjected to terrific strain, have been changed after the first run. Campbell's tires were hard to change and he feared he could not manage it within the 30 minutes allowed. So he simply turned and ran back on the same tires.

MRS. CYRUS M'CORMICK JR. FILES SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Mrs. Dorothy Linn McCormick has filed suit for divorce from Cyrus McCormick Jr., vice president of the International Harvester Co. He is a millionaire several times and the eldest representative of the third generation of the harvester family, and a writer of some good verse. His wife accuses him of cruelty in hurting her several times.

Mrs. McCormick was Dorothy Caroline Linn, daughter of William R. Linn, a successful Board of Trade operator. She studied for the stage and appeared in the Stockbridge, Mass., stock company last summer as Dorothy Willard.

She aroused much curiosity here and in New York in June, 1926, by stepping from a steamer, engaging a special Pennsylvania train at a cost of $7000 and speeding to Chicago at 70 miles an hour. She is a prominent member of the Christian Science Church, and explained that she engaged the train to catch the last session of an international conference of her church.

McCormick is a Princeton University graduate. He also attended Oxford University in England. During the World War he served the United States in the aviation corps.

They were married Feb. 13, 1919, and, according to the bill, separated May 26 last. For months rumors had been prevalent that they had separated, but they were denied.

SOME CITY EMPLOYES TO PAY INCOME TAX

U. S. Revenue Collector Makes Announcement Based on Court Decision.

Heads of certain city departments which have functions considered by the United States Supreme Court in a recent decision to be beyond the ordinary duties of government have been notified by Collector of Internal Revenue Becker that their employes will be required to file Federal income tax returns in accordance with general regulations on that subject.

The decision is expected to affect employes of the waterworks, city hospitals, parks and playgrounds, and the harbor office. Previously salaries of all city employes have been exempt from the Federal income tax.

Because salaries of city employes usually are not large, it is probable that the tax to be paid will not be great. In the Water Department there are 125 employes who receive salaries large enough to require them to file Federal income tax returns, that is, $1500 or more for single workers, or $3500 for married workers. In the division of parks and playgrounds, Commissioner Pape is the only one who receives more than $3500, and he believes that very few of those who receive more than $1500 are single and so subject to the tax. The harbor office has very few employes and not many will be affected at the city hospitals.

The Supreme Court decision which resulted in the changed policy was given in the case of Flint vs. Stone Tracy Co. In it the Court said:

"It is no part of the essential governmental functions of a State to provide means of transportation, supply artificial light, water and the like. These objects often are accomplished through the medium of private corporations. For the purposes of taxation they stand on the same ground as other private corporations upon which special franchises have been conferred.

"The true distinction is between the attempted taxation of those operations of the states essential to the execution of its governmental functions and which the State can only do itself and those which are of a private character. The latter, although regulated by the state and exercising delegated authority such as the right of eminent domain, are not removed from the field of legitimate Federal taxation."

The decision says its view may be applied as well to waterworks, light and power supply and street railways—that their operation "is not an ordinary function of government, although they may be a public necessity." Parks, playgrounds, harbors and wharfs are mentioned also as beyond the usual duties of government, and hospitals, where their use is not limited exclusively to charitable purposes. Some patients admitted to St. Louis city hospitals pay fees if they are able to do so.

POLICE SURGEON HELD AFTER WOMAN'S DEATH

Dr. G. W. Becker Arrested for Questioning About Illegal Operation.

Dr. George W. Becker, chief surgeon for the police department, was arrested today for questioning at the direction of Assistant Circuit Attorney Lennon after Roy Mitchell, an automobile mechanic, 1605 Missouri avenue, described witnessing an illegal operation on his wife last Jan. 18.

Dr. Becker was released under $5000 bond. He said he did not care to make a statement.

Mrs. Mitchell died yesterday at City Hospital of blood poisoning following an illegal operation, according to the hospital's notation.

As soon as Mitchell told his story to Coroner Dever and Lennon an inquest was called and he repeated his account before a jury. The inquest was continued then until tomorrow and Dr. Becker, who lives at 1111 Dover place and has an office at 3115 South Grand boulevard, has been ordered to appear then.

After the operation, Miller testified, his wife became so ill that he telephoned Dr. Becker who replied he could not come.

Dr. Becker later came to attend his wife, he said. Mrs. Mitchell became very ill yesterday morning, the husband testified, and he called Dr. Becker, who declined to come. Another doctor afforded her some relief, Mitchell testified, but later her condition became such that he telephoned Dr. Becker, who sent an ambulance which took her to City Hospital.

Dr. Becker has been chief surgeon of the police department in charge of the medical staff for two years and was a member of the staff for eight years prior to his appointment as chief surgeon. He was an unsuccessful Republican candidate for Coroner at the last election.

DEFENSE PRESENTED BY BISHOP CANNON

Hearing of Charges Nears End —If They Are Upheld Suspension Will Follow.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The hearing of charges against Bishop James Cannon Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, neared an end tonight.

Testimony aimed at the personal character of the bishop has been introduced inside the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church before the 12 ministers investigating the charges. Documents reflecting on his conduct have been identified by witnesses as furnished by Mrs. Helen McAllum, who later became Bishop Cannon's second wife.

The accused bishop presented his defense today in a morning and afternoon session and tonight the 12 ministers are expected to begin their deliberations on their verdict. If five of them find that the charges have no weight, the bishop will be cleared, but if eight believe them to be true, he will be suspended and brought to trial before the general conference of the church in 1934.

Dr. Eugene Crawford, an associate of Bishop Cannon on the Board of Temperance of the church, was the only witness to appear today. A handwriting expert, Burt Ferrar, of Washington, went into the church and stayed for an hour, but was not called before the committee.

The major charges against Cannon have been presented in writing. Information from within the church was to the effect that an affidavit signed by the second Mrs. Cannon, is among the exhibits as well as a 26-page document signed and sworn to by a friend of Mrs. Cannon.

The bishop came to the church again today on crutches. Members of his family said he was standing the strain of the 15-hour daily sessions remarkably well. He spends each night in Sibley Hospital, where for two months this winter he was confined with arthritis.

LOAN FIRM IN RECEIVERSHIP

Two Attorneys Named by Court to Administer Affairs.

Edward K. Schwartz and Walter L. Roos, attorneys, were appointed receivers for the Odessa Loan & Investment Association by Circuit Judge Hartmann yesterday. The action was taken on petition of two stockholders, who alleged that the liabilities of the company exceeded its current assets. Counsel representing the company consented to the receivership.

Until recently the office of the association was in the shoe store of its secretary, M. Stein, 1451 Chouteau avenue. The Court appointed Hugh K. Wagner and J. S. Gollub as attorneys for the receivers.

WOMAN JUDGE BEFORE GRAFT INVESTIGATORS

Once Held Stock in Concern Which Furnished Bail Bonds.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Magistrate Jean Norris, New York's first woman Judge, who was put on the bench largely to temper the judgments of Women's Court with feminine understanding, spent more than two hours yesterday privately explaining things to the Kresel-Seabury investigators—particularly the matter of her ownership of stock in a bonding company.

"I have nothing to say," said the usually talkative Magistrate when she emerged.

Records of the State Banking Department show that on Jan. 30, 1929, Magistrate Norris purchased 50 shares of the Equitable Casualty and Surety Co., and on Dec. 15, 1929, she purchased 15 more. She sold her 65 shares Jan. 13, 1930, at which time a merger between the Equitable and the Capital City Surety Co. was being negotiated. This merger fell through when the State Insurance Superintendent failed to approve it, and the Equitable, which formerly did a large proportion of the bail business, is now being liquidated by his orders. Magistrate Norris was questioned by Jacob Gould Schurman Jr., it is understood specifically, about six cases in which defendants before her were bailed by the Equitable and also about numerous prohibition bonds which she signed at night at her home in the Martha Washington Hotel.

The law prohibits her from acting in any judicial proceedings in which she has an interest, and it is said that the courts have held the signing of a bail bond to be a judicial proceeding.

James Graff, bondsman, who represented the Equitable, and whose mother is said to be a close friend of the Magistrate, has been questioned several times by the investigators. Graff was the bondsman and the Equitable was the company involved in the case described Wednesday by the bogus lawyer and convict, Joseph Wolfman, who told that he and Albert Kurtz, then a Deputy Assistant District Attorney, persuaded Magistrate Norris to reinstatae a $1500 forfeited bail bond and then split the $1500 between them.

That sum, Wolfman said, was a "fee" consigned to them by Stephen Denchoff, the prisoner in the case, who was a fugitive from California. He told that the deal was made in Kurtz's home. Wolfman said they represented to the Magistrate that Denchoff had been kidnaped by a bondsman and taken back West. Denchoff, alias Lodi, was killed here recently by two private detectives.

Former District Attorney Joab H. Banton, who was Kurtz's superior, issued a statement yesterday in which he defended his former deputy and declared that the case was handled "strictly according to law and in keeping with good conscience."

SUES FOR DIVORCE, ALLEGING HUSBAND TRIED TO KILL HER

Wife of H. T. Ray, in Bill Filed at Miami, Fla., Asks for $2000 Alimony a Month.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 6.—Charges that Harold T. Ray, wealthy retired Chicago business man, threatened to kill her and to burn her yacht and automobile are contained in a suit for divorce filed yesterday for Mrs. Ray. She asks for alimony of $2000 a month.

Circuit Judge Uly O. Thompson issued an order restraining Ray from molesting his wife or her property. The order was served on Ray in jail, where he was held on charges of drunkenness.

In her bill of complaint, Mrs. Ray said they were married Jan. 9, 1926, at Crown Point, Ind., and alleged Ray had mistreated her since eight months after that time. She left Ray in 1930, she asserts, but returned to him when a reconciliation was affected.

She charges he beat her with his fists at a dance at Hot Springs, Ark., and again at Dallas, Tex. The bill also alleges he falsely accused her of misconduct.

TWO SETS OF TRIPLETS, GIRLS

Anonymous Benefactor and City of Antwerp Aiding Them.

By the Associated Press.

AUTOMOBILE SHOW AT ARENA ENTERS FINAL TWO DAYS

Exhibits, Including 285 Passenger Cars, to Remain in Place Until 11 Tomorrow Night.

The twenty-fourth annual St. Louis Automobile Show will close tomorrow night at The Arena. Exhibits, which include 285 passenger automobiles, all of them the latest models, as well as commercial vehicles, will remain on display until 11 p. m.

Attendance at the show yesterday totaled 21,517. The total paid attendance of the exhibition, which opened Sunday afternoon, was announced today as 74,098, which does not include about 20,000 school children admitted free Monday afternoon. Although the average daily attendance figures have fallen below last year's mark, with the exception of Monday, they have exceeded most of the records set in previous years.

The final dealers' meetings of the show will be held today and tomorrow.

Oakland and Pontiac representatives met today at the Coronado Hotel and will hold a banquet tonight. Speakers include W. A. Blees, vice president in charge of sales of the Oakland company, marking the eleventh such meeting in a series of 23 over the country he has addressed. Dealers from Missouri, Illinois, Arkansas and Kentucky will attend.

A sales presentation program will be given on a special stage this afternoon and motion pictures will be shown. Every phase of production and distribution will be illustrated.

J. W. Frazer, general sales manager of the Chrysler Corporation, spoke at a dealers' meeting at the Coronodo Hotel yesterday.

Hupmobile dealers met at the Marquette Hotel, I. M Kauffelt, assistant sales manager of the Hupp Motor Car Corporation, delivering the principal address.

KILLS EMPLOYER IN OFFICE AND THEN ENDS HIS LIFE

New York Man Who Lost in Stock Market Had Quarreled With Superior.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Dismissing his stenographer so he could "speak privately to the boss," Andrew Lenahan, office manager of the Royal Railway Supply Co., walked into the office of the vice president, William H. Sauvage, on the sixteenth floor at 90 West street yesterday afternoon, killed him with two bullets in the head, then shot himself, dying soon afterward.

Sauvage was 58 years old and Lenahan 45.

Mrs. Mary Farrell, the stenographer, told police the men had quarreled frequently during the past fortnight, and Lenahan had been acting queerly.

In Lenahan's pocket was a letter addressed to his wife on the back of which he had written: "The end has come. I'm sick, heartbroken and have been fooled into this terrible end by the big shot. The future has nothing for me now."

Police said that Lenahan had lost money in the stock market.

SUSPECT IN KIDNAPING OF GRACE BUDD RELEASED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb.6.—The charge against Albert Edward Corthell, arrested in St. Louis two months ago after being sought two years in the kidnaping of 10-year-old Grace Budd, were dismissed by General Sessions Judge Allen yesterday on recommendation of the District Attorney's office.

Neither police nor the missing girl's parents, Albert and Delia Budd, knew of the action until after Corthell had been freed, nor had they been consulted in the investigation of the case made by District Attorney Crain's office. Mrs. Budd announced she would call on Crain and demand an explanation. Assistant District Attorney John MacDonnell mado the request for dismissal because of lack of evidence, he told the Court.

A former convict and self-styled physician, Corthell, who is 60, was arraigned Dec. 18 and pleaded not guilty of the kidnaping of the girl, June 3, 1928. A few days prior to his arraignment both Mr. and Mrs. Budd had picked him out of a police lineup as a man who "looks like" the farmer named Howard with whom their daughter was last seen. Howard was one of the half dozen aliases Corthell had used, according to police.

CHARGES EINSTEIN PURLOINED NEW THEORY

Los Angeles Man Sues Scientist Under Copyright Law and Seeks Damages.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 6.—Ira D. Edwards, who described himself as a physicist, filed an action in Federal Court today against Prof. Albert Einstein of Berlin, charging infringement of the copyright laws.

Edwards charged that Dr. Einstein, father of relativity, "lifted the unified field theory" from a book copyrighted and published by Edwards Nov. 29, 1929, entitled "The Why and Wherefore of Things."

The complaint asked for a permanent injunction prohibiting Einstein from further use, either in lectures or writing of the theory, for damages set by the court, for costs of the action and requested that Dr. Einstein, who is visiting in Pasadena be summoned to answer the suit.

Edwards alleged that the theory was original with him and was developed after 25 years of study. He accused Einstein of illegally claiming authorship of the theory and doing irreparable damage to the plaintiff by "widely publicising it as his own."

The suit was filed by Edwards, who acted as his own attorney.

Dr. Einstein, when informed of the suit, said: "I never heard the name before." He showed no interest in the matter.

FOOD DISTRIBUTION TOMORROW

Baskets of food will be distributed tomorrow by Welcome Inn and Charities Income, a volunteer welfare organization, with the co-operation of the Police Department, to the list of 6200 families on the police emergency relief roster.

All baskets will be distributed at the various police stations with the exception of the Central District. Families living in the Central District may receive their baskets at the Welcome Inn, 918 South Fourth street.

BISHOP'S SON FREED IN KILLING IN BRAWL

Crowd in New York Court Cheers When Verdict Is Returned.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—James Matthew Maxon Jr., son of the Episcopal Coadjustor Bishop of Tennessee, was found not guilty last night of the killing of David Paynter, 73 years old, in a rooming house here last Good Friday.

The jury spent less than three hours in deliberation. A little after 6 p. m. it came into court to have some of Samuel Ecclesin's testimony reread. Ecclesin, one of the State's leading witnesses, had told a graphic story of how he saw young Maxon, crazed with drink, beat, kick and knock the old man into insensibility.

A few minutes later the jury notified Judge Donnellan it had reached a verdict.

Young Maxon looked nervous and ill as the jury filed into the room. Bishop Maxon, who sat throughout the trial in the front row, looked straight ahead.

"Not guilty!" the foreman informed the court. And then spectators clapped and cheered. Young Maxon seemed stunned for a moment, but quickly recovered himself. As soon as he could get free from his well wishers he went over to his father and kissed him.

Under the instructions of the court the jury could acquit or convict on charges of second degree murder, first degree manslaughter or second degree manslaughter in the death of 73-year-old David Paynter.

Young Maxon's plans for the future are unsettled, he said, but he thought he would accompany his father to Tennessee today. Later he will go into newspaper work. Maxon was a student in the School of Journalism at Columbia University when Paynter was killed.

MENINGITIS CARRIERS SOUGHT

U. S. Starts Investigation After 6 Deaths at Christmas, Ariz.

By the Associated Press.

CHRISTMAS, Ariz., Feb. 6.—United States Health Department officers have begun a systematic search here for carriers of cerebro spinal meningitis, planning to make tests of the spinal fluid of every resident of this little mining camp. The disease has caused the deaths of six persons of the less than 1000 living here since Jan. 1 and Christmas is under a strict quarantine.

Four carriers of the germ which produces the disease have been found, and isolated. Only supply trucks and medical authorities are allowed to enter Christmas. Schools, theaters, churches and all other gathering places are closed.

FABRICIUS MERCANTILE CO. ASSETS TO BE AUCTIONED

Court Authorizes Receivers to Dispose of Stock; $9000 Legal Fees Allowed.

A decree was entered by Circuit Judge Hartmann yesterday authorizing the receivers of Fabricius Mercantile Co., 1828 Washington avenue, which has been in existence 74 years, to cease operating the business and auction the remaining assets. The receivers are Henri Chouteau and Harry S. Gleick, who were appointed last Nov. 26 on petition of a stockholder.

A creditor with a claim for $10,000 asked that the property be sold, asserting continued operation of the business would cause additional loss. A total of $9000 in legal fees has been allowed on account of the receivership.

The Fabricius Co., a jobbing firm, specialized in the sale of toys and other merchandise. Its president in recent years was Herman Fabricius.

COUNTIES DRAWING ON THE RED CROSS INCREASE TO 735

This Is Change of 26 Since Last Sunday — Further Aid Not Needed in New Mexico.

The number of states with drouth sufferers dependent on the Red Cross has been reduced to 20, William M. Baxter Jr., manager of the Midwestern area, announced today.

New Mexico, with one county which has required aid, has recovered to the point where outside relief activities may be withdrawn. The number of counties where families are drawing upon the Red Cross for food, and in many cases for clothing and stock feed as well, has risen to 735, however, from 709 last Sunday.

They include 39 counties in Alabama, 37 in Tennessee, two in Georgia, 61 in Virginia, 23 in Indiana, 37 in West Virginia, 116 in Kentucky, 75 in Arkansas, 34 in Louisiana, 24 in Illinois, nine in Maryland, 34 in Missouri, 65 in Mississippi, 13 in Montana, nine in North Carolina, three in North Dakota, 33 in Ohio, 50 in Oklahoma, three in Pennsylvania and 68 in Texas.

With the national total of contributions reaching $6,198,623, Baxter expressed confidence that the American people would provide the $10,000,000 fund sought by the American Red Cross to prevent suffering and starvation. He said Fort Worth had reached its $28,000 quota, and New York, with a quota of $1,500,000, was "in sight" of it.

St. Louis contributions toward a quota of $220,000 were $124,214. St. Louisans are sending gifts to Oliver F. Richards, treasurer, Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co., Eighth and Locust streets.

ACCUSES COL. LUKE LEA OF 'KITING' BANK FUNDS

State Superintendent Appears Before Hearing of Tennessee Legislative Committee.

By the Associated Press.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 6.—Affairs of the closed Liberty Bank & Trust Co. of Nashville today were under scrutiny of a legislative investigation which had testimony from D. D. Robertson, State Superintendent of Banks, regarding "kiting" about the time the institution failed last November.

Robertson said: "Yes, there had been a kite through the bank for several months, but I haven't the particulars."

To the question "who seemed to have been the participants in that kite?" he replied: "Col. Lea and his son." Col. Luke Lea is a Nashville newspaper publisher.

Previously Robertson had testified Lea was "instrumental in his appointment" as superintendent of banks.

Inquiry was made of Robertson about a Chancery Court suit he had filed against Col. Lea and others, seeking judgment for approximately $160,000 alleged to be due the bank from them. The suit averred Lea and R. E. Donnell, late president of the Liberty Bank, had "dominated" its affairs and used the bank to promote their own gains. "Dummy" corporations were organized to further this plan, Robertson alleged. Donnell committed suicide shortly after the bank failed.

Robertson agreed with Robert L. McReynolds, committee questioner, that the purpose of "dummy" corporations was to conceal from the banking department the names of those receiving the benefits of loans.

North Missouri Relief Loans.

TRENTON, Mo., Feb. 6.—J. N. Martin, treasurer of the North Missouri Agricultural Credit Corporation, says that six counties in the territory have been included in the drouth-stricken area of Missouri that will receive loans from the Government's $45,000,000 appropriation. Grundy, Mercer, Sullivan, Harrison, Putnam and Daviess counties are included in the territory served by the corporation.

After-Meal Discomfort Relieved

For Acidity & Dyspepsia

Attacks of heartburn, pain from acidity no longer bother Frank Hall of Youngstown, Ohio, who says "ACIDINE has helped me very much. I had been annoyed with acidity of the stomach and heartburn. These attacks, coming about one hour after eating, I find, as you advertise, that I can eat many things I wish, and eat heartily; then use ACIDINE and have no ill effect."

Almost everyone who takes ACIDINE raves about it. More than two million packages have been sold. It's absolutely amazing the way this prescription succeeds when many other remedies fail.

ACIDINE contains Iaptase, which in laboratory tests, digests 800 times its weight of starch, often the cause of such trouble. It neutralizes acids, soothes irritated stomach linings, relieves gassy headaches, sleeplessness and nervousness. Few other known remedies contain this combination to relieve acid stomach. ACIDINE also fortifies your resistance by reducing acidity.

Get ACIDINE today at Walgreen's. Watch how quick acid indigestion, burning stomach, pain, heartburn, dizziness, fullness, short breath are relieved. Maker refunds money if not delighted.

SEVEN STATE SENATORS FOR ST. LOUIS LIKELY

Redistricting Bill Expected to Provide One Additional Because of G. O. P. Rule.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 6.—The St. Louis habit of consistently electing Republicans to office probably will cost that city one State Senator in the redistricting bill on which a subcommittee of the Elections Committee of the Senate is working. Under any bill which is likely to come from the committee St. Louis will be accorded seven Senators, an increase of one, instead of eight Senators, as it generally has been expected the city would get under redistricting.

The Senate and House are Democratic and the disposition among the Democratic Legislators is to give Republican territory no greater representation than they are compelled to and still maintain an appearance of fairness.

On a division of the State into 34 districts of equal population, each would have 106,746 inhabitants. If St. Louis should be divided into eight districts each would have 102,745, or approximately 4000 less than the State average. If divided into seven districts, each would have 117,423, or 14,678 more than the State average.

If St. Louis was classed as a Democratic city, there would be no doubt that the eight senatorial districts would be created, even though the city fell a little short of the population entitling it to that number. But, classed as a Republican city, the Democrats are virtually certain to take advantage of the excuse that the city's population does not entitle it to eight districts.

Senator Crouse, chairman of both the Elections Committee and the subcommittee, has started employes at work checking the redistricting bills introduced by Senator Rehkop. The work has not progressed far enough for any information to be obtained as to the makeup of the districts to be proposed in the bill which will come from the committee.

In two of the three alternate senatorial bills prepared by Rehkop, who is a Republican, St. Louis is given eight Senators and in one, seven Senators. In the one providing for seven seats, the populations of the districts vary from a low of 98,633 for the Second District, which includes only Buchanan County, to 112,804 for the Twenty-fourth, which is in Southeast Missouri.

In those bills giving St. Louis eight Senators, the populations of the districts vary from 98,633 in Buchanan County to 116,434 for the Twenty-fourth District.

JULES R. FIELD INDORSED

Action by Precinct Chairmen of 25th Ward G. O. P. Club.

The Twenty-fifth Ward Republican Club's precinct chairmen last night indorsed Jules R. Field, Mayor Miller's secretary, for the Republican nomination for President of the Board of Aldermen.

Alderman Meisinger of the Tenth Ward was indorsed for re-election by the ward's regular Republican precinct organization. Henry J. Jacob was installed as president of the Thirteenth Ward Regular Republican Club. Louis J. Reidel, Assistant Prosecuting Attorney and committeeman from the ward, is chairman of the Executive Board.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The Hon. Mrs. Victor Bruce announce today she would sail for Europe tomorrow. She arrived here yesterday from Baltimore on her solo flight around the world. In a radio address last night she said she would land in France and fly across the channel to England.

AUTO DEATH HELD ACCIDENT

Edward Anderson Succumbed When Returning to Hospital.

A Coroner's verdict of accident was returned today in the case of Edward Anderson, 52 years old, 3508 North Ninth street, who died yesterday in an ambulance in which he was being returned to City Hospital where he had been treated for injuries suffered Jan. 17 when he was struck by an automobile.

The verdict was that he died from heart disease, fractured ribs and a fractured collarbone due to being struck by an automobile. He was struck at Broadway and Destrehan street by a car driven by Frank Hoffmann, 2809 Salena street. Witnesses testified Anderson wandered into the path of the machine. He was discharged from the hospital Wednesday but became unconscious a few hours later.

EDGAR LEE MASTERS BELITTLES LINCOLN

In New Book He Refers to Him as "Slick and Crafty Politician."

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—An author of note has sought to strip the reputation of greatness from Abraham Lincoln.

The author is Edgar Lee Masters, lawyer-poet. In "Lincoln: the Men," published today he treats the martyred President much like Rupert Hughes treated George Washington.

Lincoln he interprets as a political personality, a "slick and crafty politician," cold, mannerless, unkempt, at times neurotic and superstitious.

The union of sovereign states of which Lincoln spoke at Gettysburg "perished with the (Civil) war," Masters writes, and Lincoln's mind "was not profound enough" to see it.

Masters, who was born in Kansas 61 years ago and grew up near Petersburg, Ill., has retired from law and for seven years has been living in New York. Most noted for his verse, he said his appraisal of Lincoln is a prose interlude, probably his last prose book.

Dedicates Book to Jefferson.

A Democrat, he dedicates his book "to the memory of Thomas Jefferson, the pre-eminent philosopher-statesman of the United States, and their greatest President."

Lincoln, Masters said, might have prevented the Civil War, "one of the most colossal blunders in history."

Masters calls his book a political and legalistic analysis of Lincoln's mind and nature, based on available biographies.

"In the Middle-Western small town," Master said in an interview, "there usually was a boy genius who wore his hair long, thought he had superior abilities, studied words and debated. Lincoln was that kind of boy.

"One of his principal gifts was satire. Others were mimicry, histrionic antics, deep-seated antagonisms, coldness, a sort of logic such as you would expect the village genius to develop."

"Mannerless, Unkempt."

Lincoln, he writes, "was mannerless, unkempt, and one wonders if he was not unwashed. * * * * For this reason the myth has grown up of the easy, good-hearted Lincoln, the democratic Lincoln, who loved everyone and whom people everywhere hailed as Abe or Uncle Abe. This was not the case. He allowed no one to be familiar with him. Always he was addressed as Mr. Lincoln.

"On the other hand, there was his sense of humor, perhaps the only esthetic gift he had."

"As late as 1858," Masters records, "Lincoln said all over Illinois, in speeches made to win the United States Senatorship for himself, that he was not in favor of giving the Negro the vote or of allowing him to sit on juries, or of inter-marrying, or of associating with white people."

Calling the Gettysburg address a prose poem, Masters writes that "we have in (it) that refusal of the truth which is written all over the American character and its expressions."

P. S. CO. TRACK LABORER HIT BY STREET CAR DIES

Charles Cowles One of Three Workers Struck by a One-Man Trolley.

Charles Cowles, 25 years old, a public Service Co. track laborer, died at Alexian Brothers Hospital today of injuries suffered Wednesday when he and two other workmen were run down by a one-man Broadway street car near Gasconade street. His two companions, William Woodling, 3683 Rutger street, and James Fitzgerald, foreman, 5067 Northland avenue, still are in the hospital. Cowles lived at 4775 Easton avenue.

William Henderson, motorman-conductor of the car, who explained he fainted and recovered consciousness long enough to set the brakes, is in St. John's Hospital, suffering from injuries suffered when he was thrown against the front of the car by the sudden brake action.

State-Senator Donnelly Back.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 6.—After a short vacation in Florida recuperating from typhoid fever, State Senator Phil M. Donnelly, Lebanon, veteran Democratic leader, has arrived to take up his duties as Senator from the Twenty-seventh Missouri district.

CIRCUIT JUDGES WOULD CUT VACATIONS TO TWO MONTHS

Resolution Favoring Reduction From Three Months to Be Submitted to Legislature.

A resolution favoring a reduction in the vacations of Circuit Judges from three months to two months, and an increase of three weeks in the period given over to jury trials was adopted by St. Louis Circuit Judges today. Presiding Judge Hamilton announced that a draft of the resolution will be presented to the Judiciary Committee of the State Legislature for action.

Under the proposed change in the law governing terms of Circuit Court, enacted in 1866, a September term would be substituted for the October term with the effect that the summer vacation period would end on the second Monday in Septtmber, instead of on the corresponding date in October.

The additional time provided for jury trials will help relieve congested dockets, the Judges think.

Would End 5-Cent Property Tax.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 6.—Senator James H. Whitecotton (Dem.), Paris, introduced in the Senate today a bill to abolish the 5-cent direct property tax in Missouri. "The property tax hardly brings in enough to pay for its collection," said the Senator. In 1930 the property tax collected at the rate of 5 cents on the $100 valuation, totaled $2,313,248, but the cost of collection, the Senator said, was nearly $1,000,000.

COMMITTEE O K'S 3 PENDING ORDINANCES

One of Them Legalizes the Operation of Delicatessens on Sundays.

Favorable reports on three pending ordinances were voted by the Legislation Committee of the Board of Aldermen yesterday; the bills are: Parking regulation for three blocks of Olive street, between Channing and Spring avenues legalizing operation of delicatessens on Sundays, and establishing 234; stops for traffic at dangerous points in the vicinity of schools.

There is an ordinance, recently enacted, prohibiting all parking in Olive between Channing and Vandeventer avenue, which has aroused much opposition from merchants and professional men in the district, because it has interfered with business. There were particular complaints from the section between Spring and Vandeventer, so the pending bill was introduced to eliminate that section. This bill was amended by the committee to permit one-hour parking between Channing and spring from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. and unlimited parking the rest of the time, after the committee heard representatives of the district ask for relief.

Following approval by representatives of the delicatessen dealers and the retail grocers, the committee approved the bill defining what the delicatessens may sell on Sundays. This legislation is in accordance with a recent decision of a Circuit Judge that foodstuffs requiring additional preparation, such as those grocers and butchers sell, may not be dispensed on Sundays, but that things suitable for consumption without further treatment may be sold.

The school stop signs were recommended by City Trafffic Engineer Gonter for about 230 intersections, chosen after inquiry among Principals. They will be mounted on hinges and turned up by policemen at proper times so as to be in place only between 8 and 9 a. m., noon and 1 p. m., and 3 and 4 p. m. on school days.

WORKMEN JUST KILLING TIME DIG UP ANCIENT KING'S PALACE

Well Preserved Home of Sassanid Dynasty of Persia Uncovered on Site of Historic Kish.

By the Associated Press.

OXFORD, England, Feb. 6.—Arab workmen, who had been set to scraping away at the earthen mounds on the site of the ancient Sumerian city of Kish, eight miles east of Babylon, because there was nothing else for them to do at the moment, discovered the first well preserved palace of the Sassanid dynasty of Persian kings.

Prof. Stephen Langdon, American-born director of the Oxford Field Museum expedition in Mesopotamia, said today the discovery was of the greatest importance.

Workmen clearing the knolls uncovered one wall and two gateways of a royal palace which dates about 350 A. D. The condition of the ruins indicates this is the first completely preserved palace of its kind ever found.

There are pieces of sculpture in white gypsum, stained red or yellow against a blue backgornud. There are plaques and friezes showing vines, animals and bas-relief figures of giants and soldiers. There is the characteristic Sassanid lotus flower.

The ruins are in many layers, representing the stages of civilization at each age, and the palace is on top. Vertical shafts in the gray hill show buildings dating back to the ancient Sumerian, the first known civilized race, and water marks on the ruins show when the city was inundated by the Biblical flood and by another earlier and greater flood.

After Alexander of Macedon smashed the Persian power, extended his conquests and died, the Persian and Syrian parts of his realm fell to one of his Generals, Seleucus Nicator, founder of the Seleucid dynasty, which in turn was supplanted by a native Persian line, the Sassanid, in 226 A. D. The first Sassanid King was Ardashir I. The dynasty takes its name from Sasan, a remote ancestor of Ardashir. The Sassanids were overthrown by the conquering Mohammedan Arabs in 637.

BRITISH PRINCES TAKE PLANE FOR PANAMA CITY

Have Glass of Champagne With President; Wales Reviews West India Boy Scouts.

By the Associated Press.

COLON, Feb. 6.—Steaming into this harbor this morning, while coast guns boomed a salute, the steamship Oropesa came alongside its pier and discharged the Prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George.

The Royal tourists, who are on their way to South America for the British Trade Exposition at Buenos Aires next month, stayed on the pier only long enough to acknowledge the welcome of diplomatic and military officials, then went to France Field, the airport.

They inspected the post and climbed into a Pan-American air liner for Panama City, and got a 30-minute air view of the Panama Canal. Later they went to the presidential palace.

They had a glass of champagne with the Panama President then they strolled out on the patio. Prince George was the first to discover the bullet holes made during the recent revolution and they strolled about while great crowds stood about the palace. In the afternoon the Prince reviewed the West Indian boy scouts and war veterans at the American Legation. The brothers had lunch there and then went out to play golf.

ARKANSAS HOUSE ASSAILS ARTICLE BY H. L. MENCKEN

Condemns His Remarks on the Drouth But Admits He Is a Brilliant Writer.

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 6.—Henry L. Mencken, editor of the American Mercury, was condemned in a resolution adopted by the House of Representatives today for a recent article on Arkansas in the Baltimore Evening Sun. The same resolution, however, paid tribute to his literary ability.

In the article in question, entitled "Famine," Mencken said, among other things, that the Red Cross might feed Arkansas this year but they would be no better off next year. The resolution asserted Mencken "has tried for years to make Arkansas the butt of coarse ribaldry and diatribes." It requested the Sun to give equal prominence to a reply to Mencken by Dallas T. Herndon, Arkansas State historian. Former Gov. Charles H. Brough was invited to speak during the discussion and he criticised Mencken but also called him "the most brilliant satirical writer in America."

Then he pulled a switch which started the dynamos.

HOUSE CAUCUS VOTES TO CURB BECKER'S POWER

Approves Measure Taking From Him Authority to Designate Newspapers for Referendum Printing.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 6.—Through action by the Democratic majority caucus in the House of Representatives yesterday, the Hammett bill to break the political power of Secretary of State Becker by taking from him the authority to designate newspapers for the publication of constitutional amendments, is virtually certain to pass the House.

The measure, which was introduced by Representative Hammett of Moberly, provides that the county court in each county shall select the newspaper in the county which shall publish the official advertisements of constitutional amendments, and initiative and referendum propositions.

Becker's Organization.

The authority to designate one paper in each county has reposed in Secretary of State Becker, who through it has built up a powerful political organization. In some elections this printing has amounted to more than $2000 for each newspaper receiving the contract. In many instances Becker has been able to induce several papers in a county to print the amendments and to divide the payment. He has refused to submit the printing to bids and has resisted in court efforts by some newspapers to force him to advertise for bids. He pays the legal maximum rate.

As a result of this printing patronage, Becker has had the loyal support of one or more newspapers in each county, many of which have been regular publishers without charge of personal political propaganda sent to them from Becker's personal press bureau, operated from the office of the Secretary of State.

Passage Likely.

Because the Democrats control the House by a wide margin, caucus action in support of the Hammett bill means its passage. A similar bill has been introduced in the Senate by Senator McKittrick, of Salisbury. It is probable the Hammett bill will pass the House and be in the Senate for action before the McKittrick bill is reached.

The House caucus also made a caucus measure of the bill for separate ballots for presidential electors and for State and local officers. This is a Democratic State Committee measure, advanced with the idea that by taking presidential electors off the ballot on which appear the candidates for Governor, for other State officers and for local officers, the Democrats will have a better chance of electing their State ticket.

STATE INSURANCE URGED AS CURB ON UNEMPLOYMENT

R. T. Wood Head of Missouri Labor Federation and St. Louis Women Support the Kinney Bill.

EMPLOYERS WOULD PROVIDE THE CASH

Limit of $10 a Week Put on Relief, to Be Given for Not More Than 13 Weeks in Any Year.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 6.—Enactment of legislation intended to aid in stabilizing employment conditions was urged by a delegation of St. Louis women and R. T. Wood of Springfield, president of the State Federation of Labor, in a hearing last night before the Senate Committee on Labor, Commerce and Manufactories, on a bill introduced by Senator Kinney of St. Louis, creating a State unemployment reserve fund.

The committee took no action in the bill and announced another hearing would be held Thursday, if other persons desired to be heard upon it.

The bill, which is similar to one proposed by the American Association for Labor Legislation as a uniform law, would create a State unemployment reserve fund, from which benefits would be paid to persons out of employment, through no fault of their own. The fund would be created through payment by employers of 1½ per cent of the wages paid by them to their employes. The fund would be administered by the State Department of Labor.

Benefits would be limited to $10 a week, and would be payable for not more than 13 weeks in any one year.

Mrs. Walston Chubb of Webster Groves, appearing on behalf of the American Association for Labor Legislation, said the bill proposed a plan for dealing with unemployment conditions that was similar to the workmen's compensation law for dealing with injuries of workmen. She said unemployment could not be considered the fault of the individual, but was the responsibility of industry, and that many individual companies had established voluntary reserve funds to assure employment in periods of depression.

"Since the object is not merely relief, but stabilization," Mrs. Chubb said, "the co-operation of employers is essential. In fairness to the progressive employers it should be made compulsory for all. Industry should be compelled to set aside reserves to compensate those willing, but unable to find work because of industry's failure to stabilize employment conditions. If we let this present crisis pass with nothing more constructive than to give the unemployed a chance to sell apples, it will be a great tragedy."

Others advocating enactment of the bill, who said they were appearing as individuals, were Mrs. E. M. Grossman, Mrs. George Gellhorn and R. E. Fletcher of the faculty of Washington University, all of St. Louis.

Wood said the State Federation of Labor had planned to sponsor an unemployment benefit bill that was much more drastic than the one before the committee, but favored the passage of this bill, which he termed "mild." He said unemployment insurance was not a panacea for unemployment conditions but afforded a means of meeting the present situation.

THINKS ANDREE PARTY MET DEATH BY ASPHYXIATION

Stefansson Suggests They Were Overcome by Fumes of Stove in Tent.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Vilhjalmur Stefansson, writing in the current Spectator, offers an interesting theory in the death of Salomon August Andree, who never came back from his Polar balloon expedition of 1897. Andree and K. Fraenkel, whose bodies were found in the Arctic wastes last August, were overcome by the fumes of carbon monoxide as they sat about a kerosene stove in their virtually airtight tent, Stefansson believes.

He developes the theory from evidence discovered on White Island, where the bodies of the explorers and the remains of N. Strindberg, another member of the expedition, were found. He almost died himself of the same cause in an Eskimo snow house on Coronation Gulf 20 years ago, Stefansson writes.

"Their tent was nearly airtight," he says, "for it was made of balloon silk and the floor was sewn to it in one piece, it stood in a lee and in the first storm of the year the airtightness was increased by a blanket of snow.

"One of the men was cooking when the other fainted. Then the cook released the pressure on the stove, just as I did on Coronation Gulf, and it went out. We know he did that because the stove was half full of kerosene when it was found. Then the cook fainted, too, before he could make a hole in the tent for ventilation."

There was plenty of food and plenty of fuel, he says, so Andree and Fraenkel could neither have starved nor frozen to death.

ALBERT VON HOFFMANN

The funeral of Albert von Hoffmann, publisher, aeronaut and inventor, will be held at 2 p. m. Monday at the family home, 3811 Flora place. The Masonic ritual will be conducted by Magnolia Lodge, and cremation will follow.

Mr. von Hoffmann died last evening at his home, after two weeks' acute illness with heart disease, following an attack last summer. He was 68 years old, and is survived by Mrs. von Hoffmann; two sons, Bernard and George, and a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Kossmehl.

He was born in Vienna, and left school at an early age, learning the electrical trade before he departed for America at the age of 20, to escape the requirement of military service. He had little money on reaching New York, and the first job he was able to find was with a prosperous fellow countryman whom he met in Philadelphia.

Invented Welding Device.

Having difficulty in learning the English language, he went to Milwaukee, where, as he had heard, English was not a necessary accomplishment. He worked for the Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Co. at $4.50 a week, and married Miss Anna Albrecht, a native of Germany.

A device for welding street-car rails, which he perfected by a series of experiments, brought him prosperity, as the time was one of great activity in electric railway construction. He continued to receive royalties on this patent for the rest of his life.

Mr. Von Hoffmann went to Mexico, and was persuaded to invest his money in a plantation near Jalapa, in the state of Vera Cruz, on the representation that he could grow vanilla beans there. After large expenditures on the place, he found that only a small part of the land was suitable for growing anything. He unloaded the property at a loss and came to St. Louis in 1905.

He associated himself with the Missouri Telephone Co., which was extending his lines in the state, and developed a system of combining telephone and newspaper subscriptions. This led him into the business of publishing telephone books, and to establish the Von Hoffmann Press, a large printing concern. He published the St. Louis

VETERANS' BUREAU OFFICERS TO LOSE DISABILITY AID

Senator Reed's Amendment Bars U. S. Employes Getting $2000 From Drawing Compensation.

ALLOWANCES ARE RAKED AS SCANDAL

Pennsylvanian Names 20 Officials, Retired as Disabled, Who Are Drawing Salaries and Relief.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The Senate has struck at Government employes who, while drawing full salaries for their work, also receive veterans' disability compensation.

It approved yesterday legislation to prohibit Government employes whose salaries are $2000 or more a year from drawing compensation as disabled officers. The proposal was accepted after Chairman Reed of the Military Affairs Committee had charged a widespread scandal existed in connection with the disability allowances.

Reed named more than 20 officials in the Veterans' Bureau in all parts of the country who, he said, had been retired as disabled and were drawing salaries in addition to compensation of more than $5000 a year. There were many more drawing less, he said. Similar charges were made in the House previously by Congressman Blanton (Dem.), Texas.

"Diagnosis Too Liberal."

Declaring these officials were being paid full-time salaries by the same bureau which declared them eligible for disabled allowances, Reed said it was "proof positive that the diagnosis of their condition was too liberal." He said those America's Contribution to the War.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IT is well enough for Ambassador Dawes to speak in protest against claiming too much for what the United States did in the World War, but it is also possible to go too far in the other direction.

Mr. Dawes said in his London speech this week that "of 13 pounds of food eaten by American soldiers, Britain and France supplied eight pounds." Just what he means by this I do not know, since it is well known that even in peace times England cannot feed itself with home produced foods. The actual statistics show, however, that in the one year from Nov. 1, 1917, to Nov. 1, 1918, the United States shipped to the Allies, the American Expeditionary Force, Belgian relief and the American Red Cross, 338,337 tons of beef and beef products, 848,020 tons of pork and pork products, 287,885 tons of dairy products and 345,762,415 bushels of grains.

If the United States had had 2,000,000 men in France during that year, which it did not, each soldier would have had a daily ration of four pounds of meat and dairy products.

Mr. Dawes says we sent over no horses. Well, in 1914, the year before the war started, we exported 22,707 head of horses and 4833 mules. In the years 1915, 1916 and 1917 we exported a total of 925,567 horses and more than 300,999 mules. I suppose they went to the Fiji Islands.

It should be recalled that every old tub of a ship that could float, anywhere in the world, was brought to an American port and pressed into the service of carrying supplies of many kinds to our allies. We even supplied England with the wood to make stocks for her rifles.

T.

Henry L. Bostelmann.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I THINK the printing of the criminal record of the son of Henry L. Bostelmann in connection with the latter's untimely death was ill advised. I can see no justification whatever for articles of this kind in the Post-Dispatch. Without doubt, everything that you printed was true but most unnecessary.

Henry L. Bostelmann was as fine a character as ever lived. The Bostelmanns are a Christian family that did everything they could to raise their children to be good citizens. Unfortunately, this particular one made a misstep and even if he had wanted to go straight thereafter, it was made impossible because he was hounded by the police every minute after he got out of the penitentiary. His father told me time and time again of the money he had spent and efforts that he made to reform this boy.

Henry L. Bostelmann lived a useful life as a trusted employe of the Bell Telephone Co. and was finally retired and pensioned. I cannot see why in announcing his death you would reprint and rehash the history of his black sheep.

Favors Meramec Dredging Proposal.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IT would appear from the various accounts in the papers that everyone is against dredging the Meramec.

This is not true. The upper river gravel sellers are naturally very much against this as it might interfere with their sales. But how about the owners of gravel deposits down the river? Are they to be deprived of the sale of their gravel for the selfish interests on the upper river?

About "destroying the beautiful Meramec." There was nothing in the application for dredging that called for anything but dredging 100 feet wide in the river. This would still leave the hills, bluffs and surrounding country as is.

About the bathing beaches, canoeing, boating, etc. Would increased depth stop these sports? No, it would increase the joys of the Meramec many fold.

As to the farmer and owner of river frontage. It would undoubtedly increase the value of this property. Besides making it better as to drainage, it would also add commercial value to the river frontage.

It has been reported that under the permit dredging could be started any place and ended any place. The application provides dredging from the mouth up.

In the past, on the upper river, vast tracts have been dredged for the gravel, leaving swamps and doing away with the channel altogether. This endangers the health of the entire Meramec Valley.

The lower river gravel owners are entitled to consideration.

FAIR PLAY.

Where Greed Blocks Progress.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ECONOMIC and social life creates our civilization for good or evil. Wars and revolutions come when progress is obstructed by selfish greed. Nations cannot last long when poverty is forced upon millions while a few enjoy excessive wealth. Wealth must serve humanity or it creates its own destruction. This is a higher law than the material. It must be used for legitimate purposes or it causes distress to the masses.

WHITE HOUSE AND SENATE.

Not often in American history has such a gulf opened between the White House and the Senate as that across which Mr. Hoover and the upper house of Congress belabor each other.

The Senate is in our opinion less happy in its position than it has been at any time since the coalition between Democrats and Republican insurgents assumed virtual control of Congress in Mr. Coolidge's second term. Up to within the last few months the Senate has been the hope of liberal government in the United States. It lapsed from that promise in the tariff fight, nor has it ever been able to regain its prior estate. Its position in the Power Board controversy, which it is now carrying to the courts, was unworthy of any deliberative body. The Senate had an opportunity to pass upon Mr. Hoover's appointees to the Power Board when those appointees were before it. It had every opportunity to say then whether or not it considered George Otis Smith, the chairman of the commission, qualified for that post. Indeed, there was a widespread expectation that the Senate would refuse to confirm him. When it did confirm him and attempted a few days later to reconsider its first judgment under Senate rules, it made something of a sorry show of itself. Irrespective of how the matter goes in the courts, the Senate can never excuse its failure to say in the first instance what it thought. It knew Mr. Smith then at least almost as well as it knows him now.

In the food controversy the Senate has more than contributed its share to one of the most unseemly of all quarrels between the White House and the Capitol. It is a quarrel that has almost approached in violence the historic rupture between the Senate and President Andrew Johnson. It has always been possible for the Senate to know what the drouth situation is, and there is no reason to suppose that the Government could not have functioned in this field without recrimination. Mr. Hoover's recent assertion that nobody is starving in the drouth districts so far as Red Cross officials know, was a rebuke to the Senate. The Senate has led the country to believe that people are starving. The Mid-western headquarters of the Red Cross, located in St. Louis, are nearest to the afflicted region. These headquarters have reports from their county chairmen throughout the State of Arkansas, and not one of these county chairmen knows of any food inadequacy in the Red Cross work. Had the Senate insisted that the Government revive credit in Arkansas it would have occupied much sounder ground.

In the grievous matter of a raid on the Treasury for the benefit of war veterans, the Senate has been no worse than the House. Happily, the chance that Congress will be swept off its feet in this matter is diminishing. Nevertheless, the prestige of the Senate is at the moment low. Senator Harrison has as much overdone partisanship in the last few weeks as Senators Robinson and Caraway have overdone provincialism. Senator Walsh of Montana usually displays his talents to better advantage than he has displayed them in his fight on the Power Board.

It would in our opinion be well for the Senate to consider whether to be merely blind and unreasoning meets the popular expectation of so important and promising a branch of the Government.

FRUIT OF THE TARIFF.

Mr. Mellon predicts a governmental deficit of $375,000,000 at the end of the current fiscal year. One of the main factors in the prospective shortage is the falling off in tariff collections. It was anticipated that revenue from this source would be $502,000,000. For the first seven months of the fiscal year collections have totaled only $230,000,000, indicating that receipts for the year from this source will be approximately $400,000,000, or $100,000,000 below expectations.

LACLEDE SMITH'S BILL.

His name is Smith. Laclede County sent him to the Legislature. He has introduced a bill to place the newspapers of St. Louis and Kansas City, for taxing purposes, within the jurisdiction of the State Tax Commission. The commission, after doing its stuff, would refer its findings to the State Board of Equalization.

Now we have with us, on the State Board of Equalization, the noblest taxer of them all. Yes, Louis the Grand was good, and the Soldan of Byzantium knew how to get the money; but Charlie Becker, if turned loose on the newspapers of St. Louis and Kansas City, would probably break the taxing course record.

Is Smith of Laclede one of Charlie Becker's trained seals? Was this measure of which he is the putative author inspired by the Secretary of State? Smith says not. Smith says the bill sprang full-armed out of his own Jovian forehead. It occurred to him, he explains, while pondering the revenue riddle, that the ordinary assessor gets all tangled up in his notion of values when he goes into a newspaper plant in St. Louis or Kansas City. Elsewhere the ordinary assessor seems to be quite at himself. From Atchison to Pemiscot, from Pineville to the Keokuk Dam, in Laclede County itself, where the tall cedars of Lebanon sprinkle popcorn on the roof of the courthouse, the ordinary assessor manages his calculations of a newspaper's worth pretty well. Not so in St. Louis or Kansas City.

Well, when the newspaper returns get to the State Board of Equalization Mr. Becker would begin to function. He would function superbly, too. That may be news to Mr. Smith. The Hahatonka statesman may be innocent of what would happen to the newspapers of St. Louis and Kansas City, with Charlie Becker writing the ticket. We'll tell him. They would pay through the nose, and the eyes and the ears and the mouth. That would be their punishment for having dared to expose the improprieties which followed removal of the Blue Sky Department into Charlie's jurisdiction.

We'll also tell Smith of Laclede another thing: It won't happen.

CATHERINE AS WE REMEMBER HER.

A grave injustice was done Catherine the Great when a history book mentioning her activities was ruled out by Mayor Thompson's School Superintendent. Here and now we take the stand as a character witness. As we remember, her father, a humble German Prince, was well thought of in the old home town of Stettin, and little Sophia Augusta Frederica was known to be a sweet, obedient girl. She rose until she ruled over a foreign land, the world's greatest empire of the time at that, no mean accomplishment for a country girl. It is true her married life fell short of complete success, but then everybody knew it was Peter's fault. The partitions of Poland and wars with Turkey were more than offset by the kindly manner in which she treated her servants and her efforts to increase educational standards at the Russian court. She painted, made a digest of Blackstone, wrote a history of Russia, plays, comedies and tales, tried her hand at sculpture and kept the peasants thinking they were one big, happy family. To find time for everything, she got up at 5, built her own fire and worked 15 hours a day. After all, an exemplary sort of person, Big Bill, even though she was a Queen.

MR. YOUNG'S SUGGESTION.

In his testimony before the House Ways and Means Committee, Owen D. Young infused fairness and calmness into an atmosphere heated by the extremists on both sides of the adjusted compensation problem. He suggests that needy war veterans be permitted to borrow a substantial percentage of the face value of the certificates over and above any loans which may have been made under the existing practice. The loan value of the certificates is now approximately 20 per cent and the interest rate (lowered in January from 6) is 5 per cent. Mr. Young thinks the interest rate should be further reduced to 3 or 3½ per cent.

Mr. Young's idea is similar to that embodied in a bill introduced by Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, which proposes to authorize loans up to 50 per cent of the certificates' face value. Undoubtedly to pay the full cash value of the certificates at this time, which would involve raising at least $2,500,000,000, would have a serious effect on our financial structure, and would retard the return of normal conditions. It would increase the national debt from $16,000,000,000 to $18,500,000 and would add to the interest burden upon the taxpayer. Moreover, many veterans who are not in need and who, up to the present, have been perfectly content to wait until 1945 for their money, would be the beneficiaries.

If there is any merit in the proposal for immediate payment, it is to tide needy men over the present crisis. There is no means of determining the number of veterans who are in desperate circumstances. Mr. Young's estimate is that, at the outside, one-third of the veterans are in actual distress. Some variation of his or the Vandenberg plan, enabling this distressed third to obtain a large loan at a very low rate of interest, would be a just and sensible solution of a vexing problem.

TOMATOES, ETC.

With tomatoes decreed "toe-may-toes" and been ordered "bin," not "bean," we are led to say so far so good in the Columbia chain's efforts to straighten out the pronunciation tangle in broadcasting. Selection of Dr. Vizetelly, an avowed opponent of the Oxford accent, to conduct an elocution school, is a good beginning. However, on the enterprise as a whole, we shall suspend judgment until there is a deportation ruling for "eyether" and "nighther." That will prove whether or not they really mean business.

FISH AND GAME IN MISSOURI.

The present session of the Legislature can render the State a great service by modernizing the Missouri laws with respect to fish and game.

To begin, the present Fish and Game Department is not such as the more progressive states maintain. The office of State Game and Fish Commissioner is too political and, except when we have a very excellent Governor, the department is more interested in patronage than it is in conservation. A number of organizations among sportsmen, including the State chapter of the Izaak Walton League and the Missouri Sportsmen's Committee, are supporting a plan for a Game and Fish Commission the members of which would serve without salary and be appointed by the Governor. The commission would in turn appoint the Game and Fish Commissioner, as it would administer the game and fish fund. This is the usual procedure in states which have taken the popular outdoor sports of hunting and fishing out of politics, and it is the plan to which Missouri must come.

The present status of the State in such matters is not good. True, a great deal has been accomplished. The State park system, created through the Game and Fish Department, is a great recreative gain for the people. The fishing license has been the means of greatly augmenting department funds. Upon the other hand, the State's refusal to outlaw spring shooting of migratory birds and such barbarous practices as gigging fish put Missouri far down in the list of states which prize and conserve their natural assets. The shooting season on ducks and geese in Missouri does not close until May 1, which is long after the nesting season begins. There is not a stream in the Ozarks where fish are not commonly taken by gigging and other unsportsmanlike practices. Yet those rivers are among the finest fishing streams in the Union. They could, if the taking of fish were properly regulated, be as popular among fishermen as are the streams of Colorado.

The Legislature's responsibility in this field is acute. The highways of Missouri have made accessible the remotest wilds. The Ozarks can be one of the greatest outdoor assets at the gate of any big city. They can never come into their own until the Legislature accepts its responsibility and follows the example of states in which fishing and hunting have become a boon to the people and an asset to the states.

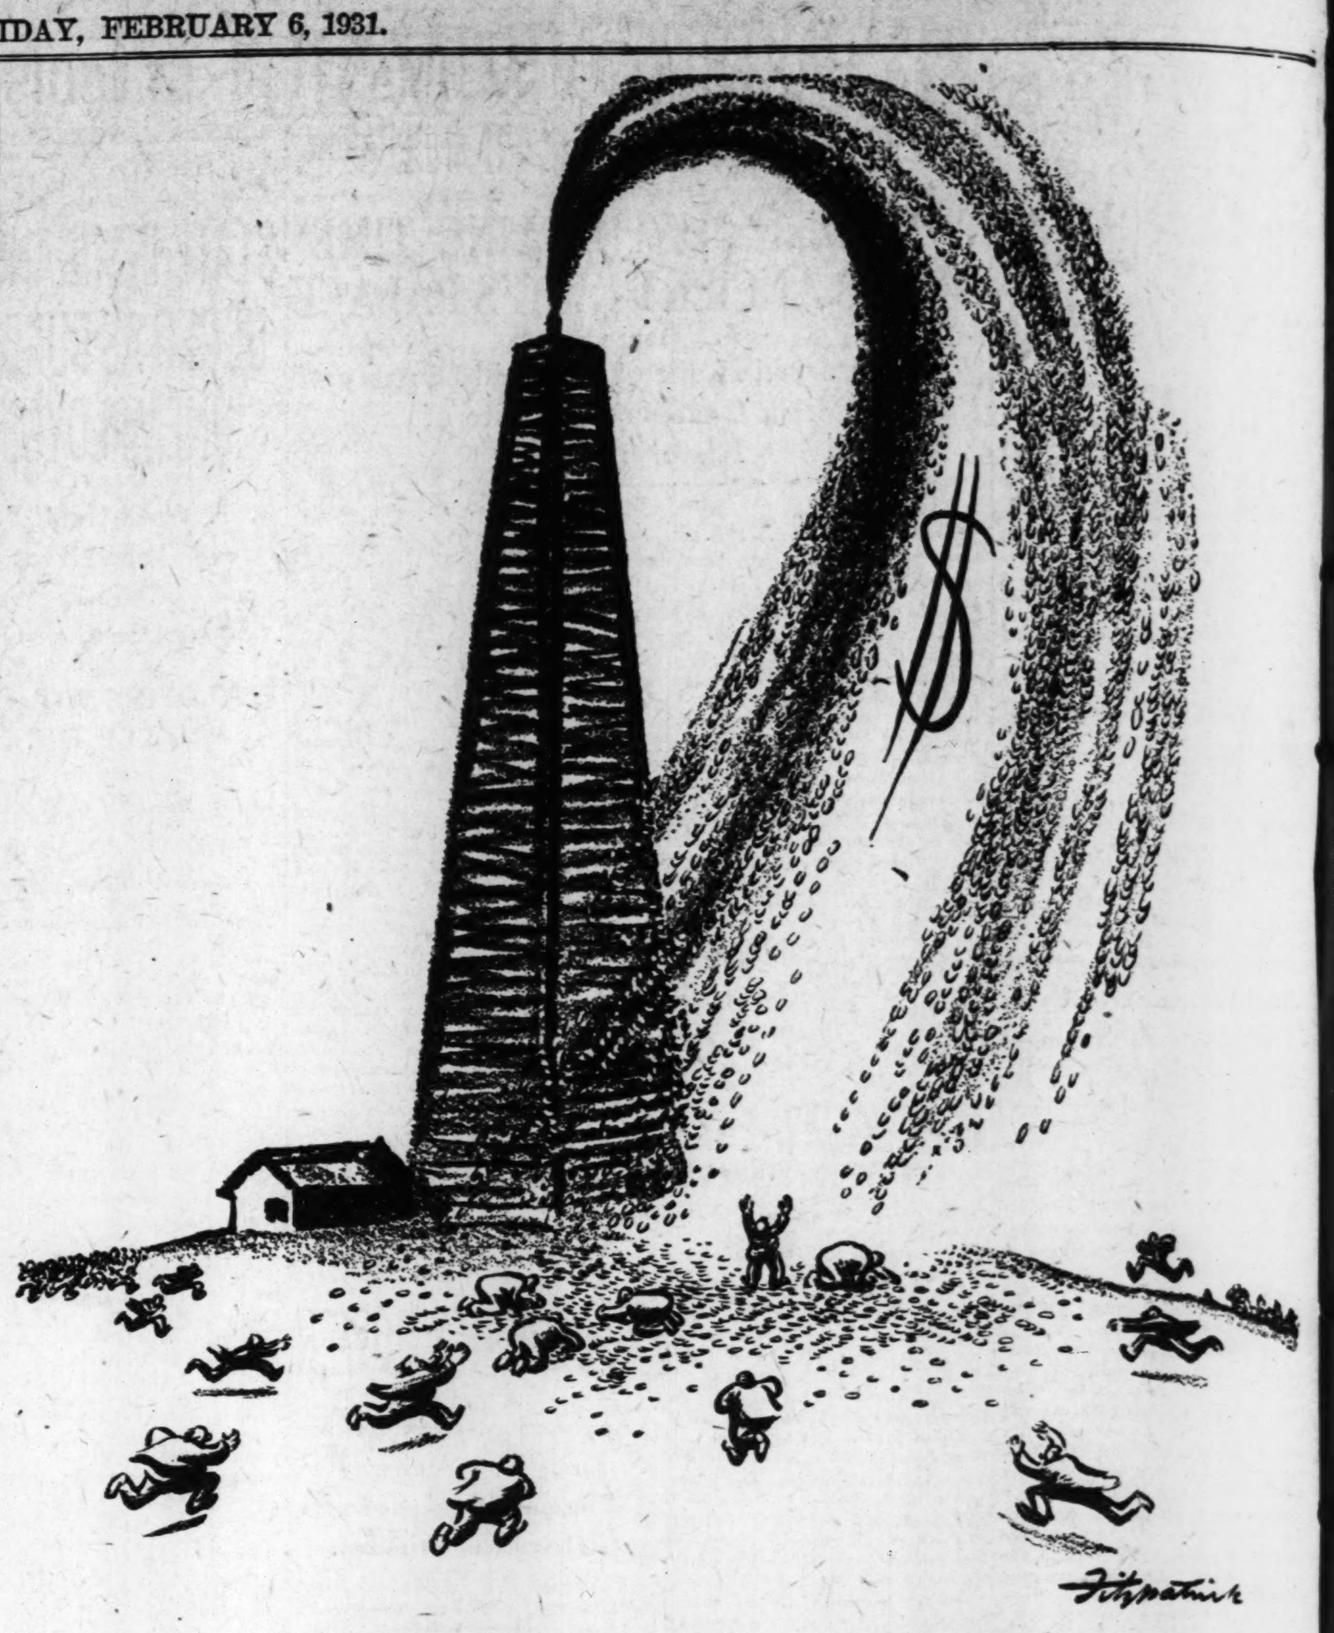
HEAR! HEAR!

We now see what happens to a stalwart American after a few appearances in knee breeches and a year's round of teas and muffins and merry badinage with Dukes and Duchesses. Make no mistake about it, the British have captured Charles G. Dawes. This man with the buckeye birthright and colonial ancestry, whose early manhood's cheeks were tanned by the winds of Nebraska, whom New York beckoned from Washington, who bloomed into power and glory beneath Chicago's stars—this financier, this musketeer, this budgeteer who spoke the language of the prairies in its racy vigor and embellishments—this Middle Westerner every step of the way from Hell to Maria—just listen to him now. If it had not been for our allies, England and England and England and England, the soldiers we sent over to the war would have perished of hunger. But our allies were magnificently there. English roast beef, English mutton, English plum pudding, English ale, with now and again a tot of English rum—those were the rations that sustained our warriors whom we had practically disowned. That is how our Ambassador at the Court of St. James's views it in retrospect through an illuminating monocle. All we can say to Charlie, pronounced Montmorency, is "Hear! Hear!"



POPULAR IDEA OF THE U. S. TREASURY.

Must We Reduce Our Living Standard?

Banker urges lower standard of living, laying depression in part to "extravagance" of people; however, our difficulty is not overconsumption, but manufacture of more goods than workers have means to buy; wages should keep up with productivity, writers say; demand for more saving also denounced as fallacious philosophy.

William Trufant Foster and Waddill Catchings in the Forum.

"I DO not agree," Eugene R. Black, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta, proclaimed recently, "with those men who are saying that in America there must be no retrogression from the present high grade of living. . . . We have been living in an automobile, a Frigidaire, a radio era, and have been sitting in the atmosphere of a Corona-Corona. We cannot pay our debts and continue in that atmosphere. Let us not fool ourselves."

But if it is good bankers' economics for us to use fewer automobiles, electric refrigerators and radios, why not use fewer electric lights and go back to candles? Why not give up billion-dollar banks and go back to little strong boxes? Better still, why not emigrate to China in a body? China's standard of living ought to be low enough to satisfy anybody.

Before we take out our passports for China, however, we shall do well to ponder on this fact: we are perfectly able to produce all those automobiles, refrigerators and radios which worry the Governor. There they are, already produced.

If we reached a Corona-Corona level in 1929, it was not through wasted spending, but in spite of wasted productive power. Even at the heights of our so-called "extravagance," we were not consuming nearly so much as we were able to produce, or even so much as we actually did produce. Indeed, it was general overproduction, not general overconsumption, which worried the business world. Virtually every industry complained, as it still complains, that it had excessive creative capacity.

Underlying exhortations to spend less and save more is at least one fundamental fallacy. Thomas F. Wallace, president of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, expresses this common error in its baldest form. It is impossible, he says, for any country to save too much. He goes on to declare that the best thing consumers can do right now is to put more money into the savings banks—in fact, all the money they do not need for "necessities," and thereby reduce their standard of living.

He actually advocates less spending, when business activity is 24 per cent below normal chiefly because consumers have not spent enough. He advocates more saving, when at least 3,000,000 of the unemployed are in that plight because consumers have saved too much. He urges the investment of more money in capital equipment, when at least $20,000,000,000 worth of capital equipment is idle because of slackened demand for the output. He advises us to turn over less money to merchants and more to savings banks, after we have increased savings deposits in a single year by $267,180,000 and decreased our spending by over 10 times that amount.

Most incredible of all, Banker Wallace urges us to entrust the banks with still more money, when they are daily proclaiming, through the lowest interest rates in a decade of banking, that they cannot find responsible borrowers for the savings already entrusted to them. And the reason they cannot find borrowers is because nobody wants to borrow money wherewith to make goods for people who will save their money instead of buying the goods.

It will be a happy day for jobless men and women and their children when industry is freed from the strangling grip of the old fallacy that a country cannot save too much. Right now, the United States is saving too much. It is saving gold for which it has no use. It is saving money which will not be needed for increased capital equipment until enough consumers ignore the advice of these bankers and spend more.

Here are the facts. In the first quarter of this century, real wages in all manufacturing concerns increased only 30 per cent, while productivity per employe increased 54 per cent. In other words, wage earners produced far more than they had any means of buying. Production has exceeded consumption. In 1923, production was up 38 per cent, but consumption by wage earners was up only 32 per cent. From 1926 until the crash in the stock market, production in general continued to increase faster than consumption in general. Not until after the stock market crash did the reverse process set in. In other words, it is precisely during these last 12 months of excessive thrift that the country has been extravagant, in the sense of using up wealth faster than it has created it. Saving too much is extravagance.

If the people of the United States, as a whole, really had been extravagant spenders in the two years of prosperity which preceded the stock market crash, a rise of commodity prices would have announced the fact. But there was no rise. On the contrary, there was a marked decline.

Exclaims Gov. Black: "We cannot have any permanent prosperity when there is a load of debt around our necks!" This illusion is another symptom of financial myopia. Of course, some of our citizens owe money to other citizens. Of course some owe money to the banks; if they did not, the banks would have to go out of business. Of course millions of families still have payments to make on their houses; if the building of these houses had not been financed on credit, millions of them would not have been built at all, and unemployment would have caused even more suffering than it has caused. But the people of the United States, as a whole, are not in debt for so much as a single 5-cent cigar. On the contrary, the net indebtedness of other countries to our Government and to our citizens is over $16,000,000,000.

Let us not fool ourselves: this country is perfectly able to produce and consume, on a sound economic basis, not only more automobiles and refrigerators and radios than the number which worries the Governor, but also more houses and pianos and vacuum cleaners and all the other products for which now, as always in the past, some citizens are in debt to others. Many bankers agree with us. It would be helpful right now if these bankers would carry on an intensive campaign, not to lower living standards, but to raise them.

Reduced spending is not the way back to good times. On the contrary, we shall not restore good times, no matter what else we do, until we spend more.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.

FOR 10 years a portly, gray-haired man has stood on the Speaker's dais of the House on every day that Congress was in session, and asked divine guidance on the deliberations of that body. These daily supplications of the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives, are among the most widely read of any prayers.

Printed in the Congressional Record, they are thus made available to thousands of people everywhere. A number of newspapers print them daily. Every four years they are gathered and printed as a public document at Government expense. This "Congressional Prayer Book" is made available to churches of all faiths through distribution by members of Congress.

THE author of these prayers gives to their composition much care and thought. He writes a new prayer every day, and it is a matter of pride with him that in all his 10 years of service he never has repeated. Although the morning period of devotion in the House requires only from one to three minutes, Dr. Montgomery often spends more than an hour in preparing the prayer.

They are written in the morning, just before House sessions, in the quiet of the study in his home. His one guide to their composition is the belief: "What I feel that I need, so must those for whom I pray."

Nor does he ever compose prayers for future use. He admits that he has found such prayers quite impossible. There are such attempts on his desk now, but he says they never will be used. Each prayer is memorized before delivery.

DR. MONTGOMERY is the successor to the late Dr. Coudon, for 25 years the blind chaplain of the House. Dr. Montgomery took Dr. Coudon's place for two months prior to his death, and was later made chaplain himself.

Politics and religious affiliation do not enter into the duties of the chaplain. Dr. Montgomery has been indorsed by Democrats and Republicans. Each party in alternate Congresses has proposed his name for the post. And there never has been a vote cast against him.

He receives an annual salary of $1650. During the time he has been chaplain, he has been absent at sessions of the House fewer than a dozen times.

ST. LOUIS BENEFITS HUMANITY.

From the Kansas City Times.

AMONG the major movements for the betterment of humanity is a campaign, said to have gained headway in St. Louis, to reduce after-dinner speeches to a minimum length. At a recent meeting celebrating completion of a paving project there were nine speakers on the program, and all together they required only 20 minutes. Ordinarily, such a list of speakers is more disheartening than would be the prospect of a second year of depression. A belief in the necessity of capital punishment is never stronger than at such a time. Humanity should not despair of remedial measures. Perhaps there is a way out, after all, as St. Louis has shown.

NELSON W. ALDRICH. By Nathaniel Wright Stephenson. (Chas. Scribner's Sons, New York City. $5.00.)

This comprehensive story of the political activities of a man who served continuously in the United States Senate for 30 years is, of necessity, much more than a biography. It is a history of American politics from 1881 to 1911. A man who can stay in the Senate during a whole generation is necessarily very close, indeed, to the real ruling power of the country, and, since it is evident that the author of this chronicle has penetrated deeply into the truth of his subject that lies behind the appearances, much is certain to be revealed here that the "free American citizen" with his naive faith in his ballot ought to know. But he will never see this book. The revelation is likely to be the more illuminating in that the author is in no way concerned with muck-raking exposures. He is the historian, concerned with the facts and the relationships of the facts; nor is he committed to the support of any social or political thesis.

It is stated that this study of Aldrich and the politics of his time is based "almost entirely" on material hitherto unpublished; that "half a million pieces of manuscript were examined by expert research workers during a period of five years" that the work might be complete and authoritative. Dr. Stephenson, the author, was formerly professor of history at Yale, and is now professor of history and biography for the Scripps Colleges and Claremont Colleges.

THE FIVE CHILDREN. By E. Nesbit. (Coward-McCann, New York City. $3.00.)

For many years Mrs. Nesbit's stories for children have been held in high popular esteem in England where she is regarded much as Louisa M. Alcott was until recent years in America. The present collection contains three of her characteristic tales, distinguished by originality of plot and a genuine understanding of the child consciousness. These are "The Five Children and It," "The Phoenix and the Carpet" and "The Story of the Amulet." Children who are acquainted only with the mill-run of "children's books," usually concocted by persons who have forgotten their childhood and are under the impression that an adult must "talk down" to a child will be surprised and delighted upon entering the child world of E. Nesbit.

FINDS SENSITIVENESS TO ART INCREASING

Paul Joseph Sachs of Harvard Cites New Washington U. Laboratory Museum.

The American people are becoming increasingly sensitive to art, in the opinion of Paul Joseph Sachs, professor of fine arts and associate director of the Fogg Museum at Harvard, who is in St. Louis to speak on "The Nineteenth Century in France" today at Washington University under the Mary A Hemenway foundation.

Prof. Sachs cited specific grounds for his assertion —the impressive and graceful turn of modern skyscraper design and the increase of notable private collections, art schools and "laboratory museums" where the student "may immerse himself in the works of the masters."

Such a museum is proposed in the Washington University art center, the plans of which were discussed by Prof. Sachs and Chancellor Throop yesterday at the university. The center will include the School of Architecture and St. Louis School of Fine Arts, already built and functioning in the University.

Prof. Sachs declare it "magnificent evidence of the progress in art being made over our country." The laboratory museum, he said, represented the most advanced stage of art teaching in this country, which had begun with the teacher merely talking about great art and passed through an intermediate stage were students had the benefit of photographic or other representations of masterpieces.

"Your plan here is somewhat but not entirely like that at Harvard, Yale, Princeton and some few other places," he said. "It is like what is planned for Chicago, also. The increasing number of such museums is one of the great signs of our times that art is making headway in our country."

American prospects in creative art, he said might best be indicated by comparison with the nineteenth century in France, when civilization was in a post-revolutionary fluid state like that of the present.

"The names which come down to us from that time," he said, "are those of artists who day after day steeped themselves in the museums and private collections. It was a time when the artist didn't know his public, a time of change."

Daily Article by Calvin Coolidge

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Feb. 6.

THE problem of agriculture in recent years has seemed so much the disposition of surplus production that very little public thought has been given to soil exhaustion. Yet authentic reports tell us that each year about five and three-fourth millions more pounds of plant food are taken from the soil than are returned to it. That means a serious depletion of capital.

The immediate effect is the increase of acreage to maintain production. That increases the unit cost. When the harvest comes it is found the expense of raising the crop is so large that the profit is diminished.

A one-crop system is mostly responsible for this condition. With diversification and animal husbandry the problem can be partly solved. But investigation has also shown that a wise use of fertilizers increases the yield, reduces the cost of cultivation per unit and so increases the profit.

The farm ought to be primarily a self-sustaining home with its own food supply. In trying to make it so by diversification, by needful fertilization and a wiser financing the farm board is proposing a sound fundamental remedy for that part of agriculture entitled to public encouragement and support.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK.

THOUGHTS while strolling: The dolorous cry again of "Cash Clo" men. Pierre, the Mussolini of dining rooms. People who pronounce theater "thutta." I'd like to see Florence Reed and Pauline Lord in the same play. One of those agonizing things that make you sob out loud.

V. V. McNitt, a Trent (Mich.) boy, who made good in the city. Wish Meredith Nicholson would come to town. Simile: "As glittering as a nut store." Lads who wear mufflers jauntily. Mine gives the appearance of a sore throat. Never went to a big party without seeing Louis Wiley.

That avenue jewelry store that opened the day of the crash. And weathered the storm. Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, who belongs to more clubs than the Prince of Wales. A blonde with a turbaned East Indian. Broadway's best known haberdashery clerk—Dave Levy.

A poetically named tea room: "The Cafe of Graceful Pause." If anyone asks me to any more backgammon parties I'll scream. The only thing that will stop me on the way to a fire is a taxicab drivers' row. O. Soglow, the artist. London is giving Paris a run in perfume making.

Anna May Wong speaks not only English and Chinese, but French and German. Her real name means Frosted-Yellow-Willows. Those old fellows with string ties and wide hats who look like stage types of great statesmen. And sell corn salve on street corners.

The studio where Clare Briggs first lived in New York. Why is memory such a tyrant? Some people infuse a shrug with high drama. A fellow I should have tipped last Xmas but didn't. Business of gazing into a window. The yacht business is not what it was.

WHILE New York has a few remaining slums not one offers that depressing squalor most of us knew back home by such names as Frog Holler, Jimtown or such and stretched so drearily back of town and across the railroad tracks. They were approached through a gulley of tin cans, roaming goats and acrid odors. In such districts was always an incredibly old man with matted hair hobbling about with a crooked stick. He was known as a miser and finished up in the potter's field.

IN these areas were poor white trash types of boys who chased you and me home from school. The girls had sore eyes and peeped from behind kitchen doors when strangers passed. A man became of age when he had suffered the seven-year itch three times.

THERE was no grandiloquent institution such as the City Infirmary. It was known harshly as the poorhouse and an inmate was "livin' off the county." Skirting such district was "the Pesthouse," where seasonal victims of smallpox were taken. Today they are known as isolation hospitals.

FORTNIGHTLY some resident of the Frog Hollers would load up on pop-skull whisky and on his way home fire off a .44-caliber revolver in front of the Baptist Church and in Police Court next day faced the charge of "disturbing public worship." Then, too, there would be those long-drawn-out feuds. About once a year someone would knock off a neighbor from ambush in a dispute over a line fence. Frog Hollerites had no money but life wasn't so drab.

AS a brief peeker at a debbie party recently it interested me to note the change in dancing. Young couples no longer go into a clinch. They circle each other's waist with an indifferent arm and walk slowly around like lovers at dusk in the leafy Bois—a mocking, modern scherzo. Free arms hang carelessly at sides and hands hold the casually puffed cigarette. It is a bored gesture of sure indifference, the ladies turning to those who cut in with a suppressed yawn. It was no place for an old dodo who likes to twirl in a Gay Ninety waltz. One-two-three! One-two-three!

DIDN'T CHECK PRICES PAID BY UNION ELECTRIC

Realty Expert Says They Would Not Affect His Opinion on Values.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 6.—The price Union Electric Light and Power Co. paid 10 years ago for a piece of land on Lewis street in St. Louis, adjoining its Ashley plant, was not considered by E. D. Ruth Jr., a St. Louis real estate dealer and Mayor of University City, in determining the valuation of that property, Ruth said when cross-examined yesterday by City Counselor Muench in the rate case now being heard by the State Public Service Commission.

Ruth had placed the value at $15 a square foot; Muench said he understood the purchase price was $2.70 a square foot. Ruth said he made no inquiry as to the purchase price and if it was $2.70, his judgment of present value still would be $15.

Muench asked him about other sales in that vicinity, some within the last two or three years, at from $3.40 to $6.90 a square foot, but Ruth denied knowledge of them. He said he did not search the records for recent sales. He knew of some sales 15 or 20 years ago at $10 to $18 a square foot.

The Public Service Commission received a letter from a farmer residing near Florissant who had read of the testimony of the real estate experts of the company placing a valuation of $4000 an acre on that part of the company's transmission line right-of-way running through farm lands near Florissant. This farmer, Joseph Knobbe Jr., said he understood the company paid about $300 an acre for the land and that in his opinion none of it would bring more than $300 an acre at public sale. He said if this land were used for growing wheat the farmer would have to get $12 a bushel to make a return on it at $4000 an acre. The communication was filed with the record in the case.

The hearing will be resumed Monday, when the company will present further testimony in support of its valuation claims.

getting the biggest salaries were almost all physicians and dentists.

William Wolfe Smith, general counsel of the bureau, Reed said, was receiving a salary of $9000 a year and retirement pay of $187.50 a month because of disability. Reed added that Smith was declared more than 30 per cent disabled by a board of which one member, Dr. B. A. McDermott, was receiving $5000 pay and a disability allowance of $125 a month.

"Dr. McDermott puts Mr. Smith on the retired list," Reed said. "Smith approved McDermott going one the retired list. One gets $9000 and the other $5000 and their salaries are fixed without consideration of their retired pay.

A Widely Prevalent Scandal.

"This is a widely prevalent scandal. It is astounding to find how much kidney trouble, stomach trouble, and chronic bronchitis has been found among these men who never saw France during the war, but were able to show their companions that their diseases came from the army service.

"I wonder how these salaries sound to some poor enlisted man who is drawing compensation of $50 a month and has no job."

Reed offered his proposal as an amendment to the Independent Offices Appropriation bill

The amendment was adopted without a record vote.

Senator George (Dem)., Georgia, said the amendment might work unfairly because former officers outside the Government could continue to draw big salaries in addition to their retirement pay and also would work discrimination between those drawing more than $2000 and less than $2000 from the Government.

Reed said he wanted to deal with the entire question later, but proposed to start in the Veterans' Bureau.

Declaring the evidence was "proof positive that the diagnosis" of the cases was too liberal, Reed said "I mean no reflection on these individuals."

Taking What They Can Get.

"They are doing the human thing," he said, "taking what they can get. I am not finding fault with them but with the system."

Others he mentioned with their salary and compensation included:

Winthrop C. Ames, District of Columbia, medical director, $8000; $150.

Wilfred Ernest Chambers, Missouri medical officer, $6500; $206.25.

Booton S. Compton, clinical director, Kentucky, $5800; $125.

William T. Doherty, physician, Kansas, $5007; $125.

Frank Thomas Duffy, regional manager, Illinois, $5600; $125.

Thomas C. Foster, District of Columbia, consultant, $5200; $150.

ACCUSED OF KILLING 3 IN GAMBLING FLAT

Oliver Niehaus Charged With East Side Murders—Three Others Held.

A warrant charging Oliver Niehaus with the murder of David Hoffman, one of the three men shot down early Sunday in "Wide-Open" Smith's East St. Louis gambling flat, was served on Niehaus yesterday in the St. Clair County jail at Belleville.

Niehaus, who had been held prisoner since he and a Negro were found cleaning up the bullet-marked flat at 330A East Broadway, Monday, said when the warrant was read to him: "I want to see a lawyer." He was returned to his cell pending a preliminary hearing next Friday.

Held with Niehaus at Belleville are the Negro, James Randolph, Alice Landrum, 24, of 651 Collinsville avenue, who, it is said, formerly lived at the flat, and Eugene Modrow, at whose home she was arrested.

Alice Landrum told East Side authorities that for a month she lived at Smith's flat where the murder occurred, but denied having lived there recently.

Warrants will be sought for all of those held with Niehaus, the Sheriff says. He is not certain what charge will be placed against them and the warrants will be merely to assure their presence for further questioning.

East St. Louis police and attaches of the Sheriff's office are searching for Smith, who has not been seen since the shooting. Assistant State's Attorney Curt Lindauer, who is in charge of the prosecutor's investigation, said yesterday he had learned it was "almost a certainty" that four St. Louis gangsters killed the three men, Hoffman, Joseph P. Carroll, former partner of Bernie Shelton in the taxicab business, and Theodore Kaminski, former motorbus driver.

ROBBERS $20 "IN THE RED" IN BANK HOLDUP ATTEMPT

Assistant Cashier at Heyworth, Ill., Routs Them After One Asks "for Change."

By the Associated Press.

HEYWORTH, Ill., Feb. 6.—Two men entered the Heyworth State Bank today with robbery in mind, but left $20 instead. One of the pair presented a $20 bill and asked Kenneth Moore, assistant cashier, for change. His companion pulled out a revolver and commanded Moore, two customers and H. R. Howard, cashier, to raise their hands. Howard, instead, dived into the vault and produced a pistol. As he emerged the robber fired twice, missing, while Howard withheld fire because the customers were in line.

The robbers, $20 poorer, fled to their car and escaped.

Flew in Balloon Races.

Mr. Von Hoffmann took up ballooning in the heyday of the St. Louis Aero Club, and became a balloon pilot of international experience, flying in the James Gordon Bennett races. In later years he went into the airplane business, establishing a sales agency and flying school, but did not himself become a pilot.

In the winter of 1914, after business in this country had been deranged by the European war. Mr. Von Hoffmann opened a free soup kitchen for the unemployed in St. Louis. Thousands were fed, but there were critics who said that the men were in many cases unworthy, unwilling to work, and that an undesirable element was being drawn to St. Louis.

His reply was that men would not travel far to get the simple fare that the Von Hoffmann soup kitchen furnished, and that "A hungry man is a hungry man, whether he's lazy or industrious."

"Paying Some of It Back."

When American war activities had furnished work for all who remained in civil life, Mr. von Hoffmann transferred his free feeding system to Union Station yards, and vied with patriotic organizations in giving warm rations to the men on troop trains. He was one of the few persons who were permitted to know the time at which such trains wolud arrive.

"I'm having fun," he said of his activities at that time. "I believe in having fun. I didn't have a lot of fun when I was a boy in Vienna, and I'm making it up now. This country has been good to me. It has loaned me a lot of money, and I'm paying some of it back."

A dozen years ago he bought Mihaska, a 3000-acre hunting and fishing lodge in the Ozarks near Bourbon, 75 miles southwest of St. Louis. He entertained many parties of guests, including some wealthy St. Louisans, at Mihaska, and he invited his employes there for week-ends and vacation outings. The artificial lakes were stocked with trout, perch and bass, and each guest was entitled to a catch of 10 fish, which were put in refrigerators and kept until the guest's departure. The place has a deer stockade, cages of raccoons and other animals, playgrounds, beaches and a rock castle over the Meramec River.

BLACKMER HAPPY IN EXILE

Denver Oil Man Not to Return From France for Present.

By the Associated Press.

NICE, France, Feb. 6.—Asserting he had no intention of returning home for the present, Harry M. Blackmer, former Denver Oil man upon whom the United States imposed a fine of $60,000 for not returning to testify in the Fall-Sinclair naval oil conspiracy trial, said yesterday he took no interest in American legal judgments against him.

At his hotel here Blackmer, who spends most of his time golfing at Monaco, Cannes and Nice, said: "I am quite happy since no reporters can bother me now. That's all."

While his attorneys in Washington are arguing in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals that the Walsh law, under which the fine for contempt of court was imposed is unconstitutional, Blackmer looks better than at any time in the last two years.

RUSSIA'S FIGURES ON GRAIN EXPORTS FOR YEAR 1929-30

Soviet Reports Shipping 2,269,405 Tons, Chiefly Wheat and Rye, Valued at $97,539,000.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Feb. 6.—Official figures for Russia's grain export for the fiscal year 1929-1930, including principally wheat and rye, were 2,269,405 tons, valued at 195,078,000 rubles (about $97,539,000). This compared with a grain export of 313,314 tons, valued at 83,098,000 rubles ($41,549,000) in 1928-29.

As an answer to charges of "dumping" in foreign markets, Soviet authorities cite the grain export for 1913 which was given as 10,670,160 tons, valued at $297,250,500. Grain was exported principally to European countries.

Animal husbandry exports, including butter, eggs, hides, wool and such, totaled $49,027,500 for 1929-30, in contrast with $103,135,500 for 1913.

Lumber was one of the few exports which compared favorably with 1913, showing for the past fiscal year 7,367,741 tons against 7,603,480 tons in 1913. The lumber exported in 1929-30 was valued at $90,099,000 and that in 1913 at $82,465,000.

Petroleum and crude oil exports in 1929-30 totaled 4,554,863 tons amounting to $78,661,500 compared with 947,770 tons and $25,043,000 in 1913.

The Soviet Union also shipped abroad 1,799,219 tons of coal, valued at $8,492,500 in the last fiscal year.

The biggest imports in 1930 were from the United States, being valued at $140,180,000 compared with export there valued at $22,289,500.

England received the greatest exports, amounting in value to $119,079,000, while the imports from there were only $39,462,500.

Russia's second biggest purchases came from Germany. These totaled $117,194,500 in return for which Russia sold Germany goods and produce valued at $107,127,000.

Comment of United States Farm Board Members.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Chairman Legge of the Farm Board said today he viewed Russia's official grain exports statement as an indication that the Soviets were turned toward a dominating position in the world wheat market.

"The American farmer cannot compete with Russian wheat in the world market," he said, "and if he attempts to he will have to give up riding around in automobiles."

Samuel R. McKelvie, grain member of the board, joined in asserting that American producers could not compete with Russian wheat, because of Russia's "free land and free labor."

McKelvie said there was "no question but that Russia, with unlimited virgin land, could produce great quantities of wheat, cheaply for many years at least with no land and labor cost."

The two agreed the latest report from Moscow showed Russia making more progress in its agricultural program, especially wheat, than in the five-year industrial plan.

Legge said also that the American farmer could not compete in the world market with Argentine and Australian wheat. Each of these, he said, had the advantage of low cost water transportation, particularly Australia.

Australian wheat, Legge said, was around the rim of the continent and could be moved long distances at low cost.

McKelvie said the Farm Board was keeping a close watch over Russian wheat exports, but "there is nothing we can do about it unless they try to dump it in this country." Then, he said, tariff laws could be utilized.

Make system alkaline to Help Check Colds QUICK!

Get Rid of Colds Before They Weaken You, Make You Liable to More Serious Troubles.

Nowadays it's important to stop your cold quick before it weakens your resistance to more serious trouble.

Any of the older treatments will bring relief—after a time. But thousands say this new way is a quick way.

Begin when you feel a cold coming. In addition to your regular cold treatment, take a tablespoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water, morning, noon and night, the first day. Do same the second day. Then only at night.

Colds reduce the alkaline balance of your system. That makes you feel achy, feverish, weak. Phillips Milk of Magnesia helps relieve this, and restores the alkaline balance.

Doctors prescribe Phillips Milk of Magnesia; hospitals use it. Millions know how it relieves sour stomachs, gas, indigestion, constipation and other symptoms of too much acid. Get the genuine.

Market Is Merely a Professional Trading Affair and Loses Much of Substantial Rise in Last Hour When Rails Sell Off.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The stock market was merely a professional trading affair today, but reversed yesterday's trend by selling substantially higher, then losing much of its rise in the last hour.

The rails, which had failed to participate in the advance, sold off in the late trading, but the list as a whole closed irregularly higher, with a firm tone. Sales aggregated 1,600,000 shares.

The bond market continued to contribute to the better feeling in financial circles by giving a good account of itself.

Such rails as Atchison, New York Central, Illinois Central and Baltimore & Ohio closed a point or two lower. Extreme gains in such erratic specialties as Auburn and Worthington amounted to 8 and 4 points, but were shaded about two points in the final dealings. Gains of a point or so in American Telephone, American Can and Westinghouse Electric were virtually lost. Eastman lost most of a 3 point advance. U. S. Steel and Bethlehem closed nearly a point higher, however, and Diamond Match, a firm feature, was up 2.

A further sharp gain in sterling featured the foreign exchanges, and apparently indicated the diversion of further funds to London, reflecting the glutted condition of the local money market. The rate for cables advanced to $4.86⅛, up 3-16, and the highest of the new year.

Decrease in Loans.

The list appeared to be governed largely by internal conditions, for new developments were not of an impelling character. The further reduction in brokers' loans, while amounting to only $18,000,000, was of course, a good omen, as indicating no letup in the strengthening of fundamental market conditions. This makes the eighteenth decline in 19 weeks, in which period the sum of $1,506,000,000 has been lopped off the total, leaving only $1,716,000,000 in this category of loans, which is approximately the level of November, 1924, when the 1924-1929 bull market was but a few months old. In view of the huge increase in the volume of listed securities since

MAX BAER FIGHTS TOMMY LOUGHRAN IN THIRD EASTERN TEST, TONIGHT

COAST BATTLER 7-TO-5 CHOICE TO BEAT FORMER 175-POUND ACE

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

KALAMAZOO, Mich. — Meyer Grace, Chicago, knocked out Joe Sharkey, Albion, Mich, 10 rounds.

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—Tommy Freeman, Hot Springs, Ark., knocked out Duke Trammel, Fort Worth, Tex., five rounds.

NEW YORK—Eddie Kid Whalen, New York, knocked out Billy Franklin, New York middleweight (5). Chester Matan, New York heavyweight, knocked out Owen Flynn, New York (1). Jimmy Slavin, New York featherweight, defeated, Frankie Marino, New York (10).

PITTSBURG — Mickey Duras, Johnstown, Pa., lightweight, defeated Benny McArthur, Saginaw, Mich. (10).

PATERSON, N. J.—Jackie Shupack, Paterson welterweight, defeated Harry Korin, New York (8).

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Max Baer and Tommy Loughran, who are matched in a 10-round bout in Madison Square Garden tonight, have at least one thing in common—they've both been beaten by Ernie Schaaf of Boston.

Loughran, after he retired as light heavyweight champion and joined the heavyweights, dropped two decisions to Schaaf. Baer, after a sensational career in the Far West, made his Eastern debut a few weeks ago against Schaaf and was outpointed.

Few boxers ever came East more highly touted than Baer, but the Californian has not shown much to justify the ballyhoo. He looked aggressive enough against Schaaf, but he did not appear to advantage in his knockout victory over old Tom Heeney. Heeney was giving the youngster a fine beating when he was shoved out of the ring in the third round and counted out when the officials got their mathematics all tangled up.

On the basis of Baer's showing in his first two New York bouts, Loughran looks like the logical favorite to win despite the fact that overnight he was on the short end of seven to five odds. Although the clever Philadelphian has had little luck with the heavyweights, he should win easily provided he can avoid the power in Baer's punch.

Baer will have a 17½-pound weight advantage over the former light-heavyweight champion. Baer weighed in at 200¼ pounds while Loughran tipped the scales at 183.

Young heavyweights appear in the two 10-round supporting bouts. In one of them, Ralph Ficucello, a heavy puncher, battles Paul Swiderski of Syracuse, N. Y. In the other, Stanley Poreda, Jersey City slugger, takes on Walter Cobb of Baltimore.

Schmeling Made Defendant.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Feb. 6.—No stranger to legal complications, Max Schmeling will have to defend himself against a $35,000 damage suit in the New Jersey courts.

The world's heavyweight champion was arrested at Summit, N. J., yesterday and required to post $10,000 bond for his appearance at trial of a suit brought on behalf of Joseph Rahl Jr., 20-year-old process server of New York.

Asking $25,000 damages, Rahl alleged Schmeling tossed him down the steps of a New York hotel last Monday when he attempted to serve papers in another suit on the German boxer. An additional $10,000 is sought by Rahl's father for loss of his son's services, and for medical treatment.

Rahl charged that "Schmeling violently and outrageously battered me and lifted me bodily and hurled me down the 15 marble steps."

Schmeling, who is training at Madame Bey's camp at Summit, went to Elizabeth and posted the required bond before a Supreme Court commissioner. The bondsmen were Benjamin Fuchs, a relative, and Mr. and Mrs. George Ward.

Boxers to Be Questioned.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Instead of waiting until its regular meeting next Tuesday, the Illinois Boxing Commission decided to question Jose Santa, giant Portuguese heavyweight, and Knute Hansen of Racine, Wis., today concerning their unsatisfactory boxing bout in the Chicago Stadium Wednesday night.

Hansen's poor showing against the Portuguese Carnera was declared "no contest," after he fell to the canvas in the second round without being hit. The purses of both fighters, as well as those of Marty Gallagher of Washington, D. C., and Larry Johnson, Chicago Negro heavyweight, were ordered held up pending investigation. Gallagher also went down in the second round of his bout with Johnson, without being hit.

WILLIAM JEWELL WINS FROM BLUE JAYS, 32-22

FULTON, Mo., Feb. 6.—The William Jewell basketeers defeated the Westminster College Bluejays, 32 to 22, in an M. C. A. U. basketball game here last night. William Jewell led, 14 to 8, at half time.

Porchey, guard on the losing team, took high scoring honors, with 13 points, while Webdell and Green, on the Cardinal team, garnered 12 and 11 points, respectively.

Gridiron Philosophy.

Anything built up to top-heavy proportions will finally fall of its own weight. Let the gridiron iron out its own destiny.

Now, take Knute Rockne for instance. Knute says if the football coach doesn't produce he gets the gate while the professor sits pretty win, lose or draw. Well, that is where the Prof is one up on the coach even if he doesn't have as much to lose.

Wanted, a Winner.

THE lot of the coaches is very precarious,
Their wages are big and their duties are various;
They cannot all win and they can't win 'em all,
An immutable law that applies to football.
But for turning out winners those coaches are hired,
So they have to produce or they'll pronto be fired.

Each to His Own.

The professor may not have the physical equipment to shine on the gridiron and the coach may not have the stuff necessary to make a successful professor. So every man to his own racket, let the kudos fall where it may!

CONTENDS LANDIS ACTED WITHIN HIS POWERS IN BENNETT CASE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—As Commissioner of organized baseball, Kenesaw M. Landis is empowered by an ironclad agreement between himself, club owners and players to take whatever remedial or punitive actions in his field that he deems necessary to the best interests of the game, Attorney George Miller told Judge Walter Lindley in Federal Court today.

Attorney Miller's statement was made at the start of his final argument as defense counsel for Commissioner Landis in the suit for an injunction to restrain Landis from further interfering with the baseball contract of Fred Bennett, an outfielder for the Milwaukee club of the American Association. The suit was regarded as an important one, as it was a test of the Commissioner's broad powers in orgnaized baseball.

Defends Major-Minor Agreement.

"By the major-minor league and that of the National League of Professional Baseball Clubs, it was agreed that as long as Mr. Landis was Commissioner, all parties to the agreement would regard his decisions as absolute and final," Attorney Miller said. "The Milwaukee club and the St. Louis American League Club, which operates the Milwaukee club as part shareholder, were parties to the agreement. Even the contract that Bennet tsigned with St. Louis and Milwaukee contained the clause empowering the Commissioner with final decisions.

"By the agreement, Mr. Landis does not have to wait for even a complaint. He can, if he deems it a duty for the best interests of the game, investigate and take whatever remedial or punitive action that he deems necessary to the best interests of the game. That is exactly what he did in the Bennett case. He found that Bennett, because ofth e St. Louis farm system, had been kept in the minor leagues for two straight years under absolute control of the St. Louis club, losing his rights under the rules to advance himself. He asked the St. Louis club, through Owner Phil Ball, for a statement, but only some misleading correspondence resulted and Mr. Landis took his action.

Landis Not in Court.

"He asked the St. Louis club to take Bennett back to its own team, waive him to the American and National League clubs, and then, if waivers were made, to sell him outright—out of the St. Louis baseball chain. St. Louis refused and its action through Milwaukee was filed."

Attorney Miller advised Judge Kindley, who is hearing the case without a jury, he would prove that Commissioner Landis was within his legal rights in the case and that, even if he were not right, that the agreement entered into by St. Louis and Milwaukee giving him absolute powers, must be lived up to within the eyes of the law.

Commissioner Landis did not appear in court and it was intimated he would not appear at any of the sessions.

JOIE RAY IS 12TH IN SNOWSHOE MARATHON

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MONTREAL, Feb. 6. — Frank Hoey continued to lead today in the International snowshoe marathon. Running from Louiseville to Berthier, Quebec, the Montreal youth yesterday scored his fifth straight lap win. The distance was 25 miles. Hoey is now leading in total elapsed time by more than an hour. Arthur Newton, South Africa, is second. Joie Ray, the American runner, is in twelfth place.

11 Former St. Louis Players On Roster of Rival Clubs

WHEN the major league clubs go to the training camps next month, no fewer than 11 athletes, who at one time or other were with the two St. Louis teams, will be trying for regular positions. These player are scattered on seven clubs. The Robins and Phillies will each have three and the Reds, Giants, Pirates, Yankees and Tigers, one each.

Probably the best of the lot of former St. Louis players, who come up for another chance, is John Berly, the pitcher obtained by the Giants from the Rochester club. Berly, once a member of the Cardinals, paced the International League in efficiency in 1930.

The trio, who will be with the Robins, are Clyde Day, Paul Richards and Max Rosenfeld. Day, who failed as a pitcher with the Cardinals, tried again with the Reds, with no more success. Richards was brought up by the Browns several years ago as an infielder, but since has developed into a pretty fair catcher. Rosenfeld, an outfielder, was signed to a Brownie contract in 1925, but was given little opportunity.

Burt Shotton will try to get some help from Stewart Bolen and Hal Wiltse, pitchers, and Eddie Roetz, infielder. Each of the trio was once with the Browns. Ed Strelecki, former Brown, will try for a regular berth on the Reds' pitching staff, while George Grant, another pitcher, will attempt to make a go of it with the Pirates.

The Yankees will try Frank Barnes, a lefthand pitcher, while Heine Schuble, who played with the Cardinals in 1927, is back with the Tigers in an effort to gain a regular berth at shortstop.

East Side Fives Play Four Games

With the championship virtually assured Collinsville, which leads the basketball race in the Southwestern Illinois Conference by two games, another four-game program is scheduled for tonight. Collinsville plays at Madison; Granite City entertains Alton; Belleville goes to Wood River, and East St. Louis visits Edwardsville.

Collinsville defeated Madison, 30—18 in the first round and is expected to repeat. Granite City, the only team which has defeated Collinsville, is expected to win as the Warriors meet the weak Alton five. Belleville is favored over the last place Wood River outfit. East St. Louis will be the favorite over Edwardsville, having won in an impressive manner when the two teams met before, 36—16.

EXTRA INNINGS by J. Roy Stockton

Those Pitching Figures.

"AN Exacting Fan" writes in to inquire why the Cardinals sent Herman Bell back to the minors, when he made such an excellent record during the 1930 season in games won and lost and in earned runs per game.

Bell's record was not impressive, in that he pitched only two complete games. However, his relief work was at times brilliant and he was always a favorite with this writer because of his courage, his eagerness to serve and his winning spirit.

Bell appeared in 39 games, but pitched only 115 innings, an average of less than three a contest. He won three and lost four, permitting 143 hits.

Whether you consider Bell's record an impressive one or not, it does seem that with pitching talent so scarce, some major league club would have claimed Herman for the waiver price. Burt Shotton of the Phillies has men on his roster who can't compare with Bell. Other clubs are carrying, at salaries not lower than Bell's, men who haven't his speed, his curves or his experience. Why, then, did 15 clubs waive rights to this sturdy righthander?

The answer must be that the waivers don't mean much. Major league club owners and managers might have wanted to claim Bell, but they knew that if they put in a claim, waivers would have been withdrawn and the Cards would have kept Bell. Then later, the claiming club might have wanted to send a man to a farm and the Cardinals, in reprisal, would have entered a claim. Don't claim my players and I won't claim yours, is the way too many clubs look at the waiver plan and in cases like that of Bell, it results in his making a trip to the minors.

It can't be said that Bell hasn't had a chance. The Cardinals have tried him many times, but no Redbird leader has ever had enough confidence in Herman to make him a regular starter. Probably he would prefer to be a regular starter and a star in a minor league than a bench warmer and bull pen artist with the Cardinals.

As "Exacting Fan" suggests, "figures must lie" in the case of Herman Bell, or at least, the managers don't believe in the figures.

Toporcer a Regular.

DR. P. G. BECHTOLD, a Cardinal fan since 1908, takes exception to a reference to George Toporcer as a utility infielder. Dr. Bechtold points out that George took part in 158 games with Rochester in 1929 and was voted the most valuable player in the league and that he was in as many games last season.

Yes, Doctor, you're right. That certainly would make George look like a regular. George was "utility infielder" with the Cardinals so long that it became a habit to consider him as nothing else.

Maplewood and Ferguson Play County Feature

Four league and two non-league basketball games will be played tonight in the county, all starting at 8 o'clock. Maplewood goes to Ferguson for the most important set-to, while in other conference games of minor interest, Wellston plays at Normandy, Clayton at Ritenour, and Kirkwood at Hancock. University City goes to Webster, and Brentwood entertains Fairview in non-league matches. Jennings, another league team, is participating in the Troy, Mo., tournament, which started yesterday and ends tomorrow night.

Maplewood will be favored to win as Lueckerath, Ferguson's star player, broke his arm a week ago, and will not play for the rest of the season.

Normandy is given the edge over Wellston, Ritenour over Clayton, and Kirkwood over Hancock. Fairview, although not strong, will probably find Brentwood easy.

The winner of the U. City-Webster meeting cannot be easily predicted, as U. City has been hit by sickness while Coach Roberts, of the non-league team has developed a five which is working smoothly. This revamped team has Captain Harkey and Flint at guards and Moller at center. Huckleberry and Devine play the forwards, as before.

FENCING AND BASEBALL WILL BE RETAINED BY WASHINGTON U. BOARD

At a final meeting of the Washington U. athletic budget board held yesterday, it was decided to retain baseball and fencing as varsity sports. At an earlier conference, it appeared certain that these two sports would be abolished because of lack of finances. New financing arrangements have been made that will also permit tennis to keep its place in the schedule. Conference swimming and track meets were approved by the committee.

PACKS WILLING TO MATCH PESEK AND RAY STEELE HERE ON FEB. 17

John Pesek, heavyweight wrestler, can perform here against Ray Steel on a card at the Coliseum, Feb. 17, providing he posts $5000 in appearance money at once, Promoter Tom Packs announced this afternoon. Steele already has agreed to such a match, the promoter said.

Packs asserts that the first move must come from Pesek.

"He has been broadcasting that he can't get a match with the big men of the game," said Packs. "He knows now that he can have a match with Steele for the asking, providing he puts up the money to assure his appearance. We'll see whether he really wants to wrestle."

The St. Louis promoter said he has no more interest in Steele, who has appeared here frequently, than he has in Pesek. He asserted he would like to promote and watch a match between the two men.

Talk of a Pesek-Steele match here first came to the surface when a former wrestler of Chicago and a St. Louis man appeared before Commissioner Seneca C. Taylor and asked for a tentative date to promote a wrestling show here. They offered to brink Pesek, among others, here against strong opponents. Pesek wired the Post-Dispatch that he was willing to post $5000 at once for a match here with Jimmy Londos or Steele.

Steele now has a certified check for $5000 posted with Commissioner Taylor to guarantee his appearance for a possible match with Pesek. Steele says he is willing to let the $5000 stand as a side bet if such a match is scheduled.

Packs has planned to hold his next show next Wednesday or Thursday night, but he now says that Feb. 17 will be the earliest he can put on a show. In the event that the Pesek-Steele match doesn't go through, Packs may match Steele with Londos in his feature, or put on Pat O'Shocker and Rudy Dusek in a finish event.

MOORE MEETS JACKSON TOMORROW NIGHT FOR POCKET BILLIARD TITLE

The championship of the amateur pocket billiard tournament, which has been in progress for the past two months at Peterson's Academy, will be decided tomorrow night, when E. W. Moore opposes A. L. Jackson in the final game.

Moore won the right to meet Jackson in the final by defeating T. K. Adams, 100 to 57, before a large crowd at Peterson's last night. With the score standing 25 to 9 against him, Moore suddenly found himself and came through with a high run of 23 points, and soon after made a cluster of 17 points. The game went 27 innings.

Moran Whipped Jim Coffey Twice In Old Madison Square Garden

Irish Pair Drew $40,000 in First Fight, an Almost Unheard-of "Gate" in Those Boxing Days.

Second Battle Put Pittsburger in "Big Money" and Eventually Led to Match With Willard.

No. 18.

'BUILDING UP BIG FIGHTS'

By Ike Dorgan.

Press Representative for Tex Rickard.

FRANK MORAN, the self-styled "Man of Destiny," wasn't hitting pay dirt in Paris. The longer he remained in France the more certain it seemed that he wouldn't get his share of the proceeds of the fight with Jack Johnson.

In the end he became incensed at McKetrick and was ready to break with him.

Billy Wellman was now the manager of the old Madison Square Garden. Johnson couldn't come back to the States or wouldn't, and the fact that Moran had stayed 20 rounds with the great black, made Frank an attraction, second only to Johnson.

I was Wellman's publicity man. He told me to offer Moran $10,000 for three fights. Moran had broken with McKetrick. He was hanging around Paris waiting for the cat to jump. I figured that Moran could make a lot more than $10,000 for three fights and cabled him to come on over on his own.

He asked me to manage him, an I got $10,000 for him in his first famous fight with Jim Coffey. They drew $40,000 in the old Garden, a whale of a gate in those skimpy days.

It was a real old Irish turnout. Every Celt in New York and the surrounding country who could get away, bought a ticket to see Jim pulverize Moran. It was a regular "Throw 'Em Down McClusky" gathering, and as Jim rolled along toward victory in the first round, there came the strangest "C" wail from that Irish crowd that I ever heard. Moran finally nailed Jim with "Old Mary Ann," and the pride of Ireland measured his length on the canvas. What a night!

It was a tremendous victory for Moran. For the first time in his life he was "up in the chips," as they say.

Real Irish Giant.

BILLY GIBSON managed Coffey and was bitterly disappointed when his hard-hitting Irishman went down to defeat. Jim was a near thing to Peter Maher in the way of punching and popularity—a real Irish giant, the hope of every manager since boxing began.

Coffey said it was bad luck. He wanted another crack at Moran and two months later, a thing almost unheard of, they again packed Madison Square Garden and if the Irish population of New York had been all "het up" with the first struggle, this second meeting of Moran and Coffey had them pie-eyed.

After Winning Title, Willard "Took It Easy"

ACCORDING to Ike Dorgan, telling this story of the "big fight" game, Willard might have continued as champion after he had taken the title from Jack Johnson in Havana had the big Kansan taken care of himself.

He points out that while Willard never was a popular champion, he was a hard man to beat and gives it as his opinion that the day he took the championship at Havana, Dempsey or any other heavyweight could not have beaten Jess. The idea that he was unbeatable then attacked Willard and he failed to continue to take proper care of himself. Dorgan always figured that had Willard kept "in shape," Dempsey would not have defeated him at Toledo.

Feeling was tense and might have been worse had not Moran himself been of Irish blood.

Excitement was at a fever heat. The crowds all but broke down the doors. Ticket takers were swamped and carried off their feet. One Irish conductor, on a surface line, came to the back door and elbowing his way in, said in a high tenor voice as he handed over six tickets: "Oi have lost me friends—but they'll be along in a few minutes. Let them in whin they come." I don't know whether his "friends" ever did get in but the tickets were in the count up, just the same.

Moran knocked Coffey out in nine rounds this time and this latter victory sent Moran's stock sky-high, eventually leading up to the fight with Jess Willard, for the title and marking Tex Rickard's bow to a boxing crowd in New York.

Jack Johnson had fought two fights in Paris following the affair with Moran and had come back this way, landing in Mexico in an effort to close a match with Jess Willard for the title.

Jack Curley, the late Harry Frazee and Larry Weber, another theatrical man, had made Johnson an offer. The fight was scheduled first for Mexico City, then Las Vegas, where Johnson had fought Fireman Jim Flynn for Curley, and later Havana. Willard won the title in 26 rounds and Johnson scooted to Spain.

Jess Never Popular.

JESS came back to New York and started off on a barnstorming tour, first in vaudeville, then with his own show and later with a circus, winding up by buying the circus for his very own. Jess, always hungry for every dollar that came his way, didn't even want to share the profits with the circus people, and when they approached the lean routing locations, they unloaded on Jess the greatest white elephant a champion ever wound up with.

Willard was never a popular champion. He didn't seem to like the job he held though he did like the money.

He was a tough hombre to whip just the same, and the day he took Johnson's title in Havana there wasn't a man in the world who could have coped with him. He was lean, hard as nails and so infernally tall that an ordinary fighter didn't have a chance against him. Remember he was 6 feet 7 inches tall in his bare feet, and you can well imagine anyone of the six-footers trying to reach his jaw. Besides that, he could hit like one of the Pottawatomie mules he had left in the lurch down in Kansas. He began to figure that he was unbeatable and when they get that notion in their heads they don't take very good care of themselves. Jess liked his beer and he could knock off a case of it without batting an eye. He drank his whisky double and straight. Had he worked hard and kept in condition Jack Dempsey never would have defeated him for the title at Toledo. Dempsey or any other heavyweight.

There had been no thought of pairing Moran with Willard. It didn't seem like a good match, though Moran would have tackled the Rock of Gibraltar. He always had plenty of "moxie." You can't take that away from him. We didn't realize how close we were getting to big money. There was Rickard. He was on the way home.

It is unusual for followers of an sport to believe alibis or excuses offered by losing teams, but toda the 2500 or more persons who saw the St. Louis Flyers defeat th Chicago Shamrocks 2 to 0 in a American Hockey League game a the Winter Garden last night, are inclined to agree with the Flyer that the 19 losses which the team suffered in 23 road games were due in a large measure to the fac that all of them were played o foreign ice.

The team, being constantly on the road, had little opportunity for practice so there is small wonde that the club made such a sorry showing.

In their first game at home this season the Flyers made a favorable impression. They have a great goalie in Herb Rheaume. He played a remarkable game and received much applause. He mad stop after stop which seemed impossible. In addition, his coaching kept his teammates advised of th progress of the play at all times.

New Players Perform Well.

Other new players, Red Jackson Kendall and Scott showed speed and dash, but the real thrill cam from the improved play of Sy Acaster, who scored both the Flyers' goals. In the second period h put the Flyers in front, when, after being jammed into the boards b a teammate, he came from nowher to grab the puck from a Chicag player, got behind the defense an beat Timmins with a perfect sho

Then in the final period, wit only a minute to go, and th Shamrocks making every effort tie the score, Acaster took th disc out of a mixup, dashed th length of the ice and scored h second goal. Previously he ha been repulsed on a similar attemp by Timmins, who also kept Crease from scoring following two lon dashes.

The play was fast and roug from the start. The game ha hardly started when Jackson, probably accidentally, hit Byrdson o the head with a stick. The Shamrock player showed the green o his uniform meant something throwing a left hook and a straig right at Jackson before the re eree could send them to the pen alty box. All of which helped put the crowd in the right mo for the rest of the contest.

Conditions Better This Year.

The new arrangement at t Winter Garden makes a longer a wider ice surface for there are on two rows of box seats on the and there are no seats at the nor end of the rink. The sideboards a higher than last season and t aggravation caused by stoppage play when the puck bounces o the boards, is thereby reduced.

Chicago put up two argume concerning shots which th thought scored but which were allowed. One hit the Flyer post and another went over top. On the latter, a Shamro forward claimed the puck we through the net, but Coach Ral Taylor made a trip over the and satisfied himself the net all right.

Referee—O'Hara.

By W. J. McGoogan.

It is unusual for followers of any sport to believe alibis or excuses offered by losing teams, but today the 2500 or more persons who saw the St. Louis Flyers defeat the Chicago Shamrocks 2 to 0 in an American Hockey League game at the Winter Garden last night, are inclined to agree with the Flyers that the 19 losses which the team suffered in 23 road games were due in a large measure to the fact that all of them were played on foreign ice.

The team, being constantly on the road, had little opportunity for practice so there is small wonder that the club made such a sorry showing.

In their first game at home this season the Flyers made a favorable impression. They have a great goalie in Herb Rheaume. He played a remarkable game and received much applause. He made stop after stop which seemed impossible. In addition, his coaching kept his teammates advised of the progress of the play at all times.

New Players Perform Well.

Other new players, Red Jackson, Kendall and Scott showed speed and dash, but the real thrill came from the improved play of Syl Acaster, who scored both the Flyers' goals. In the second period he put the Flyers in front, when, after being jammed into the boards by a teammate, he came from nowhere to grab the puck from a Chicago player, got behind the defense and beat Timmins with a perfect shot.

Then in the final period, with only a minute to go, and the Shamrocks making every effort to tie the score, Acaster took the disc out of a mixup, dashed the length of the ice and scored his second goal. Previously he had been repulsed on a similar attempt by Timmins, who also kept Creasey from scoring following two long dashes.

The play was fast and rough from the start. The game had hardly started when Jackson, probably accidentally, hit Byrdson on the head with a stick. The Shamrock player showed the green on his uniform meant something by throwing a left hook and a straight right at Jackson before the referee could send them to the penalty box. All of which helped to put the crowd in the right mood for the rest of the contest.

Conditions Better This Year.

The new arrangement at the Winter Garden makes a longer and wider ice surface for there are only two rows of box seats on the ice and there are no seats at the north end of the rink. The sideboards are higher than last season and the aggravation caused by stoppage of play when the puck bounces over the boards, is thereby reduced.

Chicago put up two arguments concerning shots which they thought scored but which were not allowed. One hit the Flyer net post and another went over the top. On the latter, a Shamrock forward claimed the puck went through the net, but Coach Ralph Taylor made a trip over the ice and satisfied himself the net was all right.

Duluth calls here for games Monday and Tuesday, while Buffalo is scheduled at the Winter Garden next Thursday and Friday.

WASHINGTON FIVE MEETS DRAKE IN IMPORTANT GAME

By James M. Gould.

Coach Don White of the Washington University basketball team has had to make some readjustments in his squad for tonight's important game with the Drake University Bulldogs. The game which will be played at the Bears' Field House finds the contending fives tied with the Oklahoma Aggies for second, third and fourth place in the Missouri Valley Conference competition. A victory for either Washington or Drake might mean the lead in the valley race.

The readjustment made necessary by the ineligibility of Saussele and Whitehouse has placed Wise, a sophomore, in the forward line and Landwirth, a more experienced player at the guard position vacated by Whitehouse. This combination was used for the first time in the Bears' last game which they won from Westminster, 25—22, in a blanket finish. Drake won a previous encounter from the Bears, six points to none for the Bears in an extra period.

Capt. Constance will be at the other forward position for Washington. Steideman will pair with Landwirth at guard and either Hohn or Maysack at center.

There appears to be no standout team in the conference this year. While the Bears and Bulldogs are engaged, the Oklahoma Aggies will be battling Creighton at Stillwater. Thus, four of the valley's five teams are busy.

Victories for the Bears and Aggies would place those two teams in a tie for first place. Should Creighton and Drake win, Creighton would hold a slim lead with three victories and one defeat with Drake second with three victories and two reverses. In this case, the Bears, Aggies and Grinnell would be all even in the last places with two victories and three defeats.

Coach White's chief problem of the moment is the developing of team play. Many of his most effective scoring plays were built around the now absent Saussele and Whitehouse and it may take some time to fit Wise and Landwirth into the White scheme of play.

Next Monday night, the Bears invade Big Ten territory, meeting the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

Concordia's Next Opponent Owns A Scoring Punch

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KIRKSVILLE, Mo., Feb. 6.—Coach Don Faurot's Kirksville Bulldogs invade St. Louis tomorrow night for a game with Concordia Seminary. The locals started slowly this season but are now rounding into form, with a freshman, Guy Curtright, providing the scoring punch. Curtright, who was one of the leading scorers in Northeast Missouri last year when the Holliday (Mo.) team placed second in the district tournament, is at present in second place in the M. I. A. A. scoring race, only McCracken of Maryville, being ahead of him.

The Bulldogs lost to Warrensburg here Wednesday, 26 to 23. They defeated Cape Girardeau twice, both in overtime games, 37 to 31 at Cape, and 33 to 32 at Kirksville. Central College of Fayette, took the Teachers' measure, 33 to 32, as did the Springfield Teachers in a game at Springfield two weeks ago, 35 to 21.

Chillicothe Business College turned the tables on Kirksville here 27 to 26 after having been drubbed at home 31 to 19. The local team nipped Lincoln and Lee University of Kansas City, 38 to 33, St. Joseph Junior College, 23 to 22, and Trenton Junior College 12 to 10.

The Kirksville squad is made up of the following players: Curtright, Daugherty, Vaught, Sadler, Veith, forwards; Barton, Pettigrew, Everhart, centers; Burroughs, Johnson and McArtor guards.

They return from St. Louis Sunday and entertain Springfield on their home floor Monday night, then take to the road again for a game at Warrensburg Wednesday night and a return game with Lincoln and Lee at Kansas City Saturday.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Mr. Pesek Is Willin'.

THE news in the realm of Grunt and Groan, sometimes called wrassling, is that John Pesek accepts Steele's challenge and posts $5000 to show his good will.

The information results from two telegrams, one to the Post-Dispatch and the other to the Chicago and the St. Louis daredevils who wants to cut in on the local mat melon. The first telegram reads:

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 5.—Pesek accepts Steele's challenge but prefers Jim Londos who ran out of match with Pesek in Columbus about a year ago. Steele must be Londos' man Friday and I defy Londos to post $5000 to meet Pesek two weeks after the Steele-Pesek match. Pesek has won over 160 consecutive matches. Londos and Don George are the men who are dodging him.

AL HAFT,
Manager John Pesek.

Haft's telegram to Ben Rueben contained the announcement that Pesek was ready to meet Steele and also ready to post a $5000 forfeit.

It Won't Happen.

AND so we have the groundwork for a match to settle the three-cornered claim to the wrestling championship.

But fear not. Nothing will happen. It never has happened in the past, when rivals begin sounding off in advance about settling the mat title dispute.

John Pesek will be thrown from a horse; the referee won't suit one or the other side; or this, that and the other will intervene to prevent a meeting. As long as all the "champions" are prospering, why should any one of them risk sure gain for possible defeat?

Pesek, if any, should be the willing one. Both Londos and George are making annual incomes well up into six figures, as heads of the Sandow-Bowser and Curley wrestling groups. But Pesek is a deuce running wild; and boys, we mean wild. Anyone in his fix naturally would be wild to get into the big time "clover."

Gold Rush Is On.

THE rush for the new Klondike, the gold-bearing wrestling lode, which began with the invasion of Boston several months ago and broke out in St. Louis yesterday with the announcement that new promoters had entered the field, is further evidenced today in New York, where the veteran promoter, Jack Herman, obtained a license to exhibit his mastadons in New York under the name "The New Armory Athletic Club."

Herman represents the Sonnenberg group. His first New York show will display that disciple of the flying tackle, Gus Sonnenberg, against an unknown named Al Baffert of California. Joe Stecher and Pat McGill, alleged members of the Sandow-Bowser combination, will meet with other members of the same "circus" on the card.

The Curley group brought the retaliation on itself by invading Boston under the promotion of Ray Fabiani, the Philadelphia elephant herder. Boston was Sonnenberg's home pasture and the intrusion was resented.

It is anticipated that the Bowser-Sandow group will try to copper the Curley shows in every city where his wrestlers operate.

So, the cruel war is on. You never can tell. A real wrestling match may come out of it, some day or other.

ARGUS BULLDOGS NOSE OUT POLISH FALCONS IN BASKET GAME, 41-39

The Argus Bulldogs won their twenty-first victory of the season when they defeated the Polish National Alliance Falcons in a fast and thrilling basketball game in East St. Louis last night. The score was 41 to 39. When the regular periods had ended the teams were tied at 28 all. In the extra period Artie Simms made two foul shots which decided the contest for the Bulldogs.

Lester Pearson and Benny Hall were high point men with 12 each, while Pawlow who played center for the Falcons led his mates with a total of 14 points. Voris Dickerson, of Iowa University starred for the Argus team.

The Polish National Alliance Falcons are leaders in their Municipal basketball league while the Argus Bulldogs lead in the Pine Street Y. M. C. A. League.

LOWE-CAMPBELL OUTPLAYED BY BILLIKEN TEAM

By Dent McSkimming.

There was an impromptu "scrimmage" at St. Louis University gymnasium yesterday afternoon which developed into a real show. The Lowe & Campbell basketball team (minus several stars) worked out against the St. Louis U. varsity and the practice was quite as interesting as a real game. No box score was kept and the time of the periods was not precise, so that it is impossible to give an accurate score, but the varsity undoubtedly had the better of the tussle. The score was about 24 to 14 at the end of 40 minutes of play. The Billikens play Drake Saturday night, here.

Verne Bradburn, captain and center of Lowe & Campbell, the team which is expected to win the Municipal League championship, started with the following team: Oldfield and Corcoran, forwards; Flannery, center; Lintzenich and Joyce, guards. The varsity lineup was the same as has been used in recent games: Gorman and J. Kennedy; Grandoni, Roberts and Hunt. Later, Ham Miller replaced Lintzenich, and Coach Nyikos made various changes in his St. Louis team, notably sending Owen McCarthy and Frank Kennedy to forward positions.

The King Pin Missing.

Without Strong and Bradburn and Anderson, Lowe-Campbell got away with very little of the rapid-fire team play that characterizes their regular game. Strong was limping from a bruised thigh and Bradburn and Anderson were kept away on business. The result left the Muny Leaguers hoping that Coach Nyikos will give them another invitation to scrimmage when all the regulars can get into the game.

Above all, the practice proved that McCarthy's knee is not yet strong enough for actual competition, so that Nyikos probably will adhere to his regular lineup against Drake. As soon as the big fellow's leg is ready he will undoubtedly be a regular forward, for he handles the "center feed" play as no one in St. Louis can.

The Billikens were still a bit off color in shooting free throws from the foul line, but Hunt broke his slump by caging one.

It was announced yesterday that two of the best freshman basketball players, Godfrey and Huehn, failed in their midyear examinations, and Godfrey at least is expected to leave school. He came here from New Jersey and quickly convinced the coaches that he was one of the best men on the squad, either varsity or "frosh." The loss of this pair will hurt the Billikens a lot.

The "frosh" will oppose the St. Louis De Molay team in a preliminary to the Varsity-Drake game, Saturday.

HOLMES DEPARTS FOR CHICAGO FOR TENPIN MATCH WITH KREMS

Ray Holmes, St. Louis' young bowling star, departs for Chicago tonight, where tomorrow he will start his 40-game, total-pins-to-count match against Eddie Krems, Windy City ace. Ten games will be bowled on the Harding-Goldammer drives tomorrow night and another 10 Sunday. The final half of the contest will be decided at Peterson's here, Feb. 14 and 15.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

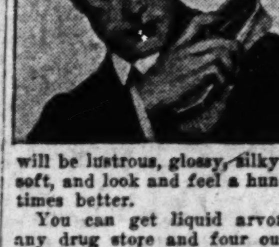
There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. Then you remove it entirely.

To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your symptoms of dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and remove every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy entirely satisfies.



WRESTLING RESULTS

TORONTO, Ont.—Ed George defeated Al Baffert of Hollywood, Cal. George, with a weight advantage of 31 pounds, won the first fall in 30 minutes with a head scissors and the second in seven minutes with a body slam.

BOSTON.—Nick Lutze won two out of three falls from Jack Sherry, Ohio heavyweight. Lee Wykoff, formerly of St. Louis University, had a rough 28-minute scuffle with George Vassall, Chicago Greek before winning.

ST. LOUIS U. HIGH FIVE MEETS WESTERN M. A.

The St. Louis U. High five, leaders in the Prep League with two victories and no defeats, is favored to defeat the Western M. A. quintet in their league game tonight at the former team's gymnasium. The game, starting at 8 o'clock, will mark the close of the first round of Prep League play.

Missouri Five Beaten by Ames

By the Associated Press.

AMES, Ia., Feb. 6.—The Iowa State basketball team shared third place in the Big Six conference with the Kansas Aggies today, following their 29 to 19 victory over the Missouri Tigers here last night.

The Cyclones, outpassing and out-dribbling the Tigers, wrested a small lead from the Missourians at the start and by halftime had amassed a 16 to 9 advantage. Early in the next period, the Tigers, led by Davis, made their most threatening gesture when he drew up to within four points of the Iowans, but three goals by Roadcap, Cyclone scoring leader and two by Thompson, halted their rally. The Cyclone defensemen made good account of themselves, one of them, Reike, holding Huhn, Tiger pivot man without a basket.

BEAUMONT FIVE AND ROOSEVELT ARE FAVORITES

By Harold Tuthill.

Beaumont, one of the co-leaders in the City High School League basketball race, will strive to break the tie tonight, when it meets Cleveland in the second game of the double-header at the St. Louis University gymnasium. Roosevelt meets Central in the first contest, starting at 8 p. m. Soldan, the other co-leader, will play Principia Junior College tomorrow night at the Howard gymnasium, starting at 8:30 o'clock in a non-league game.

Although Beaumont defeated Cleveland easily in the first meeting of the schools, the game tonight should be closer because Cleveland has profited by the addition of Ralph Landry to the forward line. Ralph will be the running mate of his twin brother, Ray. Bob Wilfert will be at center and John Michley and Harry Vierheller at the guards.

Beaumont's chances will depend upon Arthur Gerst and Hayward Gray, forwards; Howard Gruber, center, and Campbell Elliott and Arthur McLeod to come through in the same fashion that enabled Beaumont to defeat Roosevelt last week.

The probable lineups:

FIRST GAME.

Roosevelt.		Central.
Parker	R. F.	Short
Bartman	L. F.	Schnurman
Dillman	C.	Mitchell
Root	R. G.	Sneed
Patton	L. G.	Jouret

SECOND GAME.

Beaumont.		Cleveland.
Gerst	R. F.	Ray Landry
Gray	L. F.	Ralph Landry
Gruber	C.	Wilfert
Elliott	R. G.	Michley

NEW GOLF BALL CAUSES HIGHER SCORES IN 1931 'PRO' TOURNEYS

—BEN RICHTER.

Benny Richter, southpaw professional of the Triple A Golf Club, is home from his winter jaunt to the Pacific Coast with expert opinion as to why he couldn't keep up the 71 pace which he set during the first round of the Pasadena Open and with some rather different ideas about the new golf ball.

Ben, the best lefthanded pro in the United States (if you don't believe it, ask him) was rather discouraged with his game after he was unable to sustain his pace in the Pasadena and he asked the opinions of several of the big shots as to his trouble. Among them Leo Diegel of Agua Caliente.

Diegel told Benny: "I can tell you what's the matter in a moment. You fellows who sell golf supplies all summer and give lessons come out here in the winter time and try to cram all your golf into one month. You go out for the first round and hit the old ball as well as we do who are playing tournament golf all the time. You shake off all your nervousness and you put together a good score for that first round, maybe a 72 or better. But the next day you go out and try to play up to your score of the previous day and you can't do it. Nothing will enable you to go through three or four rounds of good golf except the experience. You fellows haven't got it and you'll have to get it to reach the top rank."

More Tournament Play Needed.

So Benny thinks the officers of the Missouri Professional Golf Association should provide more tournaments for the local professionals this summer. Last year the professionals had few occasions to try their skill in tournament competition here, and Richter is one who is in favor of the Missouri P. G. A. waking up.

The new ball, Benny declares, is vastly different from the old ball and makes for higher scores. He points to the fact that Horton Smith won the Los Angeles open last year with a score of 280, made in bad weather, while Tony Manero finished first this year in practically the same field and under perfect conditions with a score of 287.

"Not only is your drive shortened considerably," said Benny, "but the wind catches hold of the ball and blows it all over the lot, as in the Agua Caliente tournament."

Ben had praise for little Jimmy Fogertey, professional of the Osage Country Club, who also made the trip to the coast. Jimmy wasn't getting his putts down, according to Ben, which was the only thing which kept him out of the money.

"But that kid has the goods," declared Benny, "and he'll get some place. For he can practice four hours in the morning, eat a sandwich and practice four more hours in the afternoon. And that's what you have to do to learn this game. Why, Horton Smith hasn't been winning any tournaments this winter, and I think it is because he refuses to hit any practice balls before starting a round."

American Team Defeats Czech Hockey Six, 1-0

By the Associated Press.

KRYNICA, Feb. 6.—The Boston Hockey Club continued its winning ways today in the international hockey tournament in progress here defeating the strong Czecho-Slovakian team, 1 to 0.

With the Czechs out of the way the only test remaining for the American six is their Sunday game against the University of Manitoba Grads, Canadian entry in the tournament and co-favorites with Boston for the championship.

The Boston six still must meet Poland, in addition to Canada, in the round robin schedule among the six finalists, but that match is expected to be an easy one.

Today's low score was unfavorable to the championship aspirations of the Boston team as the winner is to be decided by total goals scored. Today's score made Boston's total six for the three games it has played.

Ambassador John N. Willys has arrived at Krynicka to witness the final games.

SHORT RIBS OF BEEF

There Is Plenty of Meat on This Cut of Beef.

Short ribs of beef baked with browned potatoes and served on the same plate with a plentiful supply of rich brown gravy was one of the popular short orders in the medium priced restaurants of this country before the advent of the cafeteria. This is the manner of cooking this favorite:

Sear meat by placing in a hot oven for 30 minutes. Reduce heat to moderate and continue cooking, allowing 20 minutes for each pound; that is, a five-pound roast of beef would require after the 30 minutes searing an additional hour and 40 minutes. Baste occasionally and add seasonings just before removing from oven.

Gravy.

To make gravy, remove meat to serving platter and pour liquid into saucepan; skim off fat. To juice remaining in pan (there should be two tablespoons), add two tablespoons flour and stir until thoroughly mixed. Place on flame and cook gently until it bubbles. Strain poured-off liquid onto flour mixture in pan and stir until it boils; reduce heat and simmer 20 minutes. This makes a golden brown, delicious gravy.

HOMINY OFTEN SUBSTITUTED FOR A STARCHY VEGETABLE

Lacking Flavor, This Corn Product Requires a Great Deal of Flavoring.

Hominy is a source of starch and minerals. Being a corn product, hominy has some protein and vitamin content. It lacks high flavor, so in preparing hominy for the table it is necessary to add flavoring to supplement the deficiencies.

Strictly speaking, hominy is a cereal, but it is used more generally as a starchy vegetable.

Casserole of Hominy.

Use one large can of hominy. Fry six slices of bacon until crisp. Cool the bacon slightly and chop fine. Add the bacon fat and chopped bacon to the hominy. Add one cup of grated cheese, two teaspoons of finely chopped green pepper and one teaspoon salt. Stir these together well and pour into the casserole. Cover well with buttered cracker or bread crumbs and bake in a moderate oven for 30 minutes.

It takes slow cooking to blend the flavors of the different seasonings.

Toasted Salmon Sandwiches.

Butter as many slices of bread as will be needed. Between slices arrange a generous layer of minced canned salmon, well seasoned with prepared mustard, salt and pepper. Toast on both sides until delicately browned.

GERMAN SLAW WITH DRESSING

Cabbage Is One of the Most Wholesome Vegetables Grown.

German slaw is made with three-fourths cup chopped bacon, two tablespoons lemon juice, one teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon mustard, one-half cup mayonnaise dressing, two cups cabbage, four tablespoons green pepper, two tablespoons parsley and one tablespoon onion.

Place chopped bacon in frying pan and cook to golden color, being careful not to burn. Add lemon juice, salt and mustard.

Stir well and mix with mayonnaise. Toss finely chopped vegetables lightly together with mixed dressing.

RECIPES FOR DISHES IN WEEK'S MENUS

Steamed Chicken With Golden Sauce, Cornmeal Cakes and Beet Salad.

Eggs will be more digestible if the water does not reach the boiling point, which is 212 degrees F. Egg whites are most easily digested when cooked at a temperature of 160 degrees F. for the whites then are firm and jelly-like in consistency. When cooked at the temperature of boiling water they are tough. Pour boiling water over eggs and keep over a very low flame to keep the water hot, but well below the boiling point. Six minutes will produce a soft egg, eight minutes a medium one, and 12 to 15 minutes a hard cooked egg.

Cornmeal Pancakes.

Stir two-thirds cup cornmeal into one and three-fourths cups boiling water and boil for five minutes, then turn into a large mixing bowl and stir in one and one-half cups milk. Sift two cups flour with four teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, two tablespoons sugar. Stir into the liquid mixture and then add one well beaten egg and one-fourth cup melted butter. Cook on a hot griddle and serve with syrup.

Jellied Beet Salad.

The canned diced beets are most convenient to use for this just now. Drain, saving the juice. For four servings use about one and one-fourth cups diced beets. Measure the beet juice and add water to make one and one-half cup liquid. Soak one tablespoon gelatine in two tablespoons cold water for five minutes. Scald the beet juice, add the softened gelatine and stir until dissolved. Next add one tablespoonful each of lemon juice and vinegar, one-half teaspoon salt and pepper to season. Cool until it begins to thicken, then add the beets and one-fourth cup finely diced celery. Pour into individual molds or into a shallow pan and set aside to chill and harden. Turn out or cut in squares and serve on lettuce with mayonnaise.

Steamed Chicken.

Select a stewing chicken weighing about four pounds. Have it cleaned, but not cut up. Wash in cold water, drain, put a stalk of celery inside and truss, or tie the legs and wings firmly against the body. Place in a large kettle and add boiling water to half cover. Add a large onion, a small bunch of parsley and a stalk of celery. Cover closely and simmer for two and one-quarter to three hours or until the chicken is tender. Add two teaspoons of salt when nearly done. When tender, remove to a hot platter and sprinkle with minced parsley; pour a little of the golden sauce around the chicken and serve the rest with it. Serve with mounds of flaky boiled rice.

For the sauce, melt one tablespoon butter, add two tablespoons flour and then stir in one and one-half cups of the chicken stock that has been skimmed to remove grease. Cook until thickened and then pour gradually onto two well-beaten egg yolks. Season with one-half teaspoon grated lemon rind, one tablespoon lemon juice, salt and pepper.

Roquefort Cheese Dressing.

Mash one-eighth pound Roquefort cheese until smooth. Add gradually one-fourth cup olive or salad oil, one-fourth teaspoon paprika and two tablespoons vinegar. Work with a fork until well blended and just before serving stir in two tablespoons heavy cream and a little salt. The salt may not be necessary, taste it to find out. Serve with hearts of lettuce, with shredded cabbage, with diced celery or chilled fresh or canned pears.

French Fried Potatoes.

To have French fried potatoes crisp, use a good quality of fat or oil, heat it to 370 degrees, or until it will brown a piece of bread in one minute. Have ready potatoes that have been peeled and cut in eighths lengthwise and soaked in cold salted water for one hour. Drain and dry between towels, then fry a few at a time in the hot fat until they are delicately browned. Reheat the fat each time to 370 degrees. When all the potatoes are cooked, reheat the fat to 390 degrees, put the potatoes back in the fat and cook until crisp and well browned. Drain on soft paper and sprinkle lightly with salt.

A HOT TAMALE PIE

Taste Like a Tamale But Looks Like a Deep Dish Pie.

This dish is a variation of the hot tamale. Instead of being baked in individual portions a casserole is used to cook it in.

Take two tablespoon bacon fat, four tablespoons onion, one-half a green pepper, six ripe olives, one cup stewed tomatoes, one-half pound ground beef, one teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon chili powder, one teaspoon salt, and one and one-half cups water and one-half cup cornmeal.

Place fat in frying pan; add finely chopped onion and cook five minutes without browning. Add finely chopped green pepper and olives with tomatoes and meat. Simmer gently 10 minutes; add seasonings.

Add one teaspoon salt to one and one-half cups water; stir in cornmeal and cook in double boiler one hour. Remove from fire; when cool line sides and bottom of casserole. Turn in a layer of meat mixture and cover with a layer of cornmeal. Add another layer of meat and top with cornmeal. Bake 45 minutes in moderate oven.

Keep the Range Bright.

If the nickel on the stove has become rusty or dull, rub it with a piece of emery cloth. The top of the range can be kept bright in the same way.

WHOLE WHEAT FLOUR MAKES A WHOLESOME COOKIE

New Recipes for Attractive Small Cakes Are Constantly Being Originated.

Whole wheat flour makes very nourishing cookies.

Whole Wheat Cookies.

Two cups sifted whole wheat flour, two cups sifted pastry flour, one-half cup sugar, and one teaspoon salt. Melt one-quarter cup butter in one-half cup hot water. Add one-quarter teaspoon soda and beat well. Add the dry ingredients and mix thoroughly. Turn out on floured board and roll very, very thin. Shape with a round cutter. Bake in a slow oven until delicately browned.

Cinnamon Cookies.

For cinnamon cookies use three cups pastry flour, one-half cup shortening, one and one-half cups sugar, three egg yolks, two egg whites, one-half cup shredded almonds, one-fourth teaspoon cloves, one-fourth teaspoon mace, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, two teaspoons baking powder and one teaspoon vanilla.

Cream shortening, add sugar gradually and cream again. Add egg yolks and whites, creaming thoroughly; then add nuts. Sift together dry ingredients; fold into first mixture with vanilla; chill. Roll thin; cut with star-shaped cutter and bake in hot oven 10 to 15 minutes.

MOCK CHICKEN SALAD

Cold Cooked Pork Substituted for the Fowl.

Many home cooks specialize on making mock chicken salad prepared according to a recipe which substitutes cold cooked pork for fowl.

To make this salad use one and one-half cups diced cold cooked pork, one-fourth cup chopped celery, one-fourth cup lettuce, one tablespoon chopped parsley, one-half tablespoon capers, one tablespoon green peppers, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon paprika, 18 large salted almonds and watercress or lettuce.

To cook meat stew slowly for three or four hours till tender. Cool and remove meat and fat from bones. Cut in small cubes add celery, lettuce, parsley, chopped capers, green pepper and seasonings. Blend all with a small amount of Mayonnaise dressing.

Serve on a bed of lettuce or water cress which has been marinated with French dressing and garnish with salted almonds.

Stuffing for Fowl.

St. Francis stuffing is delicious with wild ducks or geese, and equally good with domestic fowl. It is made almost entirely of fruit. Pare, core and chop very fine twelve tart apples, add a cupful of washed currants or raisins also chopped, three tablespoonfuls of flour rubbed to a paste with three tablespoonfuls of butter and one teaspoonful of salt and paprika to taste.

PLANNING MEALS FOR THE FAMILY TABLE

Provide a Relatively Large Supply of Vegeables to Balance the Meal.

There is a considerable variety of hot breads to choose from in planning those for breakfasts. Coffee cake as well as toast is served for Sunday breakfast because in many cases the sweeter bread is liked more as a "finisher" than as a bread to eat with the fish or whatever hot dish is selected. Home-made coffee cake or one of the varieties that may be found at any good bakery is suggested.

Cornmeal pancakes—an old fashioned dish that is not met with as often as it might be these days—furnishes the hot bread for Monday; toast of white or whole wheat bread is served on Tuesday; graham muffins on Wednesday, rolls on Thursday with any leftover toasted for Friday, and on Saturday cornbread sticks with marmalade or grape jelly makes a popular combination. Bran muffins and biscuits are other hot breads used during the week in luncheon menus.

Steamed chicken served with a golden sauce is used as the main course for Sunday dinner. A fowl weighing about four and one-half pounds will be fairly economical—more so than a roasting chicken—and, while it will require longer and slower cooking, will be found delicious in flavor and most appetizing in appearance when served in this manner. Boiled rice and cranberry sauce or jelly or currant conserve are fitting accompaniments.

Vary the salad dressing used to give variety in plain salads — for example a Roquefort cheese dressing is fine with diced celery. If the strong flavor in this cheese is not liked use cream or pimento cheese instead. If a pot of chives forms one of the kitchen decorations chop a few of them and add to the cheese.

When serving pork it is a good plan to include at least one of the "bulky" vegetables — cabbage, spinach, turnips, etc.—and a salad of fruit or raw vegetables, for pork is one of the heavier meats and requires a relatively large supply of vegetables to balance the meal and help digest the pork.

Large halves of canned peaches stuffed with a mixture of cream or cottage cheese, chopped figs, peanuts and grated orange peel, make a rather unusual and very delicious salad to serve on Sunday night. Crisp cocoanut cookies are good with it. See that the salad is very cold and serve a thin creamy mayonnaise as a dressing.

Sliced oranges covered with a smooth, boiled custard make the dessert for Monday night. Since the citrus fruits are one of the most important of the food groups that supply vitamin C and several of the minerals needed for body development, it is necessary to use them in many ways and often in planning meals. This is a simple dessert and one that is usually as popular with children as adults.

Substantial, but simple and economical luncheon dishes have been emphasized this week, and a more careful use of leftovers. This will be readily seen by a study of the menus given.

In planning Thursday's dinner cut leftover roast lamb in dice and reheat in gravy seasoned with Worcestershire sauce, a tablespoonful of currant jelly, a little celery salt and a tablespoon of minced parsley. Serve with a border of flaky boiled rice or with small molds of rice. Have it very hot.

THIS BOILED SCANDINAVIAN MUTTUN ROLL IS SEASONAL

Dishes from Foreign Lands Are Highly Seasoned and Well Cooked.

Mutton is at its most palatable stage in the winter months. A fourquarter of mutton is delectable when boiled and served with horseradish sauce.

Have the butcher bone a forequarter of mutton. About four and one-half pounds of meat (when boned) makes a nice roll.

For the seasonings use two teaspoons salt, one-half teaspoon pepper, two cloves, garlic, one cup vinegar, eight cups water, one blade mace, two cloves, eight peppercorns, one bay leaf, one large onion and one-third cup brown sugar.

Bone meat; remove excess skin and gristle. Mix salt and pepper with grated garlic and sprinkle evenly over meat. Roll meat diagonally from one end to the other and fasten firmly but loosely or sew the entire length. Add vinegar to water with spices, onion and sugar. Bring slowly to boiling point and boil hard five minutes. Add roll; bring again to boiling point and boil gently two and one-half hours.

Horseradish Sauce.

Two cups meat stock, three tablespoons cornstarch, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-fourth cup capers and one-half cup horseradish, ground or minced.

Moisten cornstarch with cold water and stir into drained meat stock with salt. Cook 15 minutes. Add capers and horseradish and cook three minutes longer. The remaining stock can be used for clear tomato soup.

Roast Veal Shoulder.

Wipe veal and dredge with flour, mixed with seasonings. Place in hot oven to sear until golden color; then reduce heat to moderate, allowing 30 minutes for each pound.

FLAVORING AND SPICES MAKE FOODS APPETIZING

Money Spent On Seasonings and Flavoring Extracts Is Well Invested.

It is a good plan for housewives to keep on hand, and in a convenient spot, a number of varieties of flavoring extracts and spices, as they can often be used to give new flavors to foods or to enhance their appetizing qualities.

Too many cooks get into the habit of always flavoring cakes with vanilla or lemon, and using cinnamon to the exclusion of most other spices.

Do a little experimenting with combined flavors in cakes and icings as well as in desserts. For instance almond, lemon and vanilla all together in a cake will give it an illusive flavor that will be found especially delicious. Other combinations are equally good.

The money spent in laying in a supply of say half a dozen kinds of flavoring extracts and as many seasonings is well invested. When kept tightly covered such things last a long while.

Meat Cookery Lore.

Repeated experiments in meat cookery shows that best results are obtained by cooking meat at a high temperature just long enough to sear it, then reducing the heat to a very moderate temperature to finish cooking. Searing keeps the juices in, and longer, slower cooking keeps the meat tender. For roasting, an uncovered pan and a moderate oven give best results.

Cider Gravy for Fowl.

Pour all but three tablespoonfuls of the fat from the roasting pan, add three tablespoonfuls of flour to the remainder, stir over the fire to a paste, then add two cupfuls of tart cider mixed with one of hot water. Cook until thick, season and strain.

Take the guesswork out of meat buying! Buy at A&P—it's so simple, so easy, so pleasant to secure finest quality government inspected meats—and it's no secret that A&P prices are very low!

Lenten Foods! Fish, Oysters, Etc. A&P Stores have a complete supply.

U.S. Meat Inspection Safeguards You Against Animal Diseases!

Tuberculosis is one of many diseases and conditions to which hogs, cattle and sheep are subject. In packing plants having U. S. Government Inspection, all animals having this or any of a dozen other dangerous and insidious diseases are immediately condemned — in other words, positively not used in any way for human consumption.

For instance, in the Government-Inspected packing plants of Greater St. Louis, about one per cent of hogs and pork products is condemned and never reaches the consumer. A similar proportion of unfit meat probably could be found in any non-inspected plant, for both inspected and non-inspected plants have the same sources of supply. But the plants without Government Inspection simply lack the means of detecting disease!

In Greater St. Louis, half of all the meat sold is non-inspected. Be on guard — protect your family's health — demand U. S. Government Inspected Meat and Meat Products — and see that you get nothing else!

Any retail butcher who sells Government-Inspected meat will be glad to show you the Government stamp on the fresh meat in his cooler or on his block, also the Government inspection phrase on packages of meat products. Insist upon seeing these marks yourself — then and then alone can you be positively sure of getting U. S. Government-Inspected Meat — and the absolute safety that goes with it.

When Is a Custard Cooked?

A good test is to dip a silver knife in water and then insert it in the custard. If the knife comes out clean the custard is cooked; if the knife is coated, longer cooking is necesary.

Here is a way to save on the budget and serve the best!

Doctors say that Creamo is chock-full of body-building vitamins . . . and that is no more important than the fact that, although this delicious spread-for-bread costs less, it tastes better!

A tantalizing flavor of real goodness results from Creamo being churned in pure cream . . . children can't get enough of it and parents appreciate its goodness, too.

Grocers receive Creamo fresh and sweet every morning. Your grocer will be glad to put a package aside for you this very day. Call him—you will be delighted with the results.

A BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR GROWN FOLKS

How a "Children's Party" Will Provide Uproarious Fun for Grownups.

Birthday parties should certainly be informal affairs to which are invited most intimate friends, and no parties ever had the thrill of those childhood birthdays.

For the party in question invitations may be sent out reading "Billy Brown is going to have a birthday party on Monday evening. Won't you come?" It is a good plan to decide just how many people can be taken care of comfortably and to plan a program before sending out invitations.

Since the present trend to restoring old-fashioned games to favor has become so marked, it is rather a simple matter to plan a series of games that adults will enjoy. The shops have a number of such to suit all tastes and pocketbooks. Indoor golf sets may be bought and a small course can be set up on the rug and used to start things off with. Provide other games to keep things moving along smoothly. Small prizes for each game add to the fun—chocolate cigarettes in a "silver' case make a good prize for the golf game; novelties in the candy line, such as children would like and toys or other prizes that fit into the characteristis of the guests are readily obtainable.

By the time the games are finished the guests will have worked up good appetites and be ready for refreshments.

A good menu, because it can be prepared in advance, consists of sliced chicken and lettuce sandwiches, open-faced sandwiches spread with anchovy paste and garnished with sliced hard-boiled eggs and olives, stuffed celery, olives, coffee, birthday cake and ice cream.

Provide snappers at each plate at the table, and small favors of some fun making sort. Be sure to have the birthday cake decorated with candles, as that is always part of "the party." Chicken salad and small rolls may be substituted for the sandwiches if desired.

Anchovy Sandwiches.

Cut white bread in quarter-inch slices and remove the crusts. Cut half the slices into oblong pieces and the rest into rounds about one and one-half inches in diameter. Work one-fourth cup butter to a soft cream and add two tablespoons anchovy paste. When well blended spread smoothly on the slices of bread. Garnish each slice with hard-boiled egg—the rounds with rings of egg white, and place a slice of stuffed olive in the center instead of the egg yolk. Crumble the egg yolks and sprinkle over the oblong slices of bread, garnishing with three slices of olives places over lapping across the middle.

Birthday Cake.

Cream one-half cup butter with one and one-half cups sugar until well blended and very smooth. Add the yolks of three eggs and beat until creamy. Then stir in one cup milk. Sift two and one-half cups cake flour with one-fourth teaspoon salt and three teaspoons baking powder. Stir into the liquid mixture and when mixed fold in three stiffly beaten egg whites and one teaspoon vanilla. Bake in a loaf for 50 minutes, or in two large layers, for 20 minutes and put together with any desired icing, covering the cake all over. Decorate with icing forced through a pastry bag or just with candles.

ADDING MILK TO THE DIETARY

Easily Accomplished by Cooking Products in Milk.

Cooking cereals in milk is one way of increasing the consumption of milk in a family where it is not liked as a beverage. This is also a good method to use when a diet must be very high in food value.

Cook the cereal in a little water for 5 minutes, then add milk to take the place of the rest of the water and finish cooking in a double boiler.

One cup of any of the cereals may be cooked in one or one and one-half cups boiling water, then four or three and one-half cups milk added; since the proportion generally used is one cup cereal to five cups liquid.

BAKED APPLES AND PRUNES

Select apples of even size; wash clean, core and place in baking pan.

Stone, chop or cut prunes into thin slices with scissors.

Chop nuts. Wash and drain raisins.

Add prunes, nuts and raisins to sugar with spices and stir until thoroughly mixed.

Fill cavities of apples to overflowing with this mixture; pour in water around apples and bake in a moderate oven (325 degrees) three hours. Baste during last half hour of cooking.

GLUTEN BREAD

Four times as strengthening and half as fattening as regular bread. Contains more protein. Recommended in cases of Diabetes, and in starch-restricted diets.

Fresh daily, loaf, 30c.

Trust
St. Louis to Appreciate the Best

The people of St. Louis have a keen appreciation of good food—an heritage from the days of Tony Faust, the old Southern, McTague's, and many other famous eating houses where our parents and grandparents foregathered over steaming dishes of rare flavor and toothsomeness. It is only instinct for St. Louisans to search out the best in foods.

Now, to the people of St. Louis, comes a new treat. For the first time R-F Spaghetti, Macaroni and Egg Noodles, packed in cartons, can be obtained from your neighborhood grocer.

R-F Macaroni Foods have been made in St. Louis since 1914 by Ravarino & Freschi, one of the largest manufacturers of their kind in the nation. Heretofore, their products have been served from coast to coast largely in restaurants that specialize in highest quality Italian foods. Today, R-F brand products are on sale at all good dealers.

Made from the heart of carefully selected amber Durum wheat Semolina, skillfully processed to remove fattening starches, prepared according to the Ravarino & Freschi formula and extra slow dried to retain the full rich flavor of the grain, R-F Macaroni Food Products stand out from all others for appeal to the taste and digestibility. Few foods have the high food value and contain the large proportion of essential elements found in R-F Spaghetti, Macaroni and Noodles. R-F products are made under strict sanitary conditions in a modern sunlit plant. They contain no fillers, artificial coloring or preservatives.

Enjoy in your own home "The Macaroni with that foreign flavor" which you have found so appetizing in your favorite restaurant. Ask your grocer today for R-F brand Spaghetti, Macaroni or Egg Noodles. Make a meal of it. A famous recipe accompanies each package.

Powdering Your Back with a Scrub Brush

is no worse than using harsh, coarse toilet paper in your bathroom

THERE'S a world of difference between ZEE, the modern "FLUFFED" toilet tissue, and ordinary toilet paper. ZEE is made only from pure new material. It is made by a special process that raises the nap on each sheet to the softness of down on a baby chick.

This fluffing process makes ZEE fine but not flimsy . . . firm but not harsh . . . as absorbent as hospital cotton. In addition, ZEE is sanitized for safety by intense heat. The result is toilet Tissue that fits the most modern bathroom . . . and the most modest purse . . . for this fine tissue costs no more than you've been accustomed to paying for ordinary toilet Paper.

Every roll of ZEE contains 750 soft "FLUFFED" ivory sheets . . . for only 10 cents a roll, or 3 rolls for a quarter. Think of it . . . 100 more sheets than most ordinary rolls for no more money. Every roll of this modern "FLUFFED" toilet tissue has a tucked-in covering protected further by a dainty, gay cerise and green wrapper. Not a chance for dust or dirt to get inside, to soil ZEE'S immaculate cleanliness. Safe when it leaves the mill. Safe when it enters your home. It's a quality tissue.

For safety's sake say ZEE to your grocer or druggist.

REAL ESTATE—EXCHANGE

A MESSAGE TO PROPERTY OWNERS THAT WANT TO SELL.
Many property owners wish to sell before the property they now have is no longer suited to their needs; in an active market the logical thing to do is to sell and then buy what you want; in this market where cash buyers are scarce the logical thing to do is to find someone whose property suits you and your property suits them; in this way you both get what you want with considerably less delay; we are agents for several hundred pieces of desirable real estate (apartments, business property, single and double flats, residences, bungalows and vacant ground); the owners of which will exchange for other property; among this list may be just what you are seeking. S. O. OF NEW YORK VOTES REGULAR QUARTERLY DIVIDEND

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The Standard Oil Co. of New York today ordered payment of the regular quarterly dividend of 40 cents a share, amounting in the aggregate to more than $7,000,000.

This makes the second of the large standard units to assure its stockholders of their regular income for the current quarter. Earlier in the week, the Standard Oil Co. of California ordered the regular disbursement, while the Standard companies of Indiana, Kansas and Nebraska reduced their dividends, because of the low oil prices and current unsettlement in the petroleum industry.

The Standard of New York dividend will be paid March 16 to stockholders of record Feb. 20. The company has not yet reported the volume of its earnings for 1930.

Preliminary figures indicate the Central Railroad of New Jersey had net income for 1930 of $2,824,404, equal to $10.29 a share on the common, against net equal to $18.38 a share, in 1929.

Reynolds Metals Co. preliminary figures indicate net for 1930 of approximately $1,730,000, equal to $2.25 a share, compared with $3,560,034, or $4.63 a share in 1929. Earnings in 1929 included $1.69 a share due to non-recurring items, leaving earnings from operations equal to $2.94 a share. C. K. Reynolds, vice president, said that because of greater efficiency in operation, net profit will increase more rapidly now than the increase in volume. January business was reported in greater dollar volume than in the like months of 1930, despite lower prices for products.

The management estimated that only about 25 per cent of the benefits to be derived from acquisition of Midland Foil Co. and Lehmaier Schwartz & Co. in 1930 were effectual in that year and that based on business in 1931 at approximately the same level as that in 1930, the net earnings for the year shoruld be about 50 per cent greater than they were in 1930.

SMALL CHANGES IN COTTON AT CLOSE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—An early decline in cotton, under realizing and a little more Southern selling, promoted by the easier showing of Liverpool and renewed weakness in bar silver, was followed by a comparatively quiet and steady market today. After selling off to 10.79c, May contracts rallied to 10.89c on continued trade buying and covering, with the market holding fairly steady at net declines of 8 to 10 points around 2 o'clock.

Futures closed steady four points lower to one higher: March 10.65@10.67; May 10.92@10.92; July 11.16@11.17; October 11.44; December 11.64@11.65; January 11.71. Spot quiet; middling 10.75.

Cotton opened steady today at a decline of 5 to 8 points in response to relatively weak Liverpool cables and the decline in the London market for bar silver.

STANDARD BRANDS INC. REPORT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Earnings of Standard Brands, Inc., a merger of food companies with widely distributed products, for 1930, its first calendar year of operations, fell $2,632,529 short of the annual dividend payments, the preliminary report issued today disclosed.

Net income applicable to the parent company amounted to $16,402,253, after charging depreciation of $2,733,863 and all Federal and foreign income taxes. Before preferred dividends the net amounted to $1.22 per share on 12,644,002 shares of common stock outstanding at the end of the year. Preferred dividend payments during the year totaled $1,021,588 and payments on the common stock totaled $18,013,263. Surplus at the end of 1930 was $25,729,886.

Current assets as of Dec. 31 were $46,926,748, including $15,051,391 cash, against liabilities of $4,693,530, a ratio of about 10 to 1.

Profits during the year were held down by development expenses and Nov. 26 last directors reduced the annual dividend rate to $1.20 from $1.50 a share on the common.

Joseph Wilshire, president, said operations for the year show generally a satisfactory increase in the volume of sales.

"The rate at which sales have increased in the two products placed in national distribution during the year—coffee and gelatin desserts," he told stockholders, "confirms the belief of the directors and officers of your company that the expansion program undertaken is warranted."

WHEAT CLOSES IRREGULAR AFTER EARLY UPTURN

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Late reports that snowstorms were sweeping eastward from the Rockies on a 2000-mile front turned grain prices suddenly downward today near the finish of trading. The storm was said to extend from Edmonton, Canada, to Amarillo, Tex. Indications of general drouth relief caused wheat to break more than 2 cents from the day's top point.

Chicago Weather Bureau officials said the reports, which pointed to general drouth relief, were grossly exaggerated, but this information did not become well known until after trading was ended.

Wheat closed irregular, ½ cent lower to ¼ higher, compared with yesterday's finish; corn ⅛@⅝c up; oats unchanged to ¼ off and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to an equal advance.

Grains advanced early today after a wavering start.

Relative failure of moisture predictions in drouth districts induced wheat buying. Reversal of market position by recent speculative sellers hoisted corn. Opening at ⅛c off to ⅛c up, wheat later scored material gains. Corn started at ¼c decline to ¼c advance, and subsequently rose all around.

Both in wheat and corn, a feature was unusual absence of selling pressure, a circumstance attributed to apparent inadequacy of drouth relief. Only scattered rains and snowfalls were reported, whereas general soaking was needed over widespread areas. Opponents of higher prices vainly emphasized announcements that bread in Liverpool was selling at 3 cents a pound loaf, compared with 10 cents in this country.

Wheat upturns carried the market to the highest point reached in more than three weeks. New York Sugar.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Raw sugar was quiet early today and as no sales were reported prices were unchanged at 3.30c for spots, duty paid.

Raw futures opened unchanged to 2 points higher and later showed net gains of 1 to 2 points on covering and buying by houses with trade and Cuban connections, the latter probably in the way of lifting hedges against recent sales in the spot market. The London market was firmer and there was rumor that Java would sign the Chadbourne agreement next week, which probably accounted for the early steadiness, but the demand failed to broaden on the upturn and toward midday, when offerings increased a little, prices reacted with the list at noon net unchanged to 1 points higher.

Refined was unchanged, with a good withdrawal demand, but new business light and supplied through second hands. Prices were listed at 4.70c for fine granulated by all refiners, with second hands available at 4.60 to 4.62½c.

Sugar futures closed steady; approximated sales, 32,000 tons. March, 1.23c; May, 1.32c; July, 1.39c; Sept., 1.47c; Dec., 1.55c; Jan., 1.56c.

SPECIALTIES ARE HIGHER ON CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Inability of the utilities to follow an advancing price trend elsewhere tempered a resumption of the rally in the curb market today. Specialties and several of the oils showed considerable strength, but common stocks of power and light holding companies failed to participate. Electric Bond & Share came forward with a fairly active advance in the late trading, but closed only ⅜ higher.

Tank Car Gasoline Price Up.

THE WAY OF A WOMAN

By Marguerite M. Marshall

THAT DIVORCE PERCENTAGE.

ACCORDING to the very latest statistics on marriage and divorce, just issued by the Department of Commerce, one marriage was dissolved in the year 1929 for each 6.1 marriage performed. The most interesting and optimistic comment on these statistics, however, is that the divorce hazard is not discouraging matrimony.

Though the percentage of broken marriages was a trifle higher, the number of marriages contracted was MUCH higher. In fact, American marriages totaled one of the largest yearly increases numerically and in percentage, exceeding the preceding year's total by 50,062, or 4.2 per cent. Our own New York scored highest with Hymen of all the states, reporting 121,535 marriages.

If only those 243,070 newly married men and women might, like the fairy-tale folk, "live happy ever after!" If only and simply in the interests of human happiness, more couples might find a way to beat the divorce percentage! For it's safe to say that whoever or whatever is to blame for each divorce, the pair involved in the coil would have liked to love and live in peace.

IN a news dispatch sent from Chicago recently we came across what seems to us a hopeful solution for saving many a marriage from the divorce court. It is an agreement entered into before Judge John J. Sullivan by S. Rains Wallace, an official in an insurance company, and his wife, Margaret.

The Wallaces are in early middle age, and have a son in college. But they're going to forget the calendar, forget the humdrum habits of married life, and live all over again the romance of courtship.

Mr. Wallace will make dates with his wife, just as he did before she was his wife. He will take her to theaters and to luncheons. He will send her flowers.

"If it doesn't work," says Mrs. Wallace, "I guess we'll consider divorce, but we think it will come out all right."

Almost any woman with an imagination and a sense of romance will agree with Mrs. Wallace, and send her by mental wireless all the good wishes in the world. And doesn't the experiment on which the Wallaces are just embarking suggest one way to beat the divorce percentage? We honestly think so.

MANY a marriage, when husband and wife are in the forties, has drifted into the doldrums of dullness and drudgery. The two have been working so hard to bring up and educate the children, to safeguard the family's economic future. He has been breadwinner, she has been housewife, both have been parents so indefatigably that they've forgotten to be lovers.

It is something you must not forget, if you want marriage to be what it can be—the happiest human relationship. And, if the husband and wife in the forties stop to think about it, the pressure upon them in other than romantic directions often shows a let-up. Their children are grown and either are or soon can be self-supporting. The parents can rediscover each other and love.

Let them not be afraid to express it again in the old romantic gestures—with flowers and candy, with compliments and "dates," with caresses that are not duty-and-habit kisses. After all, for the rest of their lives they should count so much more for each other than for their children. The latter have their own lives, their own self-chosen emotional relationships. The father and mother are free, if they only will realize it, to turn back to each other with all the old mutual dependence, intensity tenderness. Their marriage can take a new lease of life—and love.

Nowadays, when we all keep young so much longer, there are such good times ahead for the middle-aged married. For them the divorce court often represents sheer waste. With years of loyalty, of comradeship of memories between them, they can get far more satisfaction out of a second-blooming romance with each other than with some fresh, but shallow, emotional growth elsewhere.

If they only understand this, if each of them tries to find the old sweetheart—"loved long since and lost awhile" among a clutter of cares—then for them the inspiring message of Rabbi Ben Ezra may be simple truth—

"Grow old along with me;
"The best is yet to be—
"The last of life, for which the first was made."

Talks to PARENTS

"Scary" Games and Stories

WHEN the story of Black Sambo was told to 4-year-old kindergarten group, one little boy burst into tears and rushed over to the teacher, crying. "Please, please stop. I don't want to hear any more!"

It was the too-graphic telling of poor little Black Sambo's plight, when he thought that all four tigers had come back to eat him up, that caused the outburst.

To most children the story of little Black Sambo is entirely delightful. The roaring tigers, the fear element and the wholly satisfactory outcome offer just the right combination of excitement and pleasure.

But children are not all alike, and there are many who react with violent emotion to stories that have long been considered nursery classics. It is well to study your child carefully on this point and to select your stories accordingly.

Frequently stories that are otherwise suitable inspire terror because the grown-up, in an effort to give the greatest possible delight to his small listener, dramatizes too vividly the cruel, gruesome or fearful elements of the story.

The tension caused by a too-exciting story-hour often results in restless sleep, bad dreams and even night terrors.

Another source of such difficulties is found in games which dramatize hunting, shooting, fights with wild animals, or battles with dragons and giants.

Even the most stable child should not be allowed to indulge in such games just before going to bed.

Children of like age seldom overstimulate one another even at this sort of play. It is usually when a child plays with older children or with adults that the make-believe becomes so real as to frighten him.

Kotex deodorizes

. . . one of the many reasons you should demand this sanitary pad

DAINTY women appreciate the fact that Kotex deodorizes thoroughly. They like, too, the way it is shaped to fit inconspicuously and the soothing, lasting softness that differentiates Kotex from ordinary sanitary pads.

You will feel secure, safe—once you adopt this modern protection. Kotex is highly absorbent—five times more than surgical cotton. And it absorbs over a larger area, gives you greater protection.

You can wear it on either side, with no fear of embarrassment, with the very same efficiency.

Our leading hospitals, taking the very greatest precautions in all sanitary measures, insist upon Kotex for their women patients. Try Kotex—for your health's sake. It is, of course, disposable.

The Age of Youth

By Arthur Somers Roche

"Loveliest lady ever saw," he solemnly declared. "Believe I'll marry you. How would you like to be Mrs. Frank Gardner?"

CHAPTER FIVE.

WITH deliberation Donna turned her back on Times Square. When next she entered the square it would be in someone's limousine, and that someone would bear a name at mention of which the doorman at the theater would bend his obsequious back. . . .

Eastward she strolled now, and finally entered her bank. She indorsed Callum & Rignaud's check, made out a deposit slip and approached a grated window.

"How soon may I draw against this?" she asked.

The teller cast a swift glance at her. He looked down at the check, then looked at her again with interest. He scribbled his initials on one of her deposit slips, stamped it with the date, and pushed it beneath the grating toward her.

Even tellers can be human, machine-like though their work is, and this was an extremely pretty girl.

"Lucky in the market, eh? Callum & Rignaud—brokers, aren't they? Well, invest it in something solid now. This market won't last forever, you know. Draw against it? Tomorrow morning."

As though suddenly appalled at his own unbending, he clicked his teeth upon the final "g" and turned back into the depths of his cage. Tomorrow morning!

THREE blocks from the bank was a luggage shop. She bought an excellent suitcase, without fittings, for $85. She paid cash for this, and then asked to be shown trunks. She selected two, one with drawers and compartments only, and one equipped only with hangers for frocks. They came to $325. They were by no means the most expensive in the shop, but were serviceable as well as good-looking.

She took a taxi back to the Mercat, went to her room and in the one bag managed to crowd the few personal effects which were to attend her on her migration. Then she rang for the slatternly colored chambermaid who intermittently attended the wants of the Mercat's guests. To the grateful maid she presented her shabby clothing and also the battered trunk. Then, in too much of a hurry to escape these drab surroundings to wait for a dilatory bellboy, she carried her bag to the elevator. She paid her bill—it amounted, for the four days since it had last been paid, to a trifle over $16—and stepped into a taxi outside.

It was on the tip of her tonglue to tell the driver to take her directly to the Hotel Herndon, but the bellboy who had carried her bag from the desk to the street lingered within earshot. It would be as well to throw what obstacles were at hand in the way of any possible prying curiosity. The Herndon was the most fashionable hotel in the city. It would arouse a certain interest if it were known that a resident of the Mercat moved thence to the Herndon.

"Grand Central Station," she said to the driver.

She felt like the heroine of the latest newspaper triangle as she thus covered her tracks.

At the station she merely transferred herself to another taxi, and 10 minutes later she was registering at the Hotel Herndon: "Miss Donna Raynor, New York City." The clerk eyed her speculatively. The Herndon could afford to be selective, and while its attitude toward single women from out of town was cordial, it was not anxious to fill its rooms with young women who were native to the city. In the case of a spinster, if the outmoded word still has meaning, there is virtue in an out-of-town residence.

HOWEVER, the clerk was as generous in his estimate of her as had been the salesman at Bleakie & Co.'s shop. She was a well-bred young woman, of modest and pleasing demeanor, with plenty of good looks, and he summed her up in the one word, "class."

A week ago, indulging in her desire to be—even remotely—of the smart world, Donna had lunched at the Colony. She had recognized—as who that read the tabloids might not—the extremely chic and equally unconventional Libby Prentiss.

Libby Prentiss had divorced herself from the laws of decorum as casually as her parents had divorced themselves from each other. Not, as people too swiftly pointed out, that Libby ever did anything wrong, but . . . She refused to live with either parent; she insisted that she would not be bored, and surrounded herself with what she termed "amusing" people. But it is an unfortunate fact that respectability and the quality of being amusing do not too often go hand in hand, and Libby's friends figured frequently in the press in scandals. She was herself a most prolific source of copy for the society columns, and apparently took an unholy delight in shocking her somewhat solemn relations. For all that, she was too strongly entrenched to become declasse, unless she did something quite outrageous, and thus far Libby had avoided that.

"When are you sailing, Libby?" her companion had asked.

"I've bookings on the Ile de France," Libby had replied. "But I'm economizing, my dear. I'm trying to rent my apartment, and if I don't do it"— she shrugged her pretty shoulders. "I've put it with Cromwell & Magann, and they say they'll get a tenant."

"Of course they will," her companion had assured her, and that was all the talk that Donna had overheard.

But, because she had suddenly become determined to get out—somehow or some way—from the life she was living, she had paid a visit to Cromwell & Magann, received a list of apartments from them, and called upon Libby Prentiss. She had not the slightest idea that she could lease the apartment, but it was in satisfaction of a craying—not snobbish in its origin—to see a girl like Libby Prentiss in her own home that she pretended a desire for an apartment.

The Prentiss girl had received her in friendly fashion.

"It's really a duck of a place, Miss— Raynor, is that it? I'm perfectly happy here, but I've a millions things to do on the other side, and don't expect to come back for a year or so, so—it costs me exactly $2400 a year, and I'm willing to let it go, with my own things in it, for that amount."

OUTSIDE Donna wanted to sob. This gem of an apartment, in which she could be unbelievably happy, and debarred from her possession simply because she didn't have the money! Why, if Libby Prentiss felt like it, she could abandon an apartment that cost her $24,000 a year and still not be forced to practice economy.

Now she called the Prentiss apartment. Somehow it soothed her soul to be able to do so. After her non-committal departure from the little flat, she had felt—in addition to other emotions—a bit of a sneak, of a peeper. She had entered the apartment under false pretenses, merely to gratify a cheap curiosity, to strengthen her own importance by pretending if only for a moment, that she was of Libby Prentiss' own station and class. Now—she would be of Libby's station, would be, by virtue of aggressiveness, of Libby's class.

"This is Miss Raynor," she said, when the apartment's owner came to the telephone. "I've decided to take your apartment, if it's still for rent."

The always merry voice of Miss Prentiss took on an added glee.

"Miss Raynor? Oh, yes. Of course. I'd about decided to close it up and sail without renting it. Why—er—shall I send the agents around, Miss Raynor, with the lease? I suppose there are matters of reference and that sort of thing * * * and about my goldfish! Could you keep the poor dears? They really cost nothing, and * * * I wish I could keep one closet"——

SYNOPSIS.

Hopeless because of her failure to make a decent living in New York City, pretty Donna Raynor writes to Randolph Granby, a wealthy bachelor: "I could get a rich husband if I had the proper setting. It would cost a thousand a month and I'd need two years to get the proper man. Will you give it to me?"

Intrigued by the girl's personality and her unconventional ideas, Granby accepts her proposal. Through his brokers Donna receives $25,000; Granby prepares to sail for France, and Donna leaves her shabby hotel for a more fashionable address in the exclusive fifties.

"Come and have tea and we'll arrange those things," said Donna daringly.

SHE felt, almost, the chill at the other end of the wire. Then Miss Prentiss assented.

"Where?" she asked.

"I'm stopping at the Herndon," said Donna.

"I'll be there in half an hour—shall I bring the lease with me?"

"Certainly," said Donna.

What had the teller said? That her deposit could be drawn against tomorrow morning? Well, it was after banking hours now, so no check could be presented. Further, she'd date it tomorrow. * * * She drew a check, payable to the order of Elizabeth Prentiss, for $2400. That should be convincing enough.

She was fully dressed 30 minutes later when the telephone rang.

"Miss Prentiss calling," she heard the clerk announce, and there was deep respect in his tones.

"Sorry," Libby greeted her. "Really can't stay for tea. Million things to do. But my agents sent up the lease to me, and here it is. Er—they seemed to think that a year's rent in advance"——

To be seen taking tea with Libby Prentiss meant a great deal to Donna. But her voice was casual, and her manner unperturbed.

"I'd thought that myself," she said. She led the way into a reception room where were ink and pens. She signed the lease, received a copy from the Prentiss girl, delivered the made-out check, and received a receipt.

"I'm sailing day after tomorrow, Miss Raynor," said Libby. "You can move in that afternoon."

And so it was settled. Donna shook hands with the other girl, wished her a pleasant trip abroad, and went back to her room. She read and reread the clause in the lease. This was to be her home. More than that; it was to be the vantage point from which she assaulted—life itself!

Forty-eight hours later she moved into the East Fifty-seventh street apartment. It was as charming as she had first thought. Libby Prentiss had brought taste to the aid of money in furnishing the three rooms. The dining room was dainty and cheerful; the living drawing room was delightful; and the bedroom was charming. The little kitchen, the bath appointments—everything was all that Donna could desire.

Now she was in her own home. Libby Prentiss' maid had agreed to stay on, and Donna had leaped at the occasion for retaining her. From the maid she could judiciously extract information that might prove priceless.

WITH the maid's aid she put away her fresh things; she sent the trunks to the storage room; upon a dressing table she laid out the pretty but not too expensive toilet things she had purchased. She ate, with a relish she had not experienced in months, the grapefruit, the fillet of sole, the chop, the salad and the stewed fruits that the maid prepared for her. Then, equipped with half a dozen magazines, a case of cigarettes and a couple of books, she went to bed. She composed herself for a delightful evening. Tomorrow she would definitely take the first step in the journey toward her goal, but tonight. . . .

The doorbell rang. Idly she heard the maid's footsteps as they went down the little hall from the kitchen. She heard voices at the front door in indistinguishable murmur. Then she heard heavy footsteps, saw, framed in the doorway to her bedroom an extremely handsome and somewhat disheveled youth.

Beyond him, clawing furiously at his shoulder, was the maid.

"I'll ring for the police," she was crying. "I'll have you arrested."

The youth stared at Donna. That young lady sat bolt upright, drawing her negligee closer about her.

"Thought good old Jennie here was lying," said the youth. "Libby never said she was going. Never said she was letting her apartment. Find same maid, think same mistress . . . mosht embarrassing. Always gentleman. Never let be said Frank Gardner anything but gentleman. Sorry. Disturb charming lady in dishabille—not done. No need for police. Retire gracefully and with distinction. Diff'cult task but can be done. Apologies offered—trust graciously received."

Despite herself Donna smiled. The boy—he was few years beyond that age—beamed upon her.

"Loveliest lady ever saw," he solemnly declared. "Believe I'll marry you. How would you like to be Mrs. Frank Gardner?"

Incongruously, through Donna's mind, ran the thought: "If only he were sober and asked that question."

For Frank Gardner's name was the best known, almost, in the country.

Waterproof Shoes

IT is a good idea to waterproof the shoes. There are several ways of doing this effectually. Melt together equal parts of beeswax and mutton suet, stir it thoroughly and apply it lightly on the soles and edges with a soft cloth.

Another treatment is to warm the shoe soles, then apply two or three coats of hot copal varnish—this will also lengthen the service of the soles.

It is a wise precaution to waterproof the entire shoe for children. To remove all mud and old polish. Allow them to dry thoroughly, then rub half an ounce of castor oil into the leather and let the oil dry in.

HEALTH

Brief articles prepared by experts. Edited by Dr. Iago Galdston, for the New York Academy of Medicine.

Child Health.

THE first child health conference was called in 1907 by the late President Roosevelt. For the first time in the history of this country, the physician, economist and social worker came together to plan the conservation of our child health resources.

The idea of a child health conference served to focus the attention of the nation on child health and to make it aware of the magnitude of the problem and of the numerous things that could be done to render child life healthier and more wholesome.

Every President since then has called a conference on child health, and the country has well benefited by these conventions. The latest White House conference was held recently.

Nineteen provisions for the safeguarding and improving of child health are listed in the new bill of rights, based on the first one formulated in 1907, but modified and amplified to include the newer advances in medical and sanitary science.

Prominent among these provisions are regular health examinations, dental examinations, health education, accident prevention, protection against communicable diseases, wholesome environment, adequate school health facilities, place, time and opportunity for play, which is serious business in the child's life.

One point emphatically stressed by the latest conference is that the responsibility for the achievement of the utmost in child health must ultimately rest with the parents and the local health, social and educational agencies.

This is a pertinent observation, for the tendency has been to leave the care of certain of these items to public officials and community officers.

To a degree, as in the case of education, this is desirable, but community, school and other phases of child health work can be furthered by the active participation of the adults, and of the parents.

Ten sets of twins and a set of triplets are enrolled in the Uintah grade school at Salt Lake City, Utah.

WHO WROTE "THE OFFICE WIFE" AND "ALIMONY"

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO.

HELEN went back to her play-acting and was able to avoid Lorna because Lorna so successfully avoided her. Harrison had told Lorna privately that if she dared make any further trouble he would see to it that she was blacklisted from further decent productions. He had said it, not quite knowing how on earth he could carry out such a high-handed threat, but Lorna believed him. In the first place, she had lost the influence that little Goldbaum was able to exercise over certain producers and in the second place she was afraid that the story of her scheme and its failure would get out and make her the laughing stock of the studios and the Rialto.

So she played her two scenes with Helen—and neither had ever acted better, or indeed as well—and then let her severely alone, to Harrison's great contentment and to Lessways'. For Lessways came to the studio now and then. Not too often, for he had no wish to involve Helen in gossip, but often enough to see how things were going.

Lessways had been as good as his word. He had seen Martin and Bob and had investigated the matter of the polish. As he told the Warrens—being a frequent caller now—he did everything to the darned stuff but drink it!—and having investigated, he was as enthusiastic as its inventor and his friend. So he enlisted one or two other men's interest and with much expedition the small company was launched, with plans for Bob to be president on a salary and royalty basis, for Harry to be general manager and the head of the sales-promotion end and for Lessways himself to be somewhere in the background inconspicuously, but on the spot.

The plans for Gladys' wedding went on and before the day set, Jim Hutchins came home. His letters for the last few months had been encouraging and now a telegram heralded his arrival.

He had asked them not to meet him and the whole family were waiting almost breathless in the little house when he walked in.

Virginia looked at him—screamed something—sobbed something and ran into his arms.

HE was still thin, he was still pale but his pallor was healthy. His back was straight, his stoop and uncertainty had gone and his eyes were clear with hope and with health. He was on the road to complete recovery. They could do nothing more for him at the Government hospital, the rest was up to himself. The lungs had healed. The shattered nerves were sheathed again. Jim was once more himself.

Junior appeared briefly and disappeared again. When they at last remembered him and went to look for him, they found him in the cellar, crying quite quietly with his head in the coal bin and the big tears streaked black down his rosy face, a very happy little boy.

For the next few days the household was completely disorganized. One evening Virginia came in to Betty, finding her alone.

"Betty"—she sat down on the bed and her altered happy eyes were misty. "Betty . . . I've been such a fool."

"How? Why?"

"All my—bitterness . . . and everything . . . thinking it was money that mattered. Betty, it was Jim—nothing mattered but Jim. And when I saw him—the way he was and remembered the way he used to be—so much as he now is, Betty—I—I turned against everyone, against God too, I think. It was so dreadful and I was so afraid and I began to think that if we had had money—and ease—it wouldn't have happened. And all these last months when he wrote me so cheerfully, saying he could come home soon, and would be strong enough to take care of me and Junior I was afraid to believe . . . I . . . thought he was lying . . . whistling in the dark to keep his courage up—and then . . . Oh Betty, I'm so happy and so ashamed of all my doubting and my ingratitude . . ."

She cried, in Betty's arms.

"I'm not afraid of anything now," she said. "Not now that I have him back . . . nothing . . . nothing matters beside that. I can work and wait and he'll find something to do. I'll take such care of him and not let him get tired again, ever—"

"Dear," said Betty, "didn't you know? Peter Lessways and Harry spoke of it last night. I think they're going to ask Jim this evening . . . there's a place for him in the offices of the new company . . . a good place. It will take care of you . . . all of you . . . all of us . . . when the company gets on its feet. And you know that it will. It can't help it now with all the backers it has and the influence."

HARRY and Gladys were married shortly after Thanksgiving. It was a very simple wedding and a very pretty one. "Everyone" came . . . the Martin connections and the few Warren relatives and Peter and Bob and a few school friends of the girls. She had no adult attendant, because she said, laughing, she couldn't choose between her sisters and three of them would be too many. But two of her favorite children from the nursery school were there to precede her up the very short improvised aisle. And Bob was best man and Peter a self-constituted usher. There was quite an array of presents with Peter's an order on a certain very good firm for "flat furnishings," for, as he said, after all he was part of the family as well as of the company, and if he wished to present his friends with a couple of chairs, a kitchen table and some dishes, well, why not.

They had found a little place on Columbia Heights and Mrs. Martin and Helen and Betty and the rest would see that it was in order for them, the furniture of Peter's giving having been selected before the wedding. When they came back from the South they could "settle in."

"Weddings," remarked Lessways to Helen, during the course of festivities, "are great matchmakers."

He looked toward Bob and Betty who were talking together in a corner and sighed with mock sentimentality.

"Pooh!" replied Helen rudely, "that match was made long before this wedding . . . in heaven, I suppose."

"So are some others," commented Lessways dreamily and made no move to hold her back as she spun suddenly away from him and joined Mary and Mrs. Martin at the other side of the room. He had seen her tell-tale ears and the slender back of her neck flushing as she left him. He smiled a little and balanced an ice cream plate more securely and looked a very contented young man indeed.

SO Harry and Galdys went South, the company was launched and Virginia found a very little place to call her own again. It wouldn't be long, Jim promised her, flushed with hope and with certainty, before she could have a maid to help her with the housework and with Junior, not long before, if he wished, she could go back to her singing again, and exchange perhaps the hated cash register which she had now left behind her for good, for the choir.

And Helen went into a new picture in which Miss Lorna May did not figure. She had a better part and a bigger one; she was making good. When Lorrimer's picture was released, the critics talked of Kay Harrison's work and of his find. Helen's picture was in the papers and an account of her start in a motion picture magazine or two.

Everyone exclaimed and grew excited about it, except Mrs. Warren, who smiled placidly and said that she had known it was bound to happen all along.

And one day, toward the first of the year, on a Sunday afternoon a big Rolls-Royce drew up to the door of the Warren house and stopped there.

Betty was alone in the house. Her mother had "run over" to Virginia's for a moment, Gladys and Harry would not be out until time for supper. Helen and Lessways had gone on a picnic. This was absurd of them, with the snow two feet deep, but they had done it just the same, because that's the kind of people they were. They had started off quite early in a sleigh which Lessways had procured from heaven knows where. They were armed with wraps and fur robes and helmets and foot-warmers and a large picnic basket full of mysterious food and an even larger thermos of hot coffee. And they intended driving somewhere on Long Island and coming home for supper.

The doorbell rang and Betty answered.

She drew back at the sight of him. Unconsciously her hand went out to shut the door in his face.

"No—no—"

He pushed past her, his features twisted into a mask of pain. "You must let me in, Betty, I must see you . . . must talk to you. My God, if you saw a man dying of thirst on your doorstep you'd not refuse him a drink of water?"

* * *

SHE stood aside. She was badly frightened. No one in the house but herself—alone with this—this determined madman. The chauffeur outside was stolid on the box. Well, she might call him . . . if he'd come. She wondered if those in Lorrimer's employ had learned any lessons from him.

They were in the hall now.

"Well?" she asked, quietly, "what is it?"

He went on into the living room, his heavy fur-lined coat unbuttoned, hanging loosely from his narrow shoulders.

She did not ask him to sit down. Merely faced him and waited.

"Betty—I've been through hell," he told her hoarsely, "and—I can't endure it any longer. You must listen to me. I could kill myself—for the things I've done and left undone. Betty, do you hate me?"

"I—never think of you," she told him, indifferently, "why should I?"

He stared at her, his mouth working, his eyes bloodshot.

"I swear to you that I love you. I've always loved you. I"——

"You—didn't care much for me—the night of Miss May's party, she reminded him, "not enough to come forward and say that you believed I was innocent of her shameful accusation. . . ."

"Betty . . . I—I—I didn't know what I was doing. Of course, I knew you were innocent. I thought it all a joke. . . ."

"Peter Lessways didn't think so—or Helen."

"Oh, Lessways," he muttered, scornfully, "what does he matter?"

"Nothing—to you"——

"To you then?" he demanded, suddenly coming very close to her, his nervous hands twitching.

"Very much—to me," she answered, and then as he turned away with a curious animal sound in the back of his throat, she went on steadily, "as my friend . . . as the friend of us all."

"Only as a friend?" he asked, swinging around again.

"You have no right to question me," she answered.

"I know. Give me that right . . . marry me . . . soon . . . marry me, Betty—and let me make up to you for all I made you suffer," he gabbled incoherently.

"SUFFER . . . you?" she asked, scornfully.

"If you won't marry me," he countered sullenly, "it's because of Lessways—he's turned you against me—he's said something about me"——

"He has not mentioned you—since that night," she denied.

"Then—then you will marry me? You'll forgive me? I—I'll give you everything in the world, Betty, Money—all you can spend—social position — everything — and your family shall have care, protection. I swear it"——

"You'd marry me—knowing that I despise you?" she asked, in a sort of contemptuous astonishment.

"On any terms. If you'll promise you'll marry me—I swear I won't touch you—I won't take advantage of you in any way. You shall be as sacred, as inviolate to me as if you were my sister. I'll devote myself to teaching you to care for me again, as a friend. And when I've won your friendship I'll set myself the task of winning your love. And not until you come to me of your own free will and put your hands in mine and tell me you are willing to become my wife in love as well as my wife in law, will I make any claim on you"—

She drew back from him. She thought, desperately—he must be mad.

"See," he cried, holding out his hands to her, "see—I'm here with you—alone. I've not tried to touch you, have I? I've been quite—quite reasonable—just standing here, near you, begging you to listen to me."

"I have listened," she cried, "and you know my answer. I will never marry you."

"You—you couldn't . . . you can't say it . . . and know what I have endured. I tell you I can't sleep. I can't eat for wanting you . . . and hating myself."

"I can't marry you," she answered again, more gently, "I do not love you—and I do love someone else."

He looked at her hungrily, incredulously; deep into her steady eyes. Threw out his hand with a curious gesture of impotence, and turned and left her, staggering a little.

(Concluded Tomorrow.)

Cheese and Anchovy Sandwiches

A delightful paste for sandwiches that will prove puzzling to many. Mash one cup grated sharp cheese, two tablespoons anchovy paste, one teaspoon paprika, two chopped hard-boiled eggs, one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, one tablespoon chopped parsley until it is a smooth paste. Spread between buttered slices of whole wheat bread.

Clothesline Rules

OH, YES, there are rules for hanging out the weekly wash and good housekeepers follow them.

They keep clothespins where they are free from dust, and there is a small line brush with them to wipe the line before hanging out the clothes.

They hang all the clothes wrong side out.

They hang articles in groups, pieces of a kind being together.

They hang garments by bands, belts or seams.

They do not hang silk, knitted or crocheted articles because it is better to dry these indoors.

They hang articles of white cotton or linens in direct sunlight because this bleaches and whitens them.

If the bristles of your hairbrush have become soft you can restore their firmness and stiffness by dipping them in a strong solution of alum.

HOW IT BEGAN

By RUSS MURPHY

HUMBUG

KING JAMES II CAUSED THE DUBLIN MINT TO ISSUE A NUMBER OF BASE COINS DURING HIS REIGN. THESE WERE MADE OF COPPER, PEWTER AND LEAD, AND WERE SO LOW IN INTRINSIC VALUE THAT 20 SHILLINGS WERE WORTH ONLY TWO PENCE. THE METAL USED IN THESE COINS WAS KNOWN TO THE IRISH AS "UIM BOG"—PRONOUNCED OOM-BUG. FROM THIS—AND THE SMALL VALUE OF THE COINS—WE DERIVE OUR WORD "HUMBUG."

TO PAY DOWN ON THE NAIL

IN THE CENTER OF OLD TIME STOCK EXCHANGES WAS A PILLAR WITH A CIRCULAR COPPER PLATE ABOUT THREE FEET IN DIAMETER. THIS WAS CALLED THE NAIL, AND ON THIS METAL DESK ALL STOCK TRANSACTIONS WERE PAID FOR. HENCE THE EXPRESSION.

"HAY FOOT, STRAW FOOT"

IT'S JUST TOO BAD ABOUT NIMROD BANGING YOUR MACHINE INTO THE REAR OF A STREETCAR BUT THAT'S WHAT HAPPENS WHEN YOU PAY NO ATTENTION TO ME. I TOLD YOU NOT TO LET HIM AND LUCILLE HAVE THE CAR.
WHAT INCINERATES ME IS THAT, WITH A BIG GARAGE BILL STARING ME IN THE FACE NIMROD HAS THE CRUST TO TALK ABOUT THE INJURY TO HIS NERVES.
FOR A FULL WEEK I WARNED YOU ABOUT LETTING THEM DRIVE THE CAR.
WHEN I PHONED TO ASK WHAT WAS BUSTED ON THAT CAR THE GARAGE MAN TALKED FOR AT LEAST 20 MINUTES. AND HE SAID HE SIMPLY COULDN'T UNDERSTAND HOW ANY CAR COULD GET THAT WAY IN ONLY ONE ACCIDENT.
THEY HINTED AND HINTED ABOUT THE CAR. I KNEW WHAT WOULD HAPPEN.
WHAT WORRIES ME MORE THAN ANYTHING ELSE IS TO HEAR NIMROD INSISTING ON LETTING THE STREETCAR COMPANY DO ALL THE WORRYING. MY WORD.
WELL IT'S JUST TOO BAD BUT ANYHOW YOU CAN'T SAY YOU WEREN'T WARNED. I TOLD YOU SO.
AFTER I SORT OF GET MY COURAGE UP I'M GOING TO THAT GARAGE WITH NIMROD AND LOOK AT THE CAR. AND IF IT LOOKS LIKE I KNOW IT DOES I'LL BACK NIMROD INTO A CORNER AND GIVE HIM HIS CHOICE OF PAYING A GARAGE BILL OR A DENTIST.

COMPROMISE EXPECTED TO BLOCK EXTRA SESSION MOVE

resident and Senate Major-ity End Their Bitter Struggle Over "Dole," Both Satisfied With Face-Saving Device.

enators of Both Parties Interpret Bill's Terms as Permitting Use of Money to Buy Food—Red Cross Out of Picture.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
hief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Prospects of an extra session of Con-ress waned today with the an-ouncement that a settlement of he bitter warfare between the resident and a majority of the enate over drouth relief measures ad been reached.

The compromise emerged last ight from conferences between enate and House leaders, and was nnounced by Majority Leader Vatson of the Senate, Speaker ongworth of the House and oth-rs. The compromise was agreed o today by conferees of the Sen-te and House.

The agreement is that $20,000,-00 for "rehabilitation" in the routh areas shall be added to the 45,000,000 already voted for feed, eed and fertilizer loans. An item arrying the new appropriation is o be substituted in the Interior De-partment supply bill for the Sen-te's proposed $25,000,000 donation o the Red Cross.

The contentious word "food" is ot used, and the Red Cross is left ut of the picture. Like the $45,-00,000, the new grant is to be sed by the Secretary of Agricul-ure for loans to farmers on such ecurity as he may prescribe. Loans may also be made for the forma-ion of agricultural financing per-missible, through the intermediate redit banks.

A Matter of Saving Face.

For all practical purposes, the compromise is a return to the ap-propriation that was struck out by he House after Secretary Hyde had declared that it came "danger-usly close to a dole." The differ-nce is that the amount has bee ncreased by $5,000,000 and th anguage has been altered to escap he word "food." "Rehabilitation" has been used instead.

What has been achieved is face-saving device. Presiden Hoover's spokesman asserted tha he had not compromised his stan gainst the "dole," while the Sen te Democrats who helped to ne otiate the settlement declared tha he word "rehabilitation" wa road enough to permit food loan

Minority leader Robinson of A ansas said the language suite him, inasmuch as it was to be lib rally interpreted by the Adminis ration and was plainly understoo o cover loans for food and clothin s well as feed, seed, etc.

Word "Food" Avoided.

Majority Leader Watson, Speak r Longworth and other Republi ans, while studiously avoiding th word "food" in their statements reporters agreed, as Watson pu t, that the loans are to cover "ev rything."

Leader Tilson of the House a sented, but emphasized that the a propriation was not to be regard as a "dole." Tilson lead the irr concilables in the House who kill the original food loan item.

Another feature of the compr mise will liberalize the language the $45,000,000 bill so as to pe mit loans to be made for the fee ing of livestock in general. T original bill provided for work a mals only, with the result that t Red Cross has had to take over t feeding of livestock of indige farmers.

Text of the Agreement.

By the Associated Press.

The text of the agreement follow "Joint resolution No. 211 for t relief of farmers in the drout stricken areas approved Dec. 1930, is hereby amended by addi at the end thereof the followin 'Any money appropriated pursua to the authorization contained this section may be used in t purchase of feed for other li stock upon the same terms a conditions as such money may used for the purchase of feed- work stock.'
